Olive Branch

1958

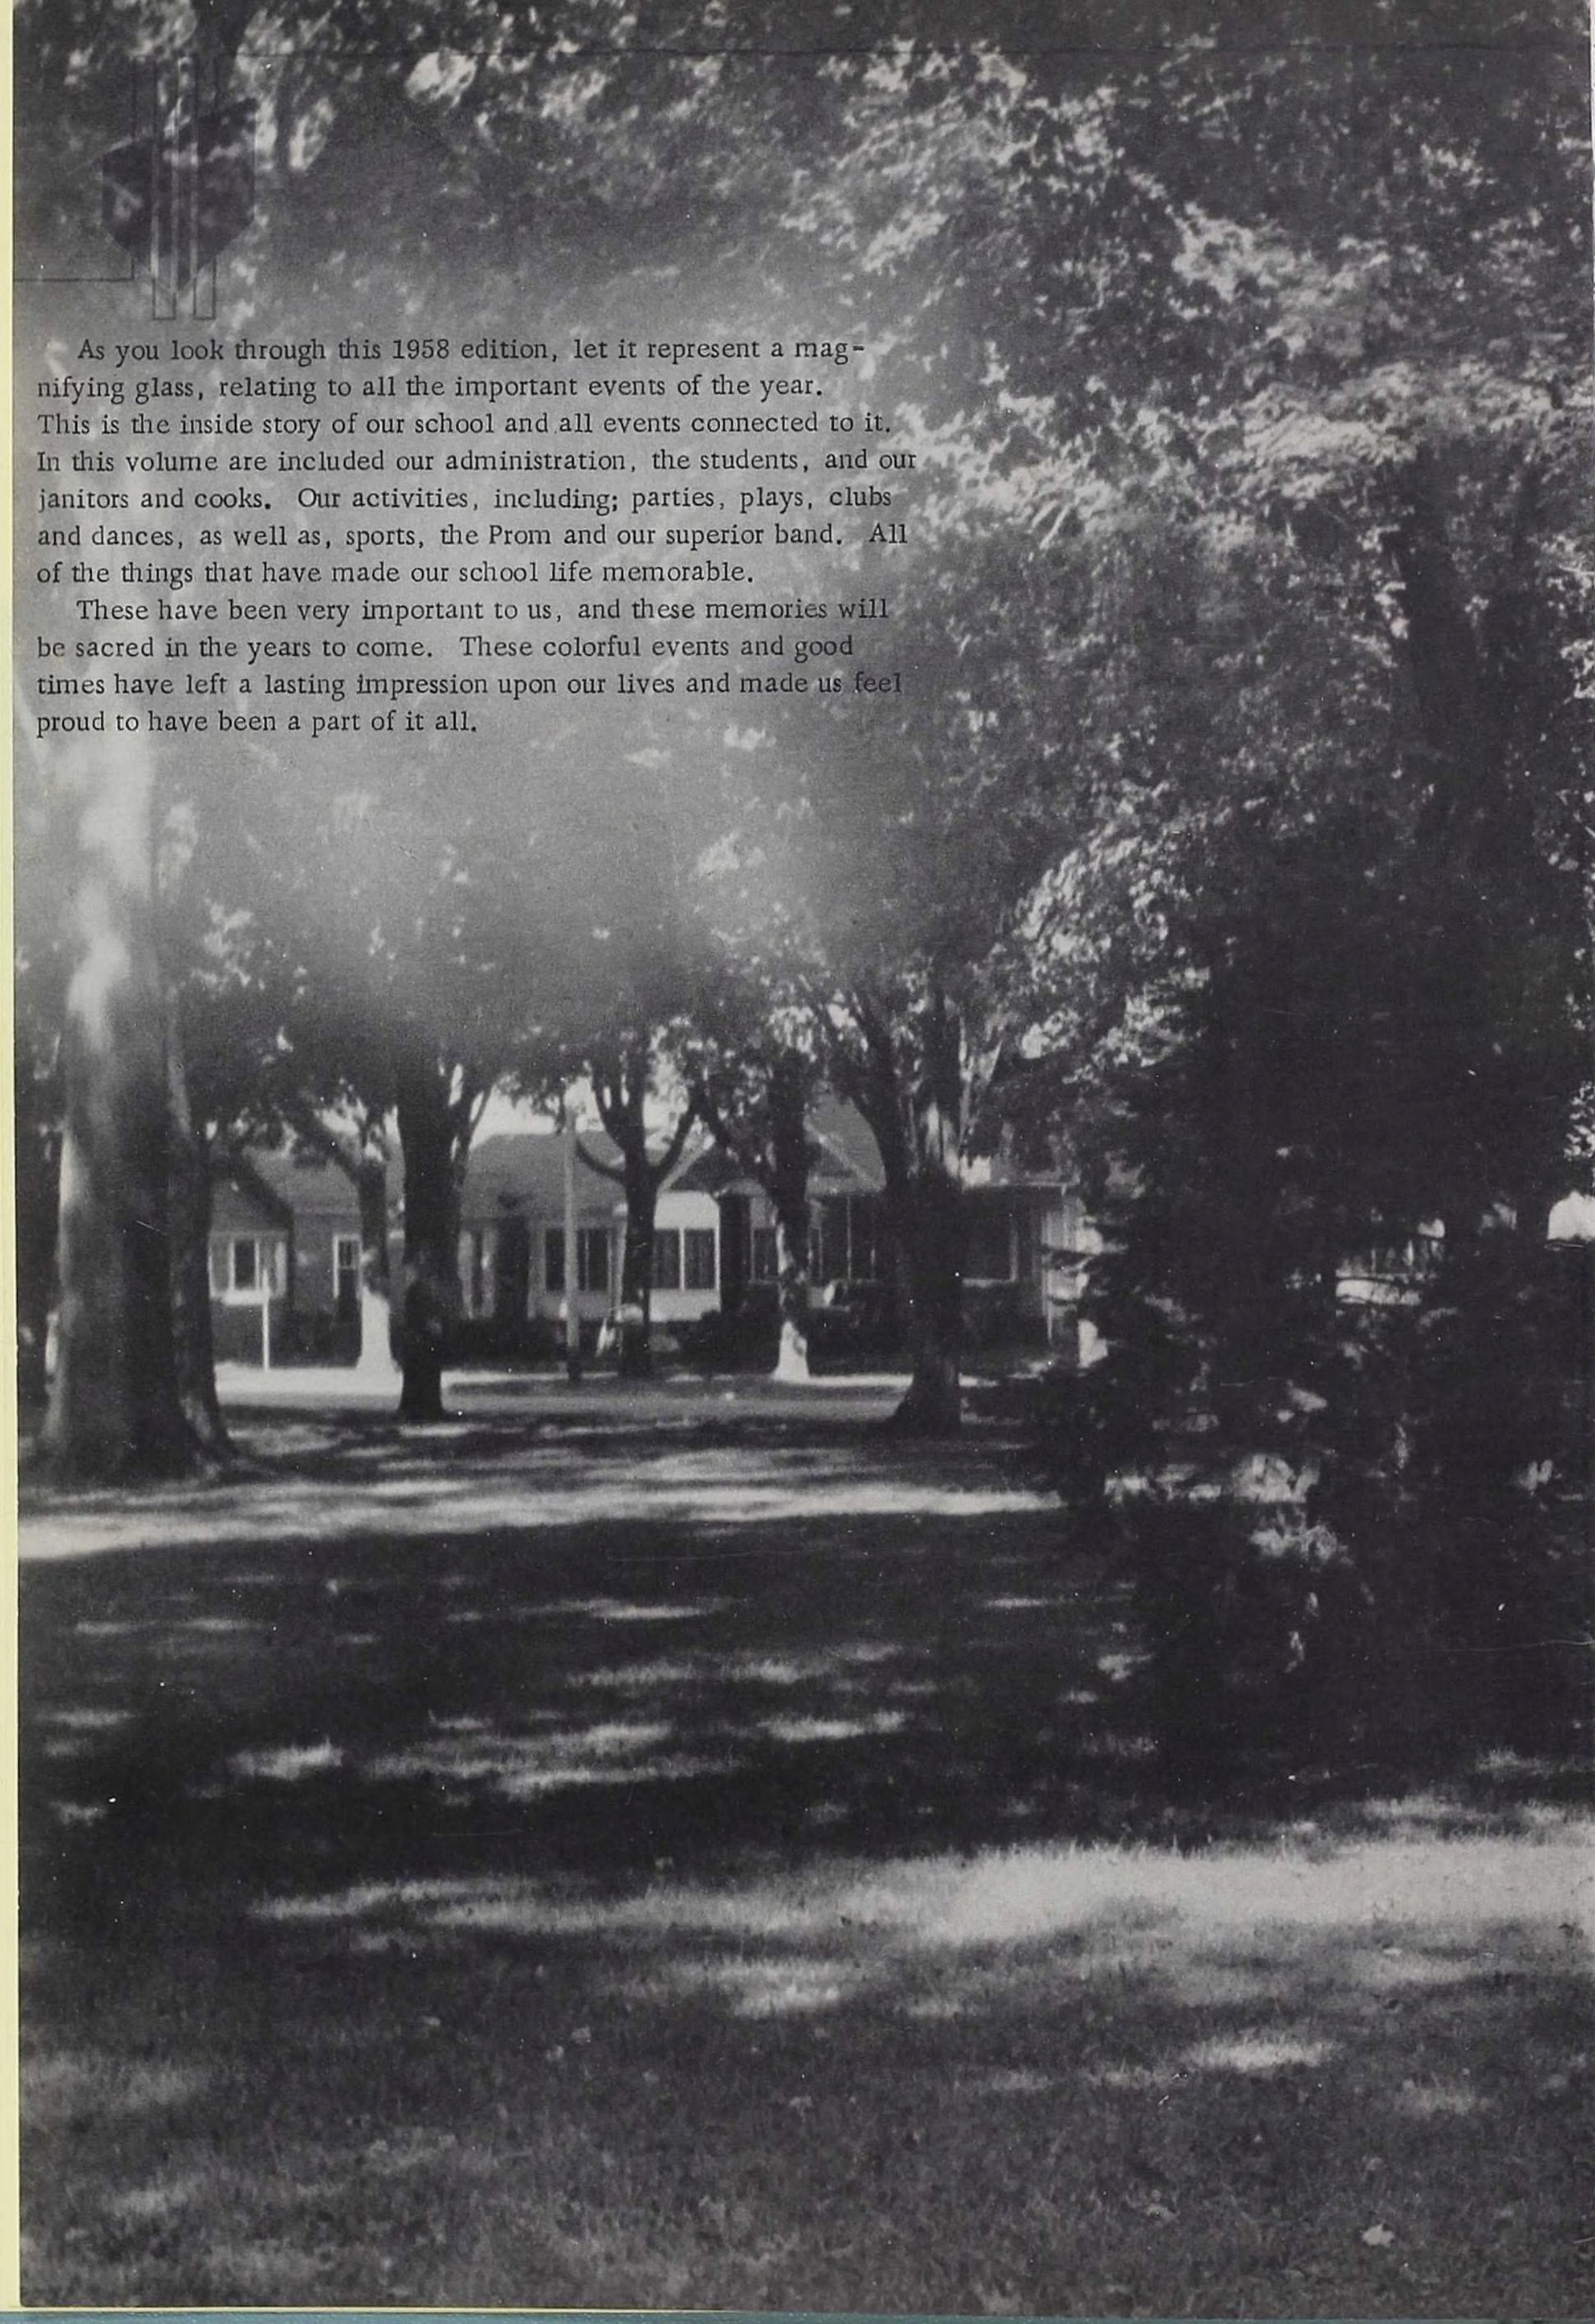

New Carlisle High School

New Carlisle, Indiana

Presents

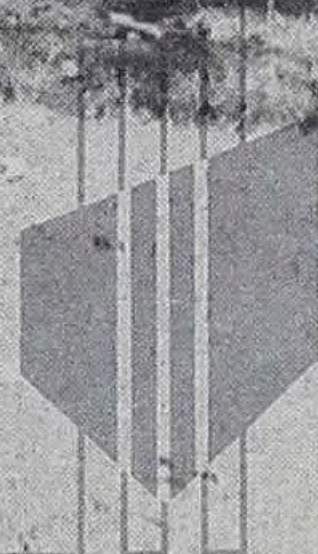

The Olive Branch

of 1958

A black and white photograph of a schoolyard. In the foreground, there is a grassy area with long shadows cast by trees. Several large, mature trees with dense foliage are scattered throughout the middle ground. In the background, a two-story school building with a central entrance and several windows is visible. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and nostalgic.

As you look through this 1958 edition, let it represent a magnifying glass, relating to all the important events of the year. This is the inside story of our school and all events connected to it. In this volume are included our administration, the students, and our janitors and cooks. Our activities, including; parties, plays, clubs and dances, as well as, sports, the Prom and our superior band. All of the things that have made our school life memorable.

These have been very important to us, and these memories will be sacred in the years to come. These colorful events and good times have left a lasting impression upon our lives and made us feel proud to have been a part of it all.

The 1958 Olive Branch was produced by the following people:

The inside story of the . . .

Administration

Mr. Donald Wilson, Sr., Trustee; Mrs. Dorothy Wiedlin, Secretary; Mr. Orrin Shaw, Assistant Principal; Mr. Harry Stoneburner, Principal.

As we peer through our magnifying glass we note the inside story of our administration. Though vitally important, we often failed to realize the worth of our dedicated administration. Mr. Donald Wilson, Sr., our trustee, capably chose our teachers as well as performing other innumerable duties.

Mr. Harry Stoneburner efficiently carried out his duties as principal of the high school.

As assistant principal, Mr. Orrin Shaw "filled the shoes" of principal upon the absence of Mr. Stoneburner and kept attendance records.

Mrs. Jack Wiedlin, as secretary of our school, kept accurate records, transacted business, and kept our school in "ship-shape".

Our administration is an inspiration and a guide. We depend on their leadership and stability. All that we gain and ever hope to gain, we owe to these devoted people. We are grateful and appreciative of their enthusiastic efforts.

The Inside Story of the . . .

Seniors

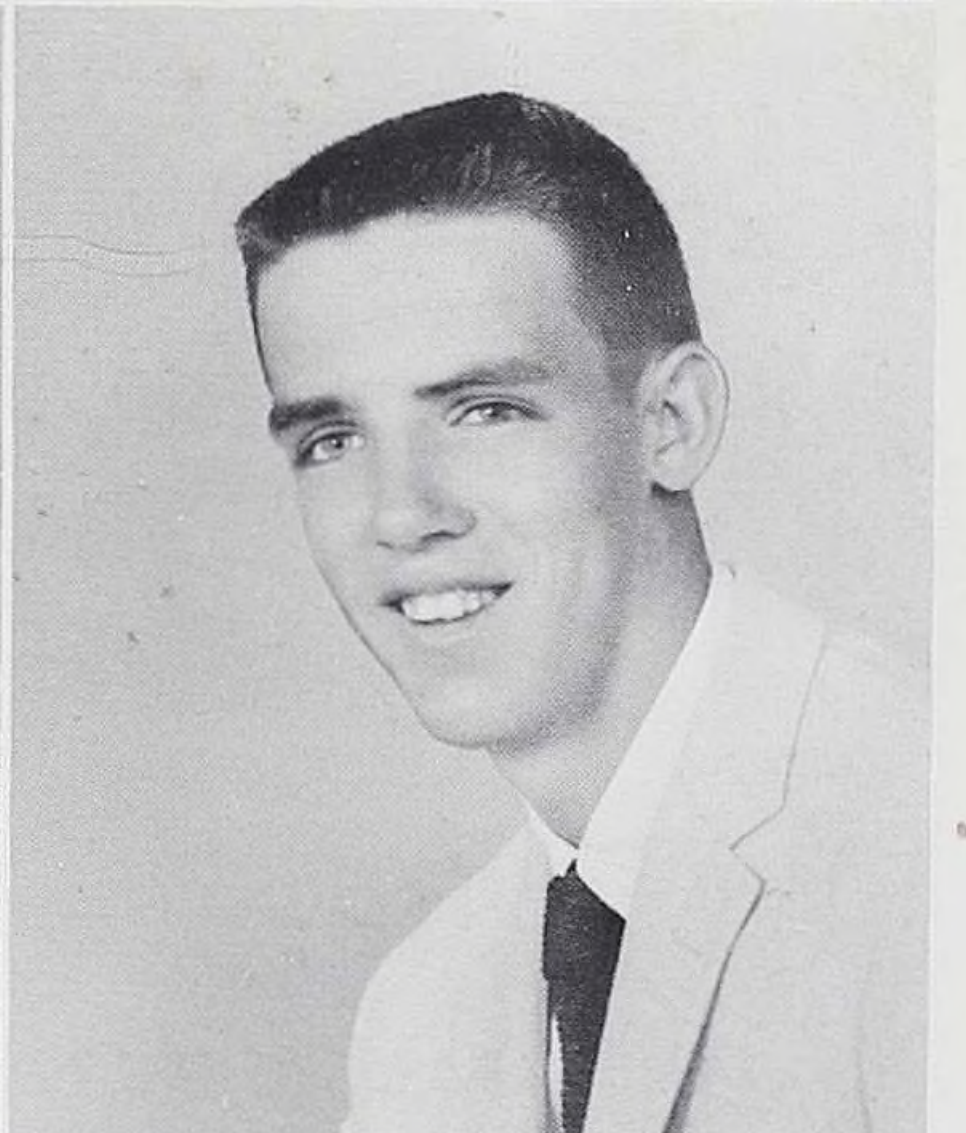

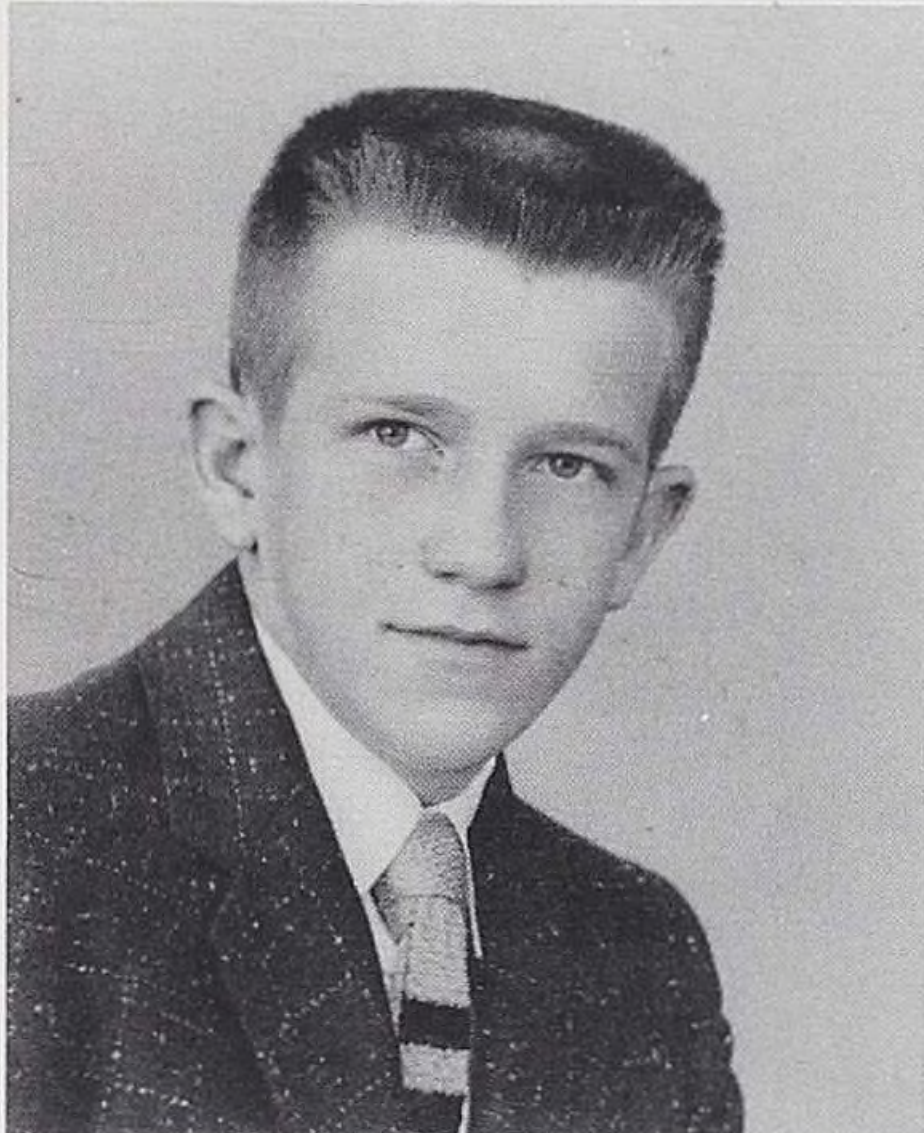

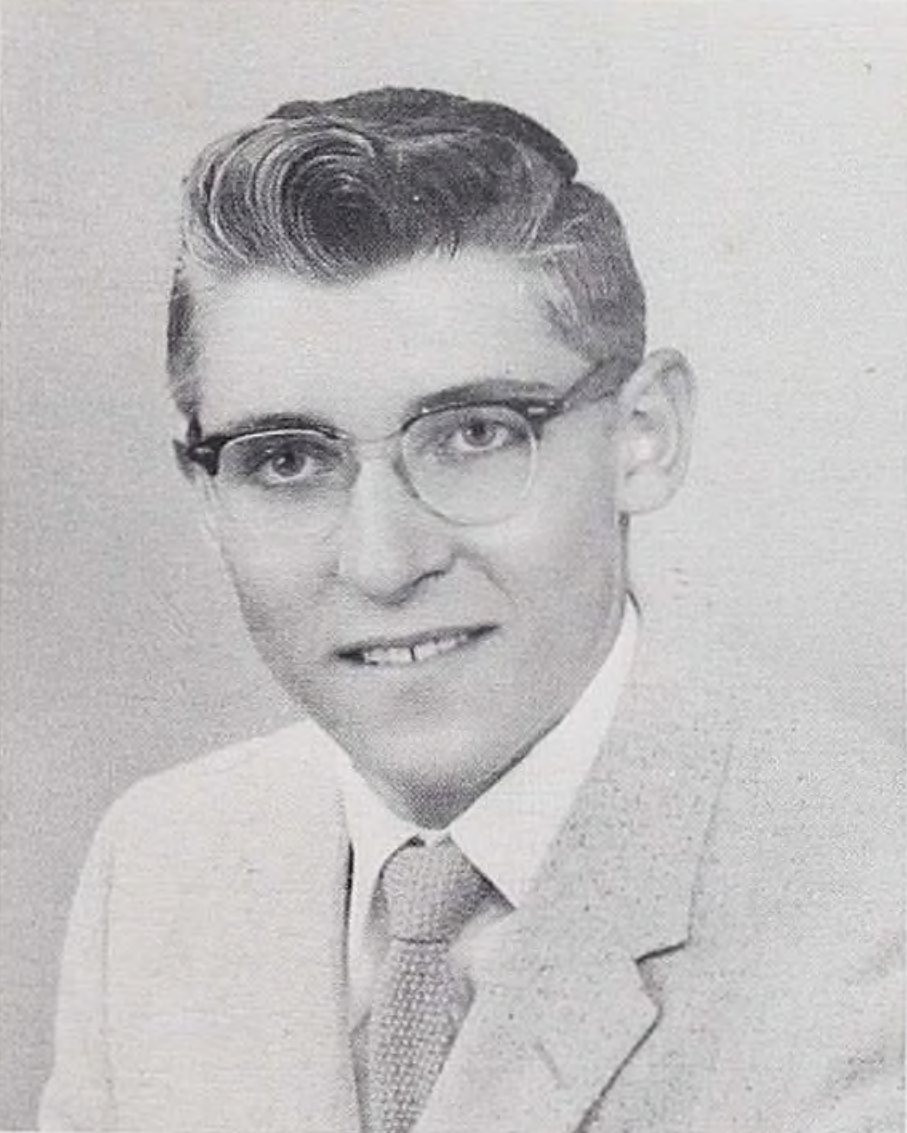

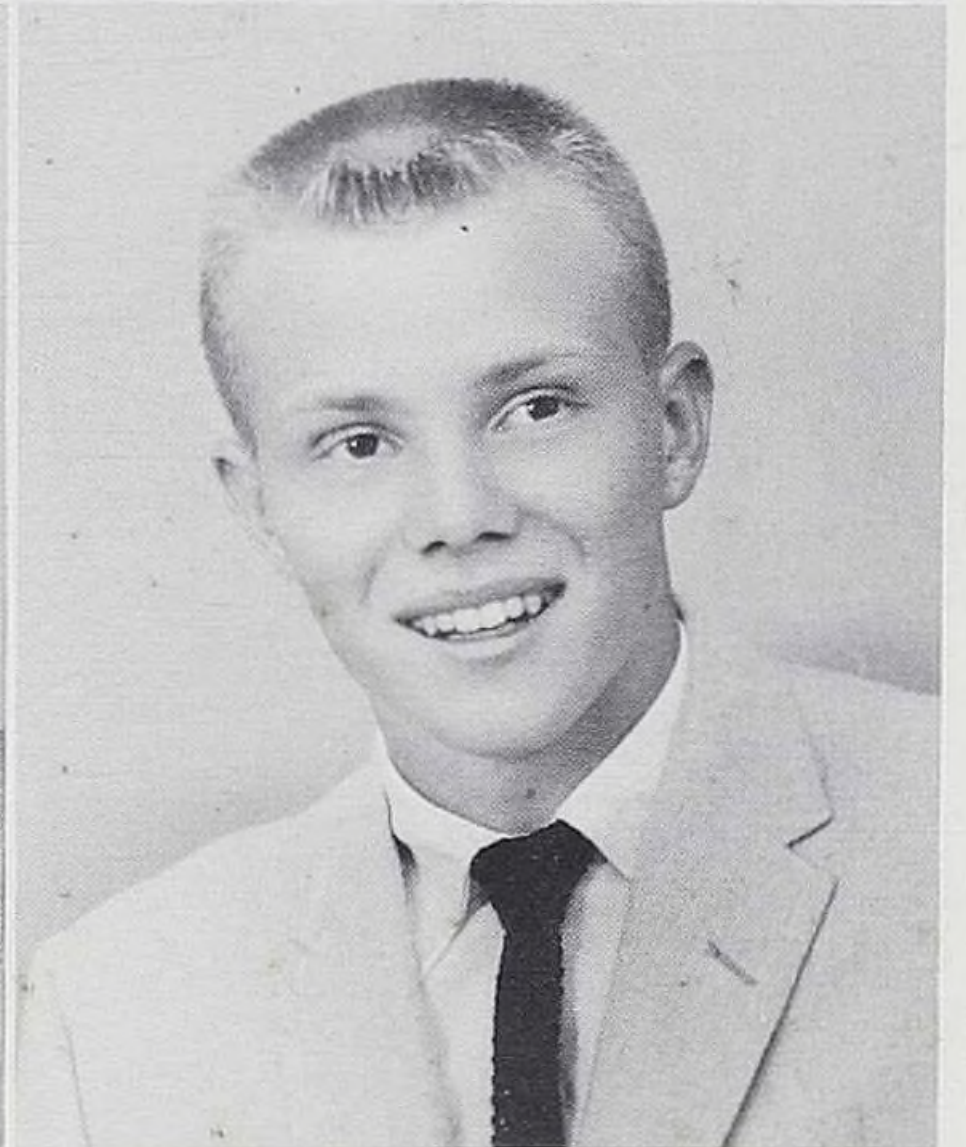

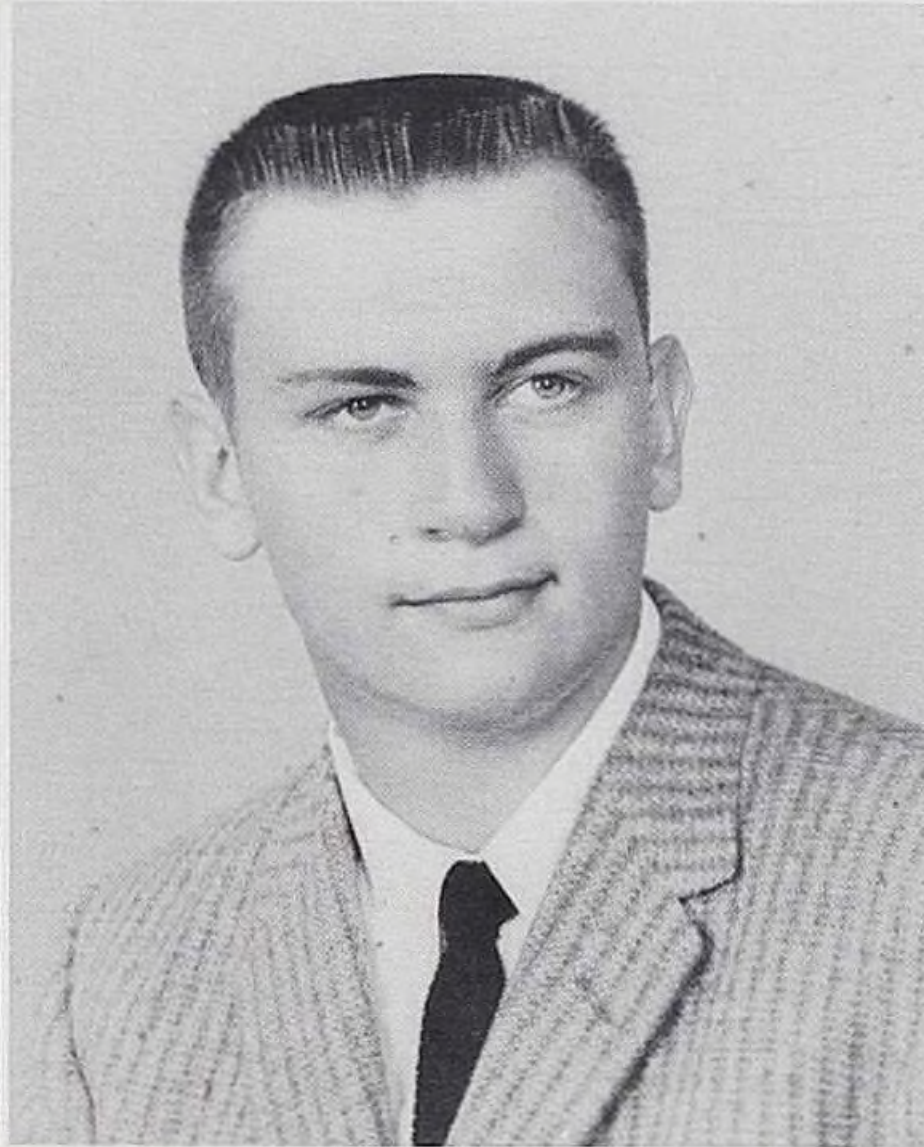

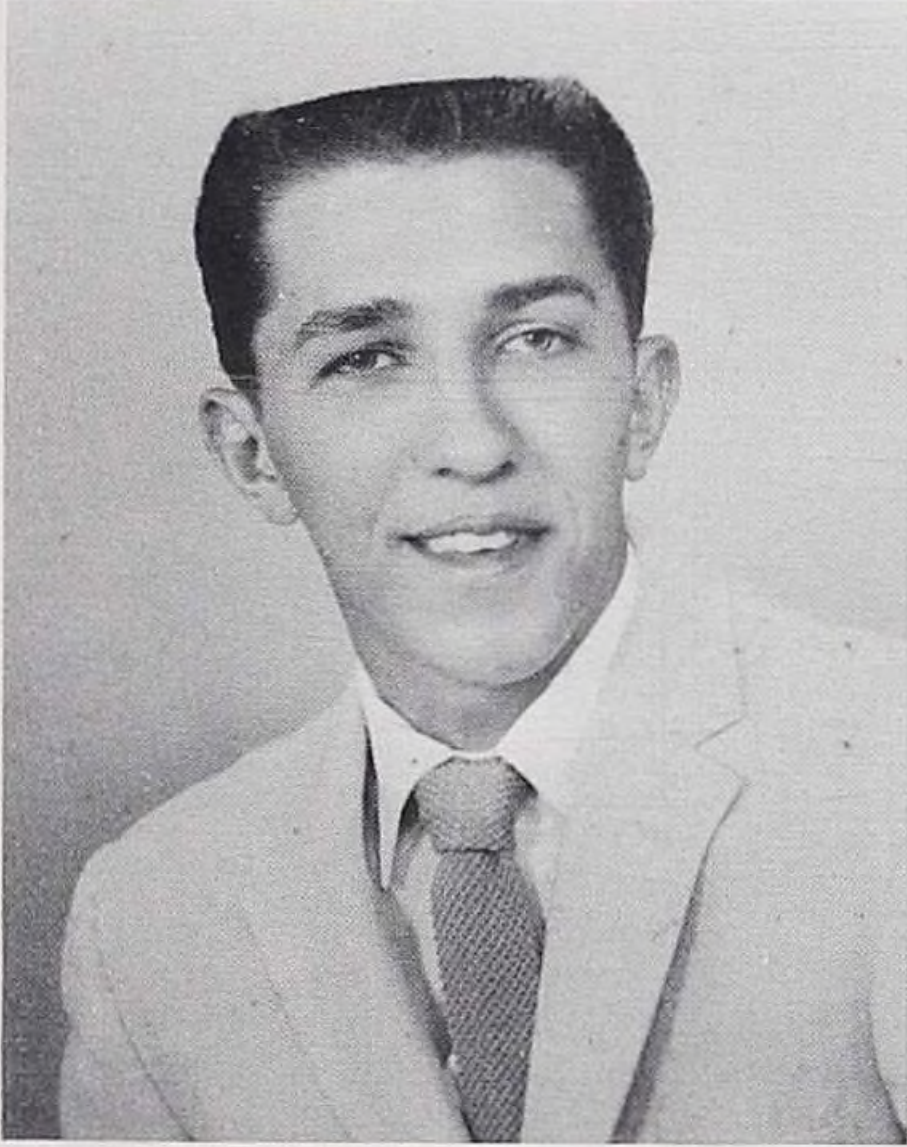

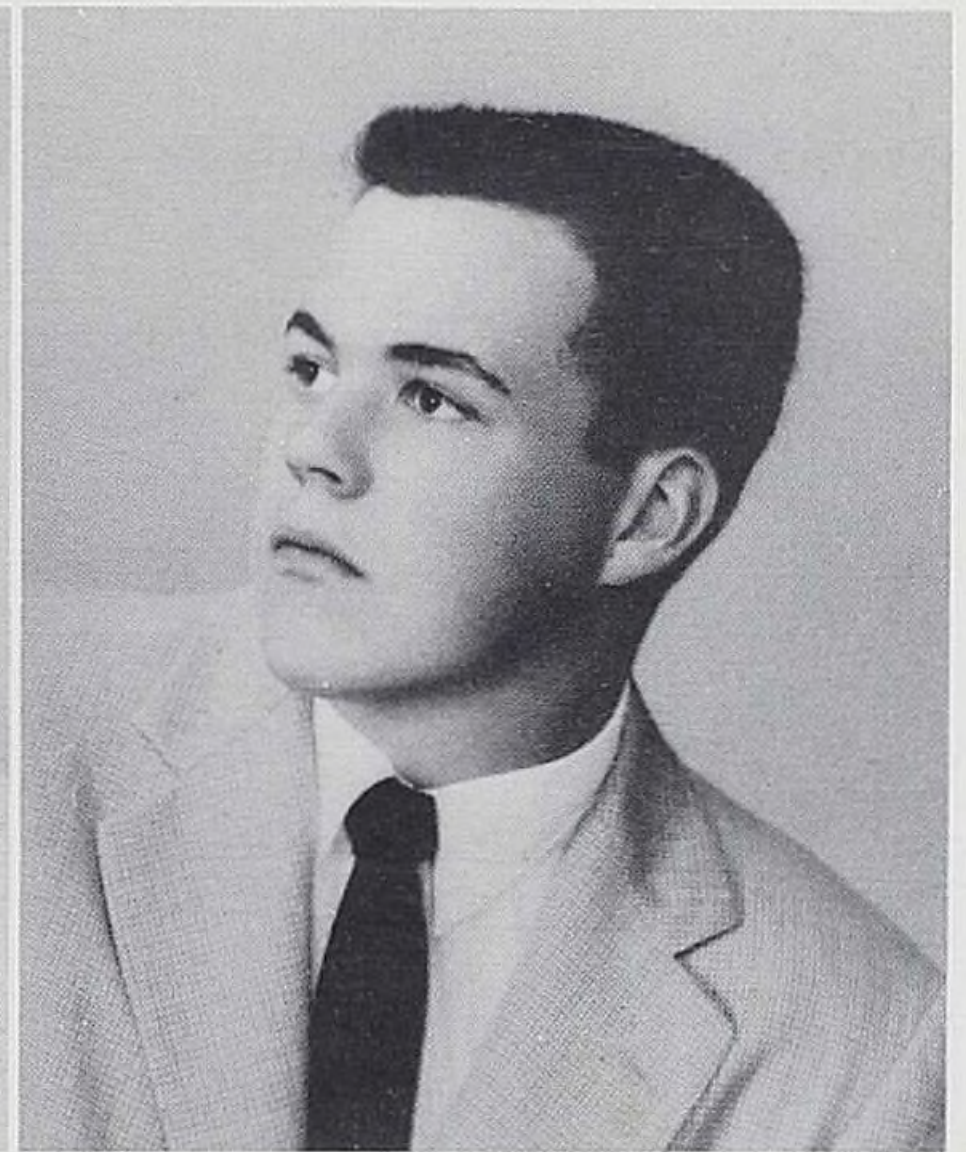

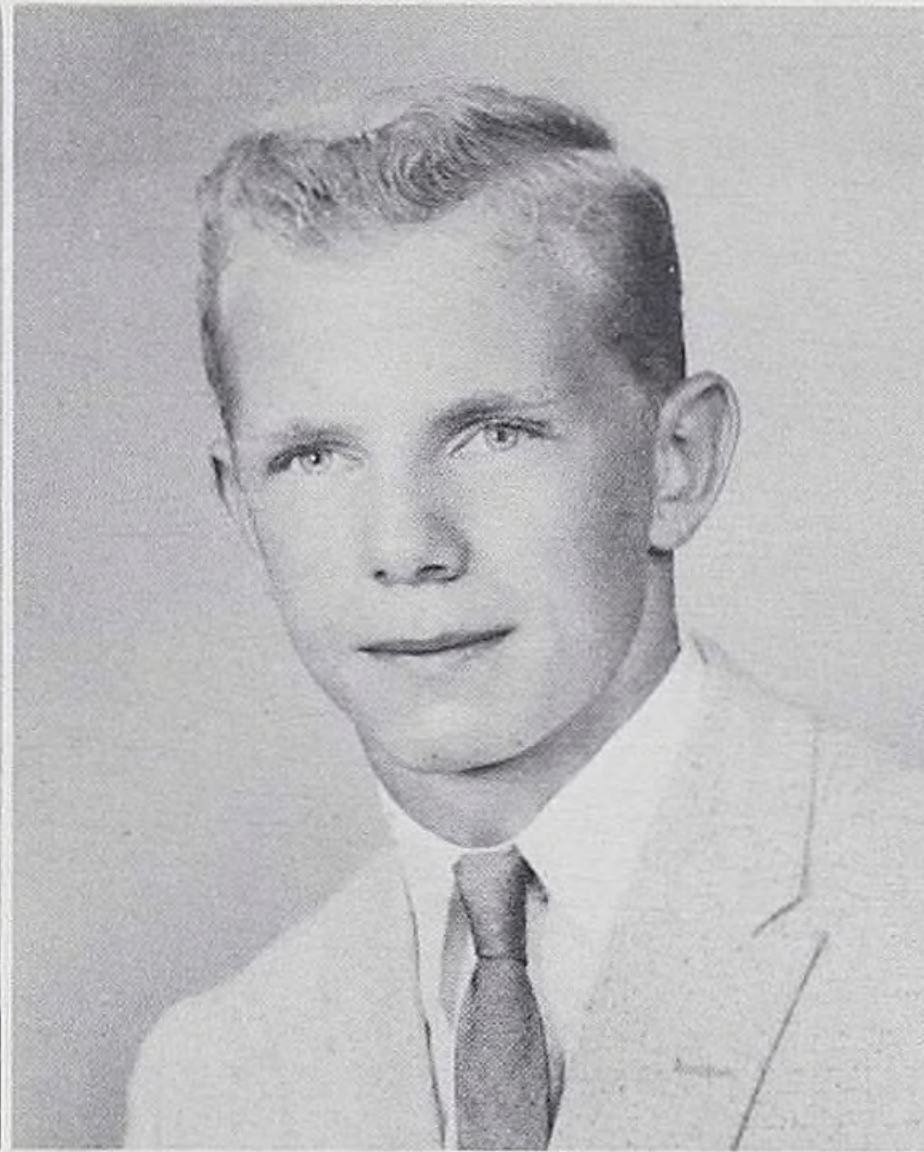

Senior class officers: Dick Taylor, president; Barbara Eberhart, secretary; Nancy Anderson, treasurer; and Jim Farkas, vice-president.

With a sigh of triumph, the senior class of 1958 commenced its final year.

Faced with the prospect of graduation, seniors began seriously planning their future. The possibilities of college, marriage, employment and specialized training loomed ahead. Scholarship tests and ability examinations were given to aid students in their decision.

Never were they so overwhelmed by the scholastic to overlook the extracurricular. Aided by Mr. Stutsman, Mrs. Holley, and Mr. Calhoun, the senior square dance, skip day, class night, Baccalaureate, and Commencement completed the year.

Looking back, it seemed a long while. Looking forward, it was only a shadow of time.

Underclassmen

CLASS OFFICERS: Butch O'Shea, Vice-President; Gloria Roloff, Treasurer; Benny Bromley, President; Janice Davis, Secretary.

Class

A very busy and active social life summed up the junior year. At the top of the social ladder was the class party, a semi-formal affair which was held in the gym. To earn revenue a basketball throw was sponsored at the Halloween Festival. The class rings arrived and everyone was proud to display them. The most gala event of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom, was held at the Knights of Columbus.

The class of 1959 was under the sponsorship of Beverly Boigegrain, Ruth Crouch, Darle Pfeiffer and Blaine Gamble.

CLASS OFFICERS: George DeMeyers, President; Kay Cooper, Secretary; George Jackson, Vice-President; Mike Eberhart, Treasurer.

"Magazines, anyone?" was the theme of the sophomore year. Under the guidance of Phil Clendenen, business manager, the sophomores broke all previous magazine sales records netting $800 profit.

With great anticipation the class awaited the arrival of their dark brown class jackets which to everyone's surprise turned out to be rust brown.

The class parties were beyond description.

The class chose Gerri Gromski and Skip Budny as their representatives at the annual Halloween Festival.

The fruits of this year will be seen in forthcoming activities.

CLASS OFFICERS: Ronnie Massey, President; Charles LaFree, Vice-President; Donnie Bandy, Secretary; Sandra Lewis, Treasurer.

The class of 1961 began the four-year climb with the election of class officers, the small body of girls and boys who were carrying on the class business for 1957 and 1958.

Our Halloween Festival candidates for king and queen were Nancy Gondek and Bob Bromley. The money making project which the freshman class sponsored that same evening was a cake raffle. We were very fortunate as our cake raffle was a big success.

The freshman class party was the big event of our school year.

The Inside Story of the . . .

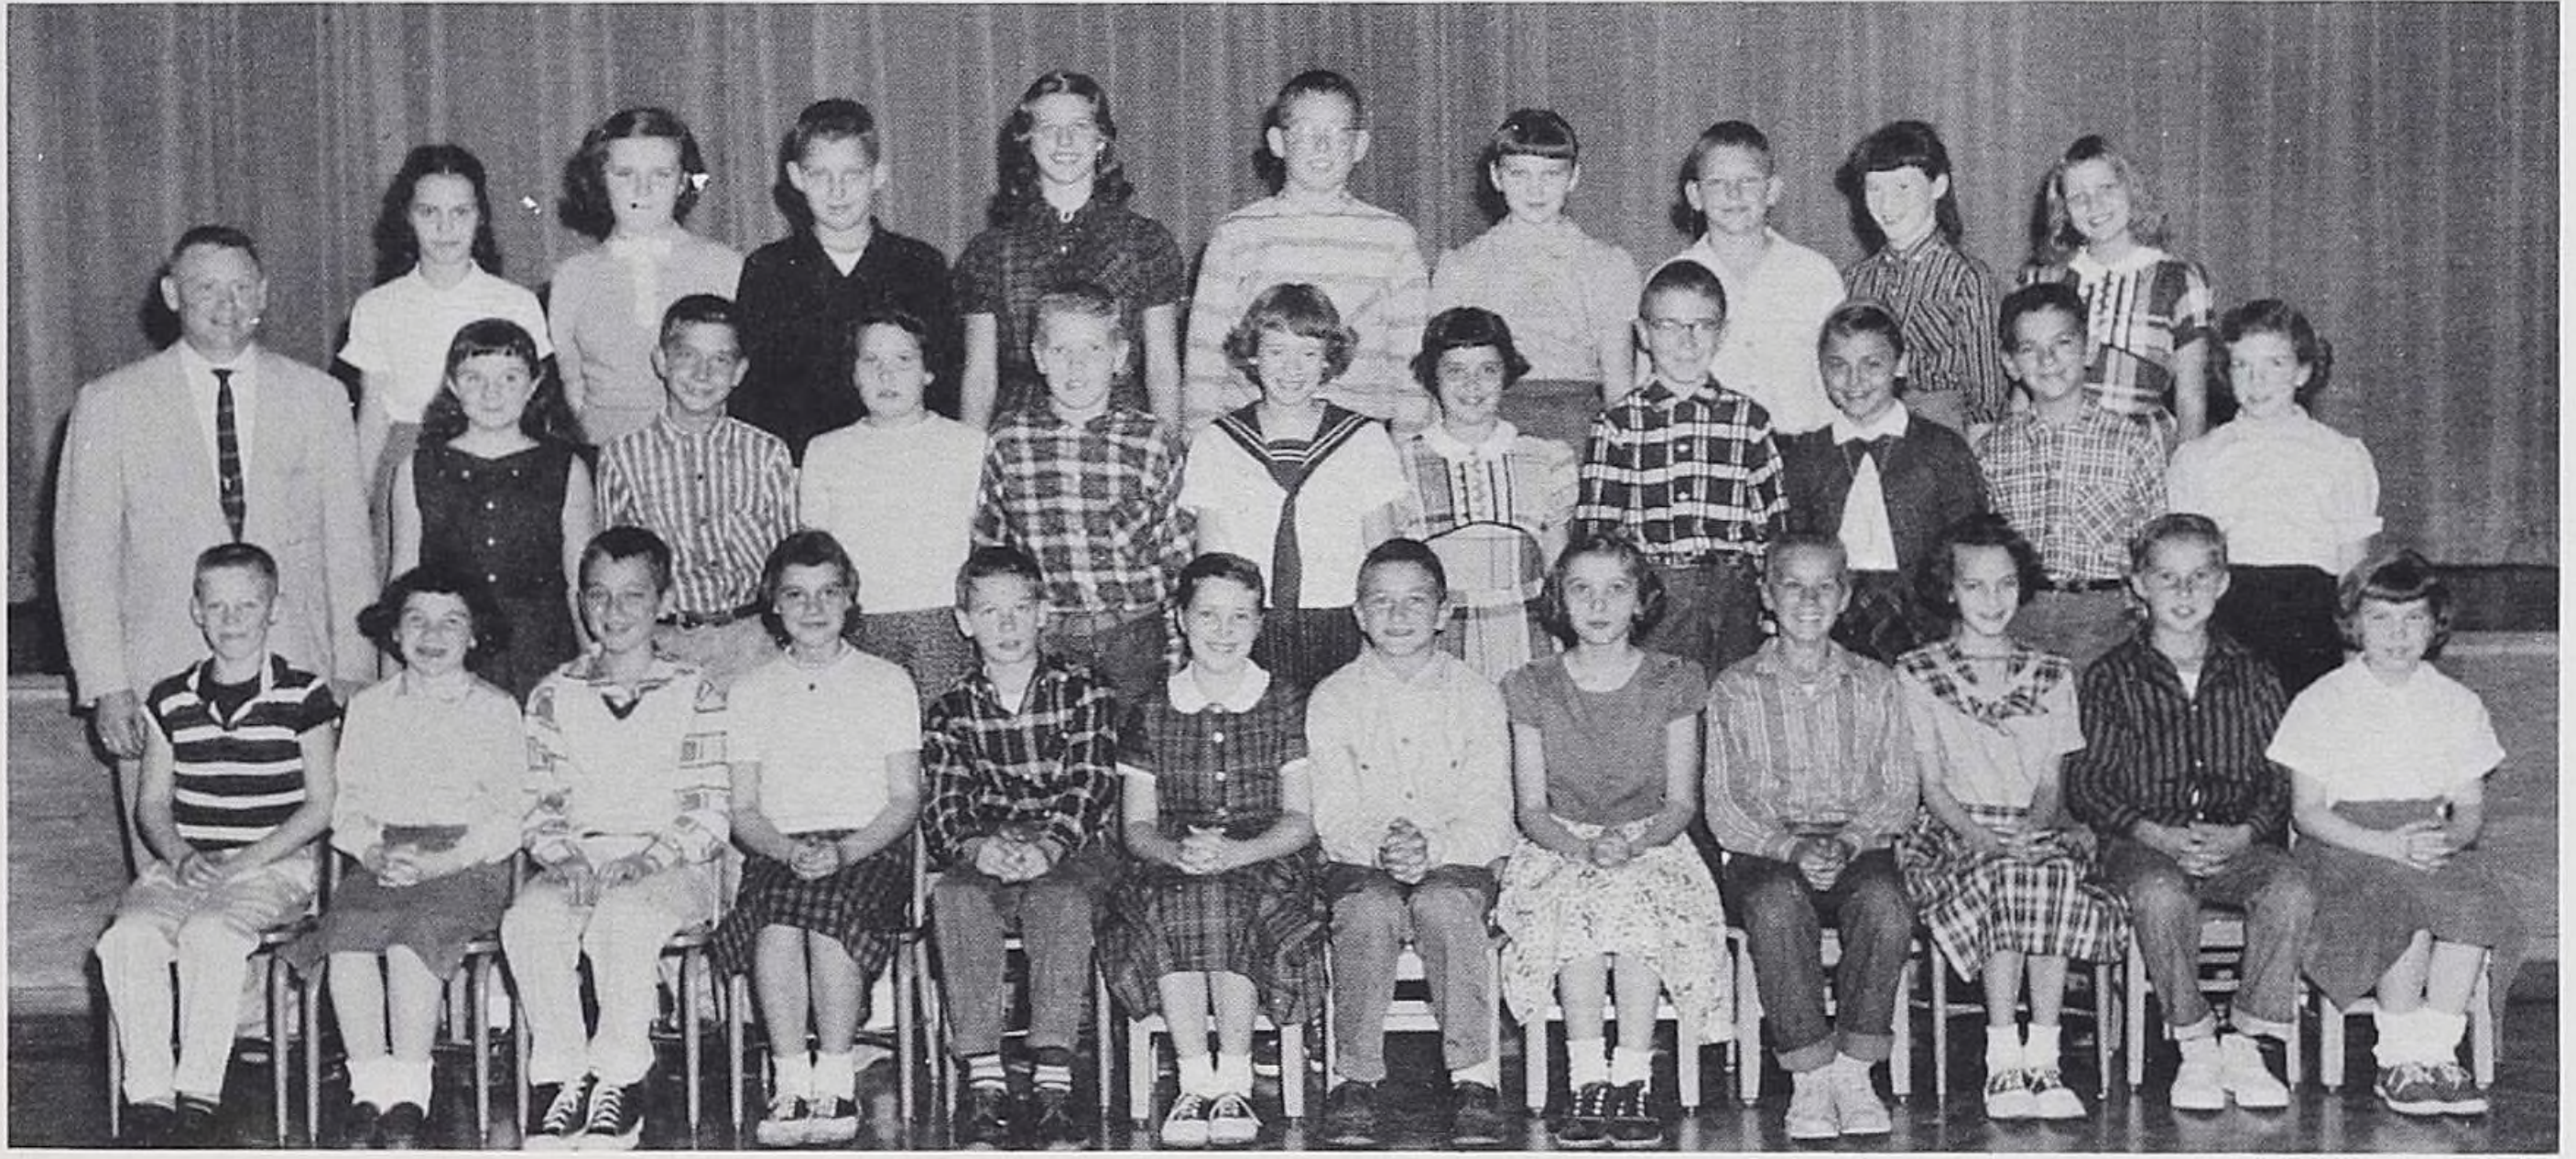

Elementary

Mrs. George Moore, Secretary and Homer E. Stomm, Principal.

Mr. Homer Stomm efficiently carried out his duties as principal of the Elementary School. For the third consecutive year with the capable assistance of Mrs. George Moore, Secretary, they kept the Elementary School ship-shape. Among his many duties were administration and general supervision from janitors through the cafeteria. Office work included; records, reports, finances and the book rental system. Cadet teaching was also sponsored by Mr. Stomm. Our hats are off to the principal and the elementary school administration for their efforts.

The Inside Story of the . . .

Curricula

Business Education

This typewriter is constantly making mistakes.

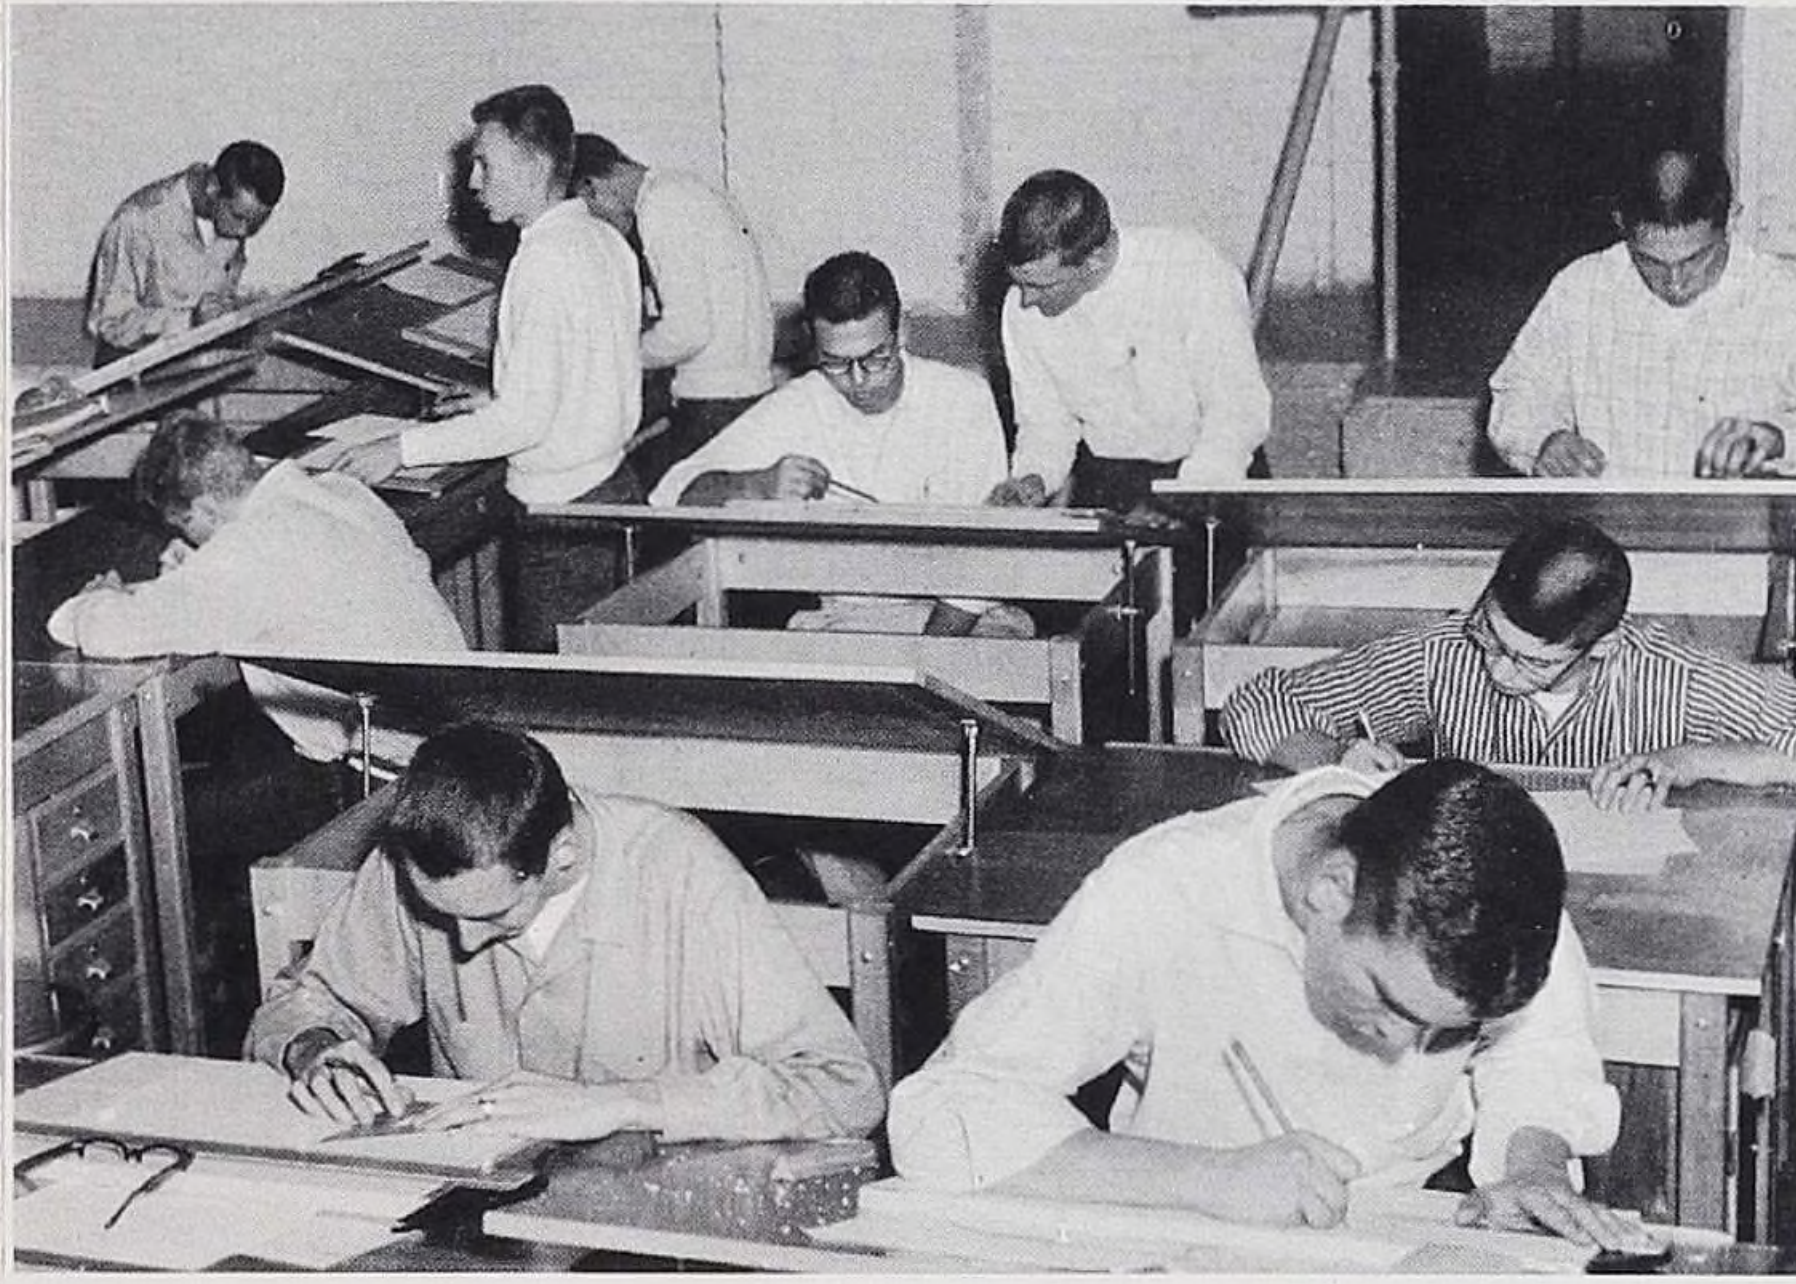

Approximately 50 per cent of the high school enrollment took one or more of the classes available to them in business education department of New Carlisle. The students took such subjects as typing I and II, shorthand I or II, bookkeeping, general business, business law, and personal typing. These courses were instructed by Orrin Shaw, Robert Stotts, and Max Haag.

The purposes of this department have been to give all students who enrolled in the basic courses a fundamental knowledge of business and to provide a degree of vocational competency for those who may earn their livelihood by application of these courses.

Now, Rudy, you know 2 and 2 are 4!

Industrial Arts

Dig those crazy lines!

"So this is a T square! Numerous exclamations of this nature heralded the addition of mechanical drawing to the high school curriculum.

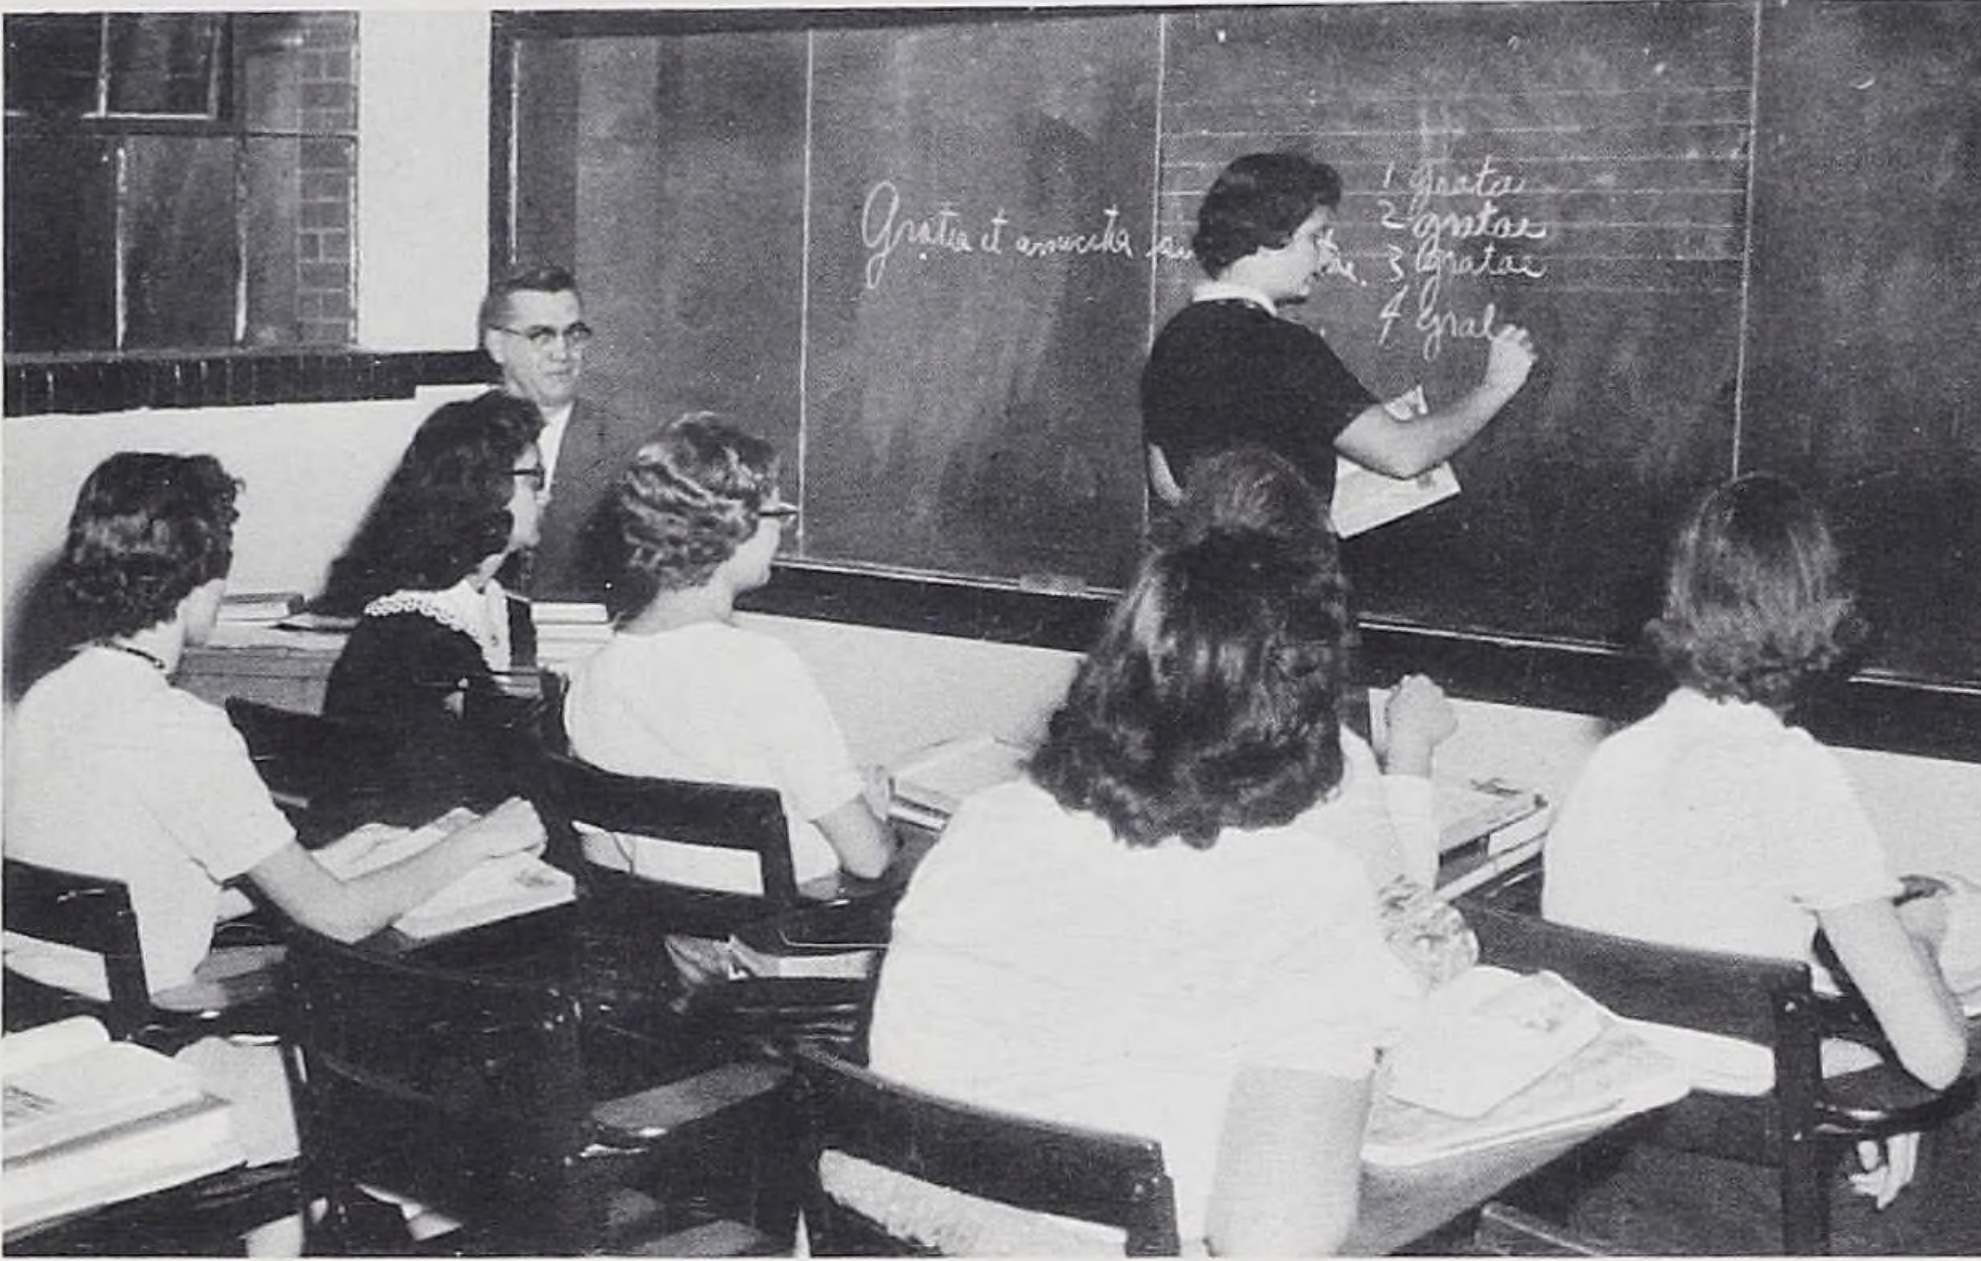

Mr. Sacks took the task of overseer of this class. The structural shapes they designed during the first semester were elementary and basic shapes. The second semester was carried on in a project basis. The students' industrious efforts advanced them considerably.

Mr. Sacks and Mr. Lynch instructed the shop and because of their perseverance and ingenuity those boys enrolled in shop turned in many well built projects from bookcases to lamps.

"Need a hand?"

Ancient Languages

Latin is a language as dead as dead can be. Latin killed the Romans, and now it's killing

"Veni; vidi; vici." (I came; I saw; I conquered.) An expression familiar to all graduate students, not only for its content, but because it reflected their feeling of satisfaction in accomplishing an art of the ancients.

These high school courses, which consist of Latin I and II, were taught with the intent those who might continue studying it for professional use and, meanwhile, cover it widely enough to give the students who would not take any advanced studies a diversified view for application in general use.

A background in Latin provided students with a better understanding of English usage, forms, and vocabulary. In addition to that, it gave them an opportunity to read the works of Virgil, Caesar, and miscellaneous authors, to obtain glimpses of Roman life and to compare civilizations.

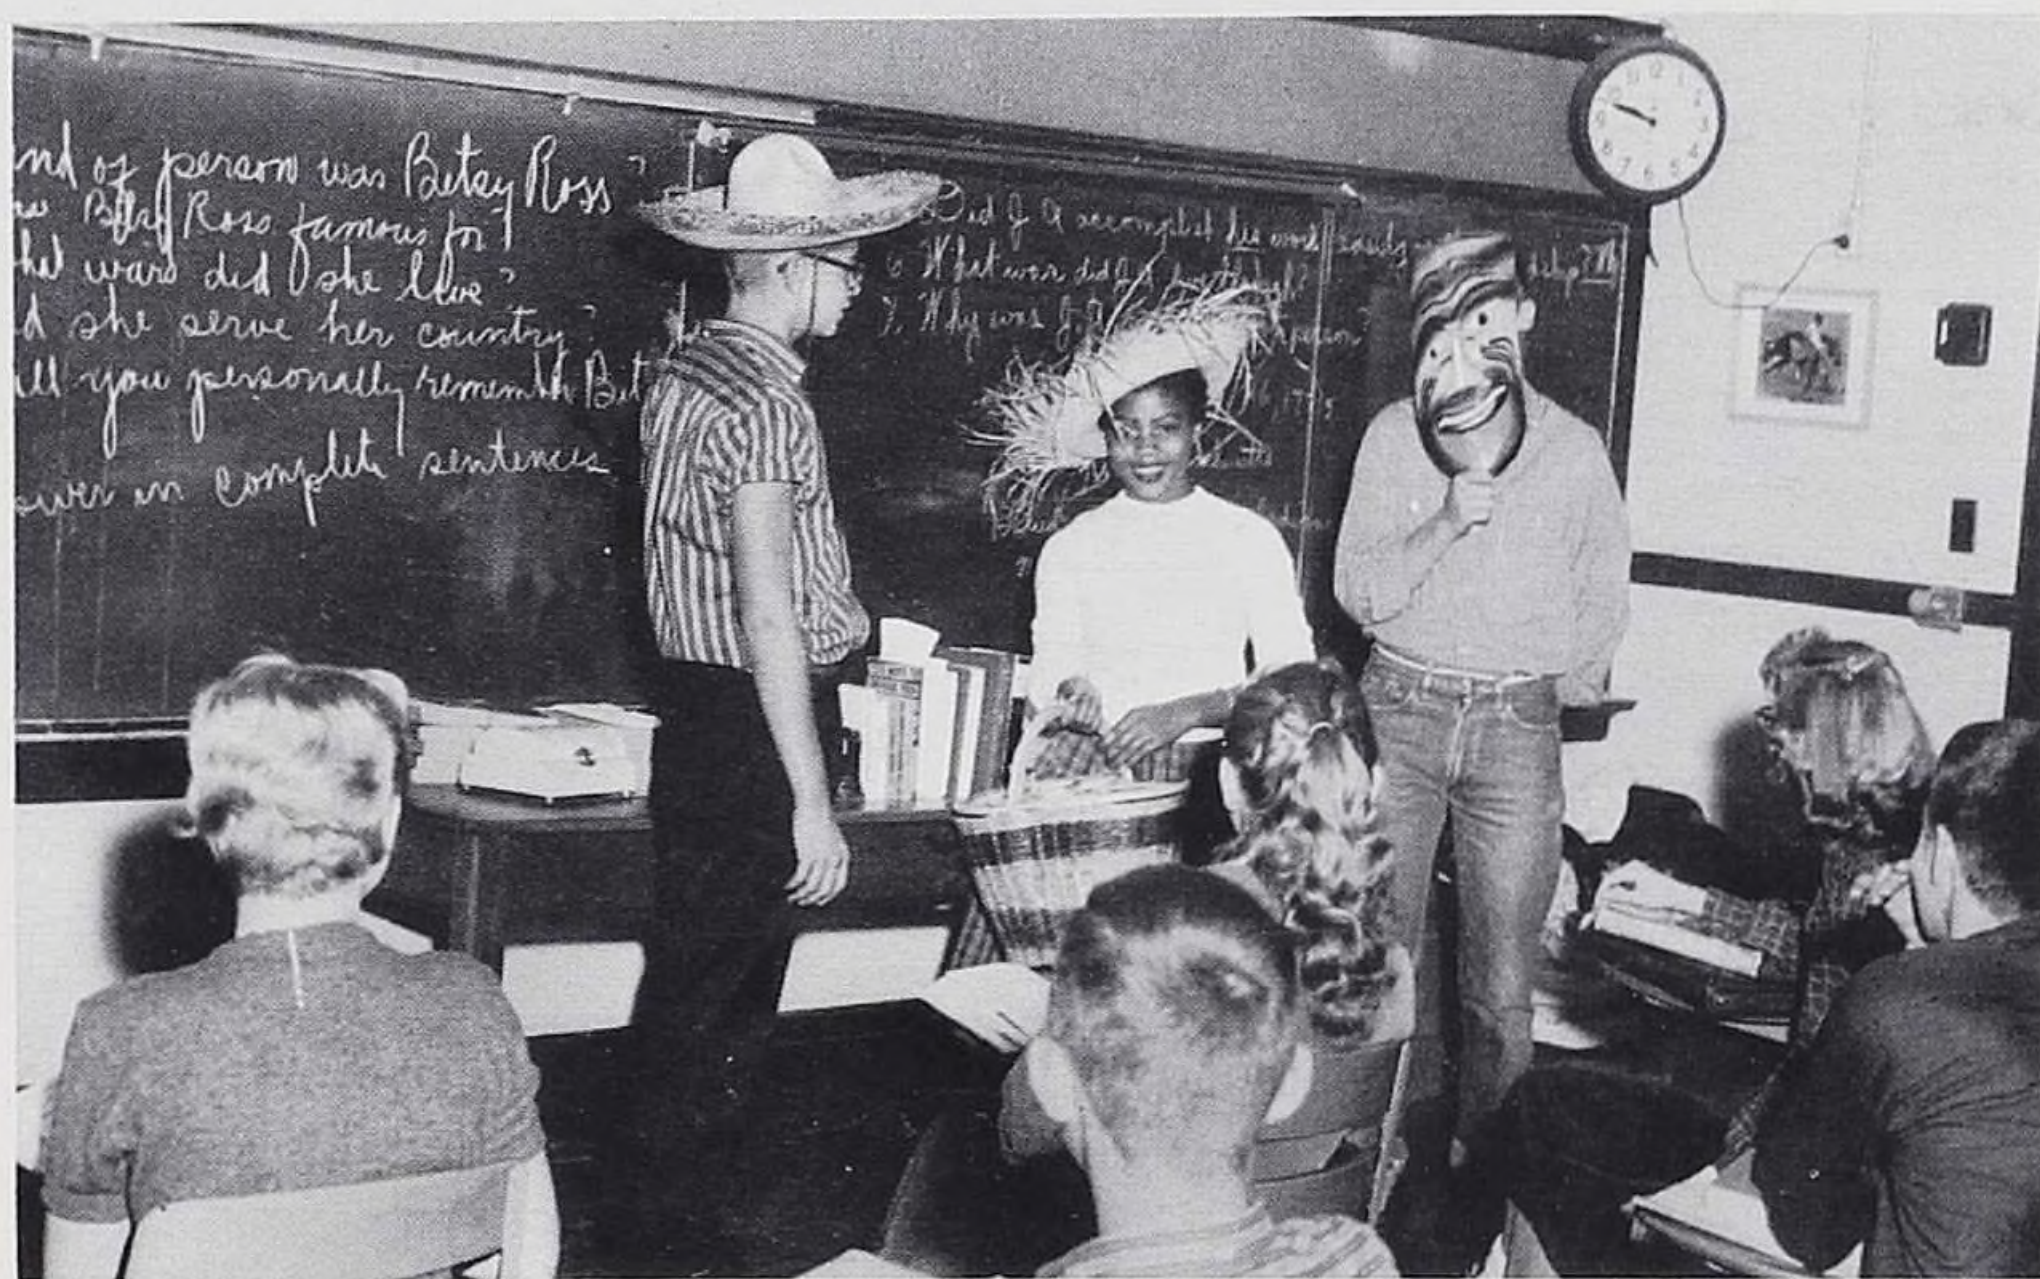

Mr. Cline Manges was the teacher who ably guided their studies.

"I've searched my mind, but I just can't see,
What in the world can that ending be."

Modern Languages

I beg your pardon, but what language is that in?

In the present world of speed and travel it has become progressively more essential to have a speaking, reading and writing knowledge of foreign languages. To meet that growing need New Carlisle High School offered courses in Spanish I and French I.

Mrs. Vera Holley taught these subjects not only to gain an adequate understanding of French and Spanish, but, also, to learn about the people and the countries in which they were spoken.

To aid the students' progress and to increase their interest in modern languages, many constructive projects were undertaken. Among the most popular of these projects was writing to students in Spanish and French-speaking countries by respective language students. Conversational records helped with pronunciation, while travelogues and educational films brought the countries and people which were studied closer to reality.

The final end of these subjects and projects was to bring about better international understanding.

"Those faraway places with the strange sounding names."

Home Economics

All the modern inconveniences.

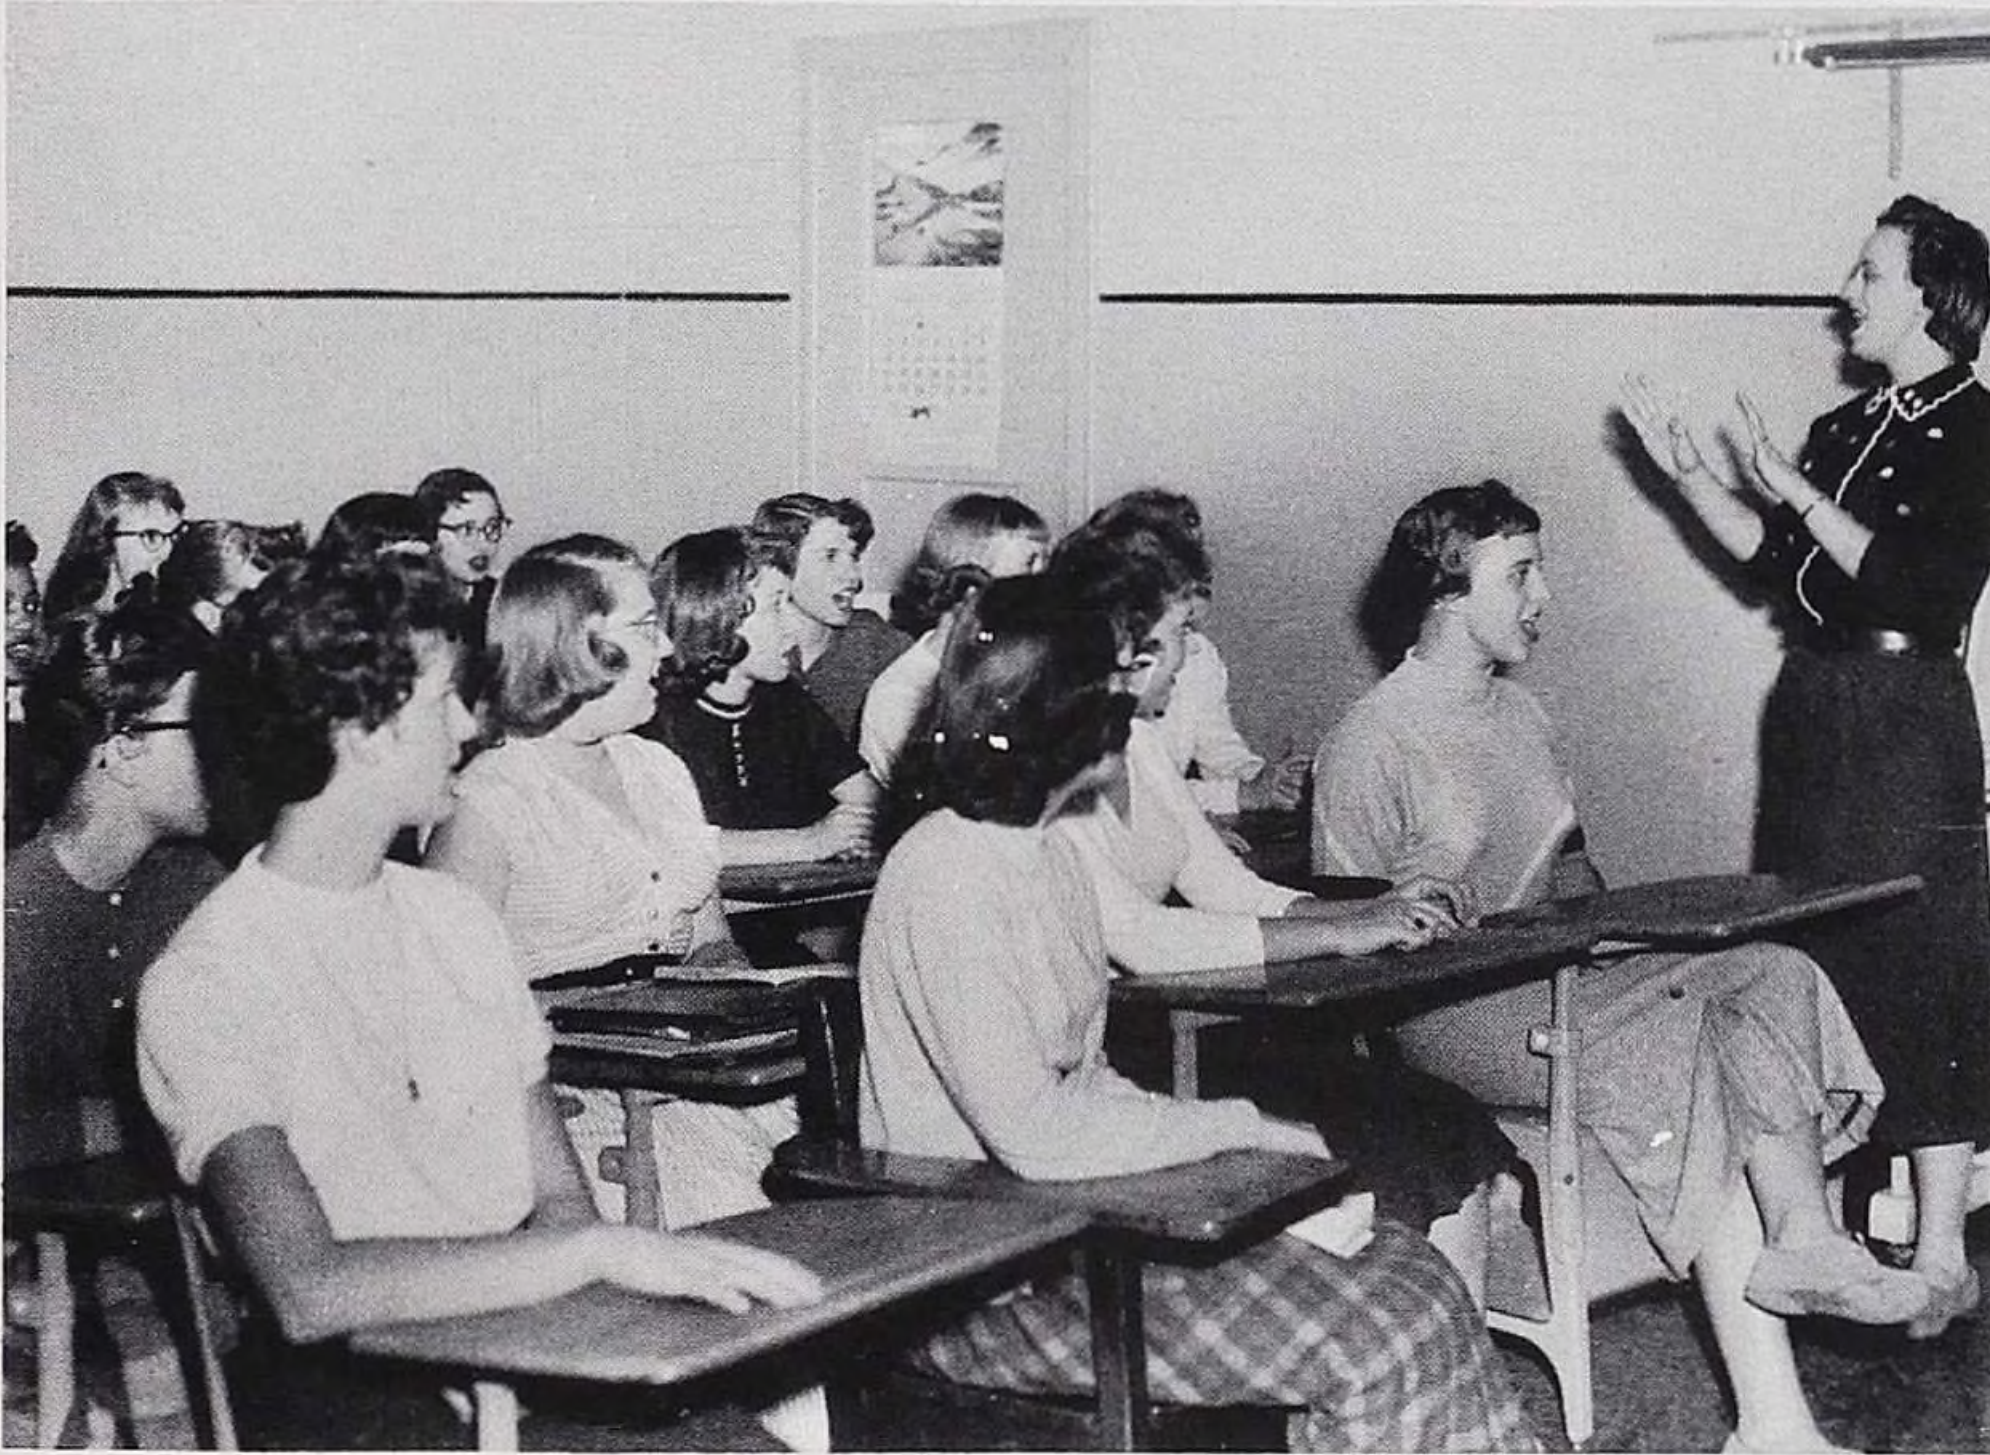

I'm in stitches!

Home economics has been one of the most popular and beneficial subjects taught to girls in high school. It covers the topics of foods, clothing, meal planning and preparation, child care and home nursing, marriage relations, interior decorating and vocations. Home economics is connected with all future domestic and social activities, as well as careers for many girls, and in general everyday living.

This subject has been taught by Frances Johnson and Patricia Lynch whose vast experience proved invaluable to us.

Fine Arts

If da Vinci could only see us now!

Hi Fi in action.

From finger painting to soap sculpture New Carlisle's art classes were building an active interest and appreciation for the finer things in life. Miss Marietta Coble, the art instructor taught elementary and advanced art courses.

"Say it with music," might well be the theme of the music department. The choir classes were directed by Helen Myers and Donna Mathews, and the band classes by David Mathews. New Carlisle's music department received widespread recognition for its excellence in performance.

English and Literature

The flowers of literature and the thorns of English beset every student for three of his high school years. The classic works of Poe, Emerson, Shakespeare, Longfellow, Dickens, Homer, and other masters, as well as, English grammar, vocabulary, speech, composition, senior English, and public speaking were taught by Beverly Boigegrain, Mary Dunn, Vera Holley, Horace Isaacs, Cline Manges and Joseph Shepherd.

From the freshman year through the junior, teachers strove to teach basic and progressively more advanced courses in the English language. Not only was structure and form studied, but emphasis was placed on correct everyday speech which is so necessary in our continually advancing society.

In preparation for college and public life, senior English and public speaking were offered.

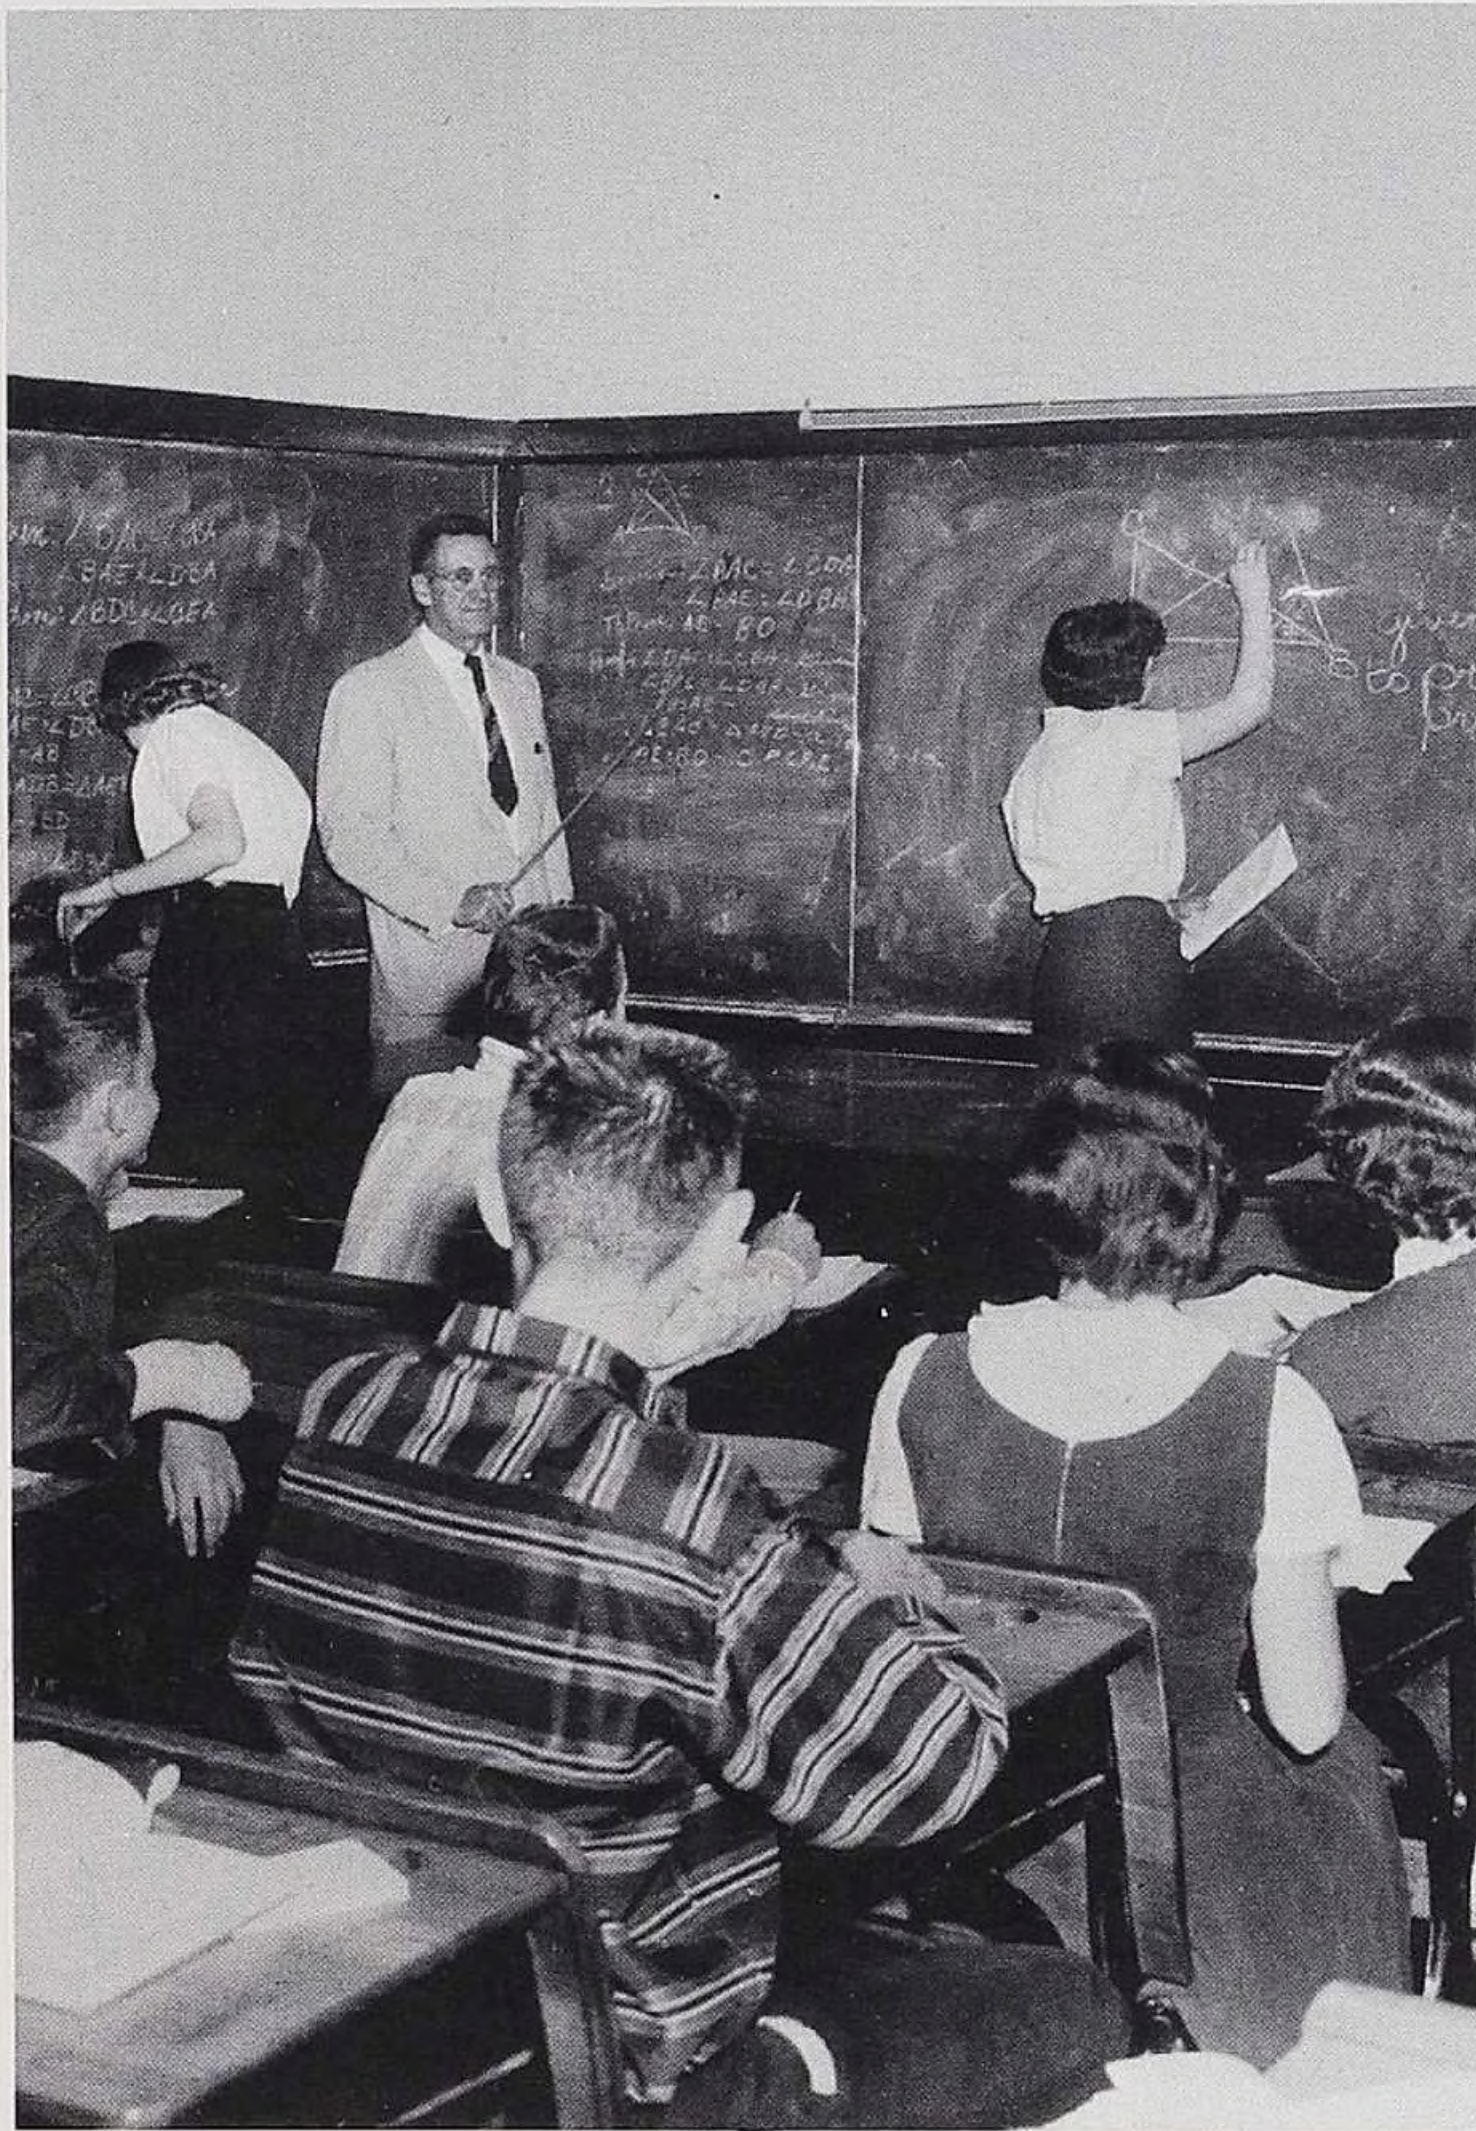

The courses in literature helped to acquaint students with good reading material. An appreciation for fine literature is an asset to all individuals.

Subjective complement: apple polishing.

"I challenge your source of information, Mr. Filchak!"

Mathematics

The mathematics department of New Carlisle was staffed by Darle Pfeiffer, Ruth Crouch, LeRoy Stutsman, and Amzie Miller.

The courses included in this vital department were high school mathematics, a review of basic arithmetic for practical use; algebra I, a study of equations; advanced algebra, a continuation of first year algebra; plane geometry, a study of plane figures; solid geometry, a study of solid figures; and trigonometry, a course in which angles and trigonometric functions are studied.

Mathematic courses have been taught to develop in the student an accurate ability to use numbers in every day life. Also, it has been the foundation for careers in engineering, science, architecture, nursing, medicine, pharmacology, business and commerce, teaching, and many semiskilled occupations.

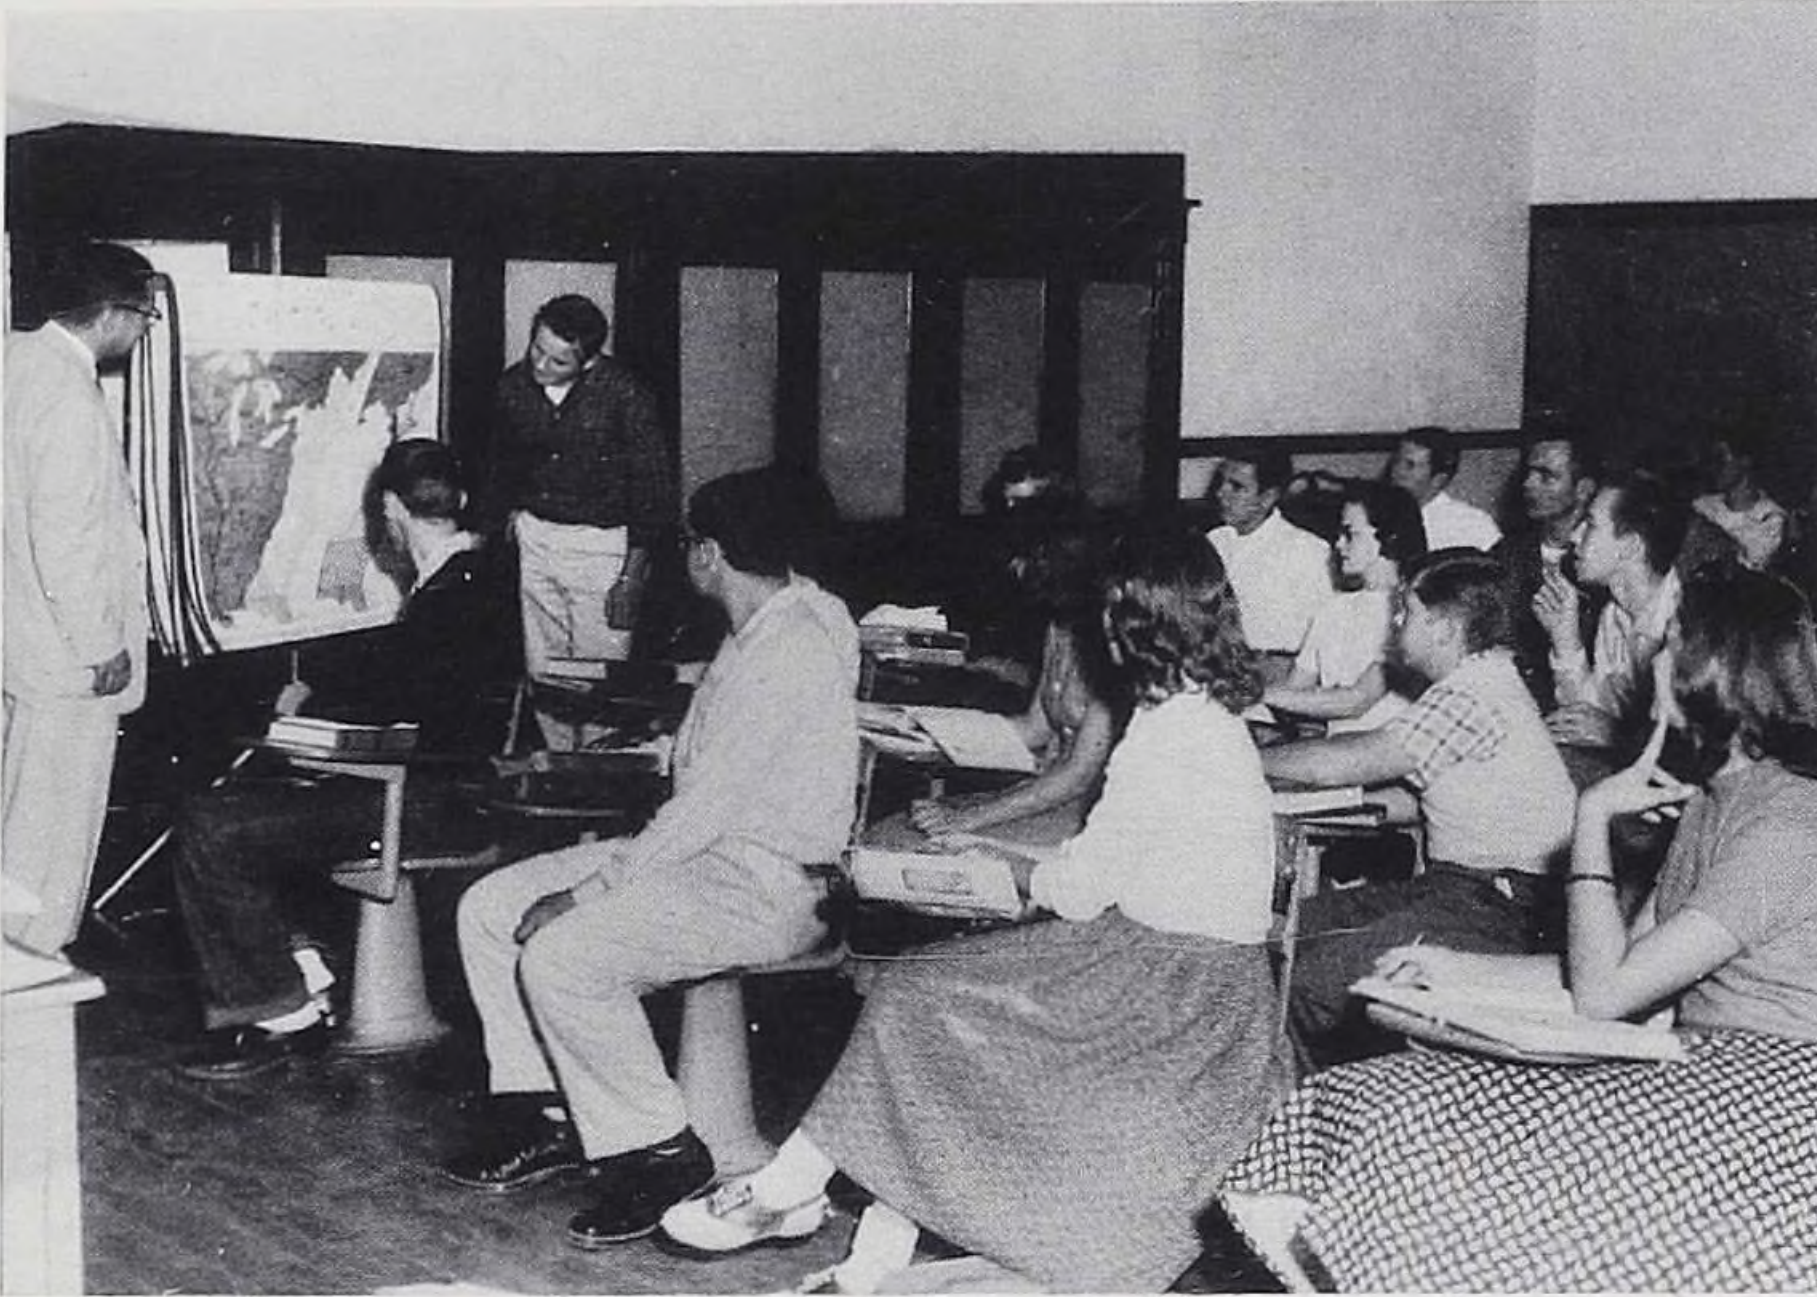

A competent knowledge of mathematics is an asset in many life situations, and promotes sound reasoning and logical action.

Rhombus: a square that somebody sat on.

The word is prism, not prison!

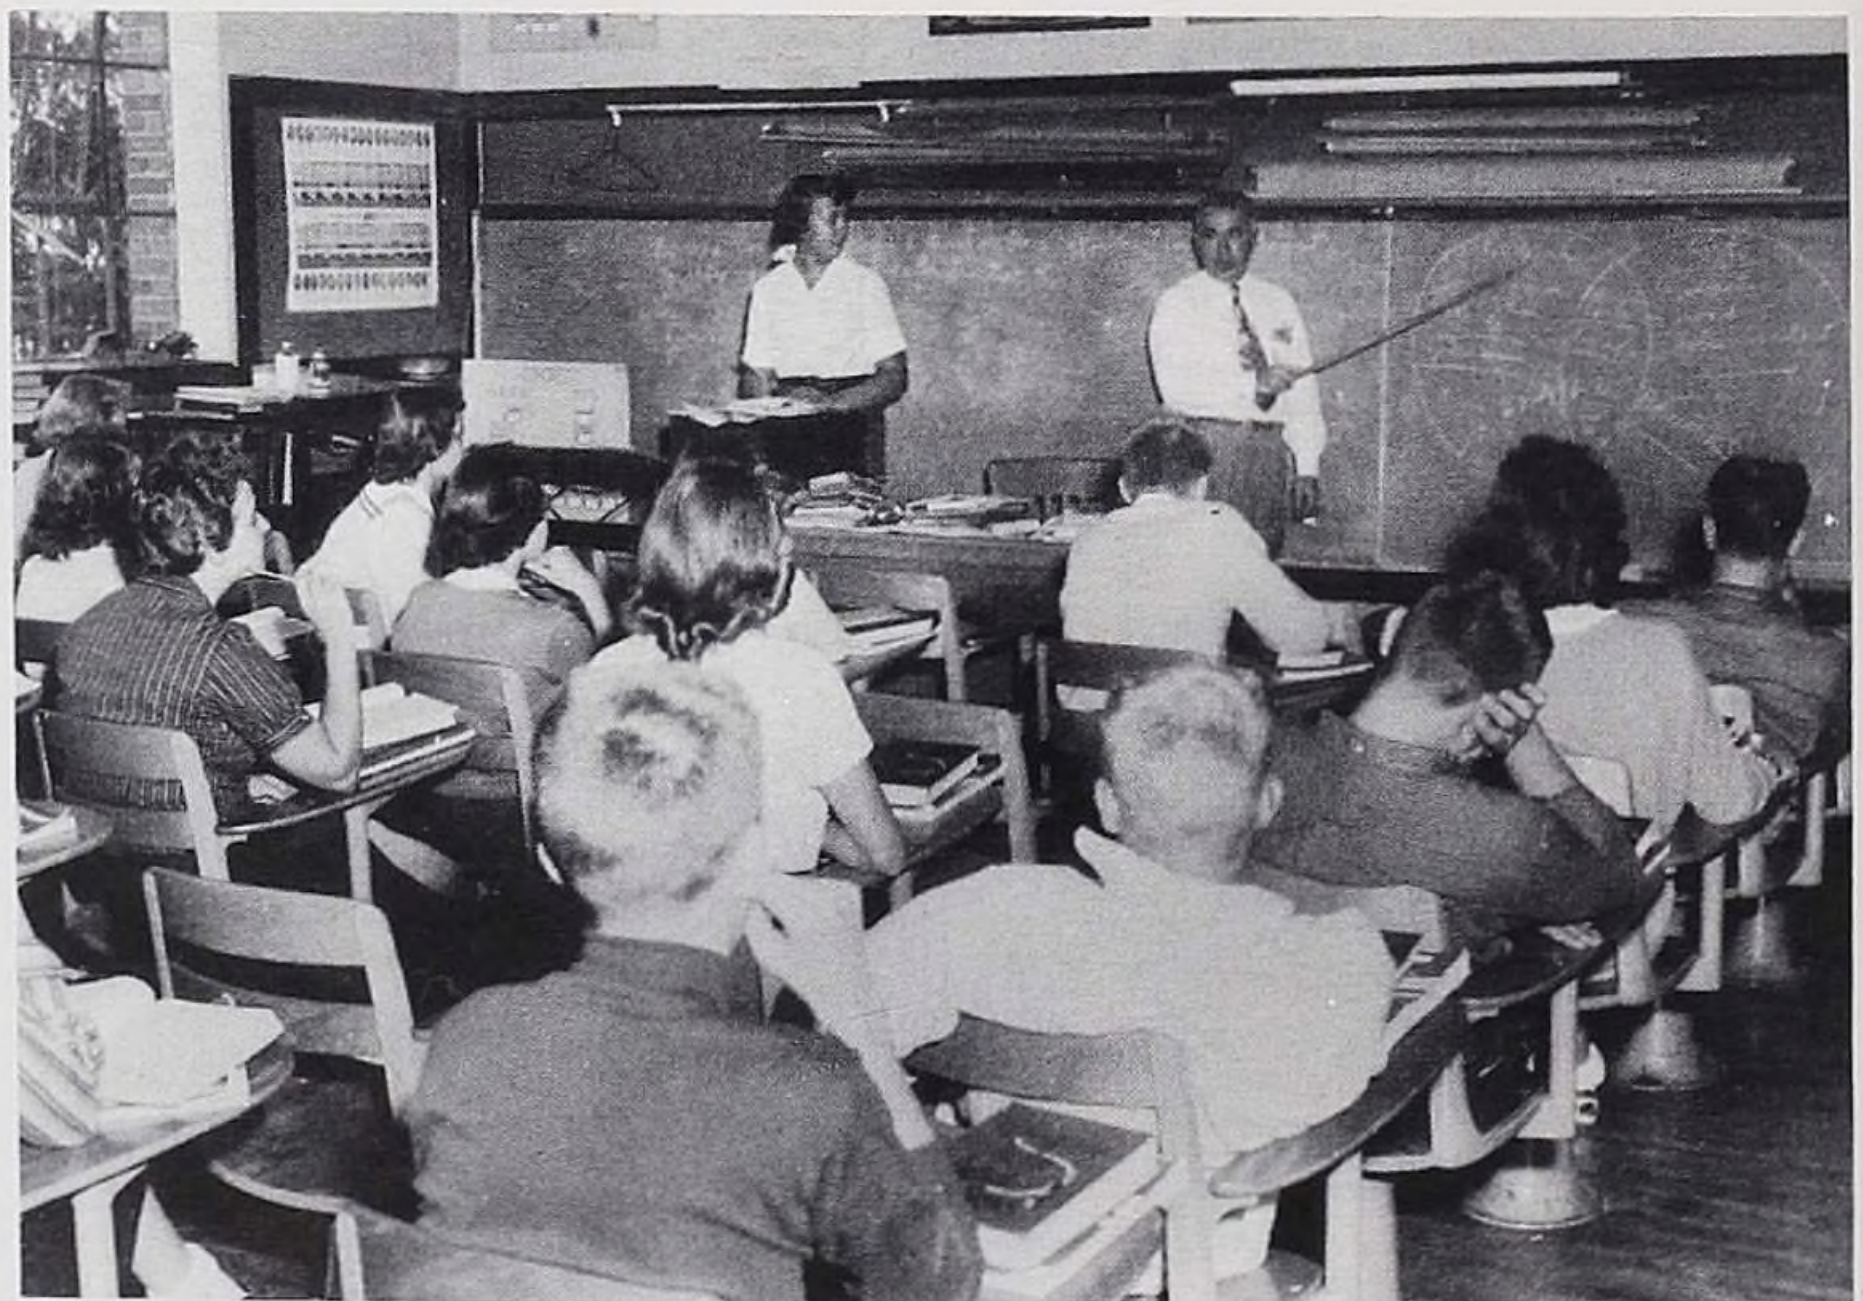

Social Studies

In 1492 Jefferson crossed the Waterloo.

The social studies department of our school has been a great asset to us in gaining an appreciation of our country's heritage. It has helped us to have a better and deeper comprehension of our current events which are based upon patterns that developed from the growth of our nation. The teachers were LeRoy Stutsman, Blaine Gamble, Elbert Fike, and John Hans. The department included the following courses: civics, a study of United States government and required of every senior student; United States history, a study of American history and current events; world history, a study of past and present history of the world; and geography.

You won't find any squares in this class because Mr. Stutsman demonstrates exclusively in circles.

Social Science

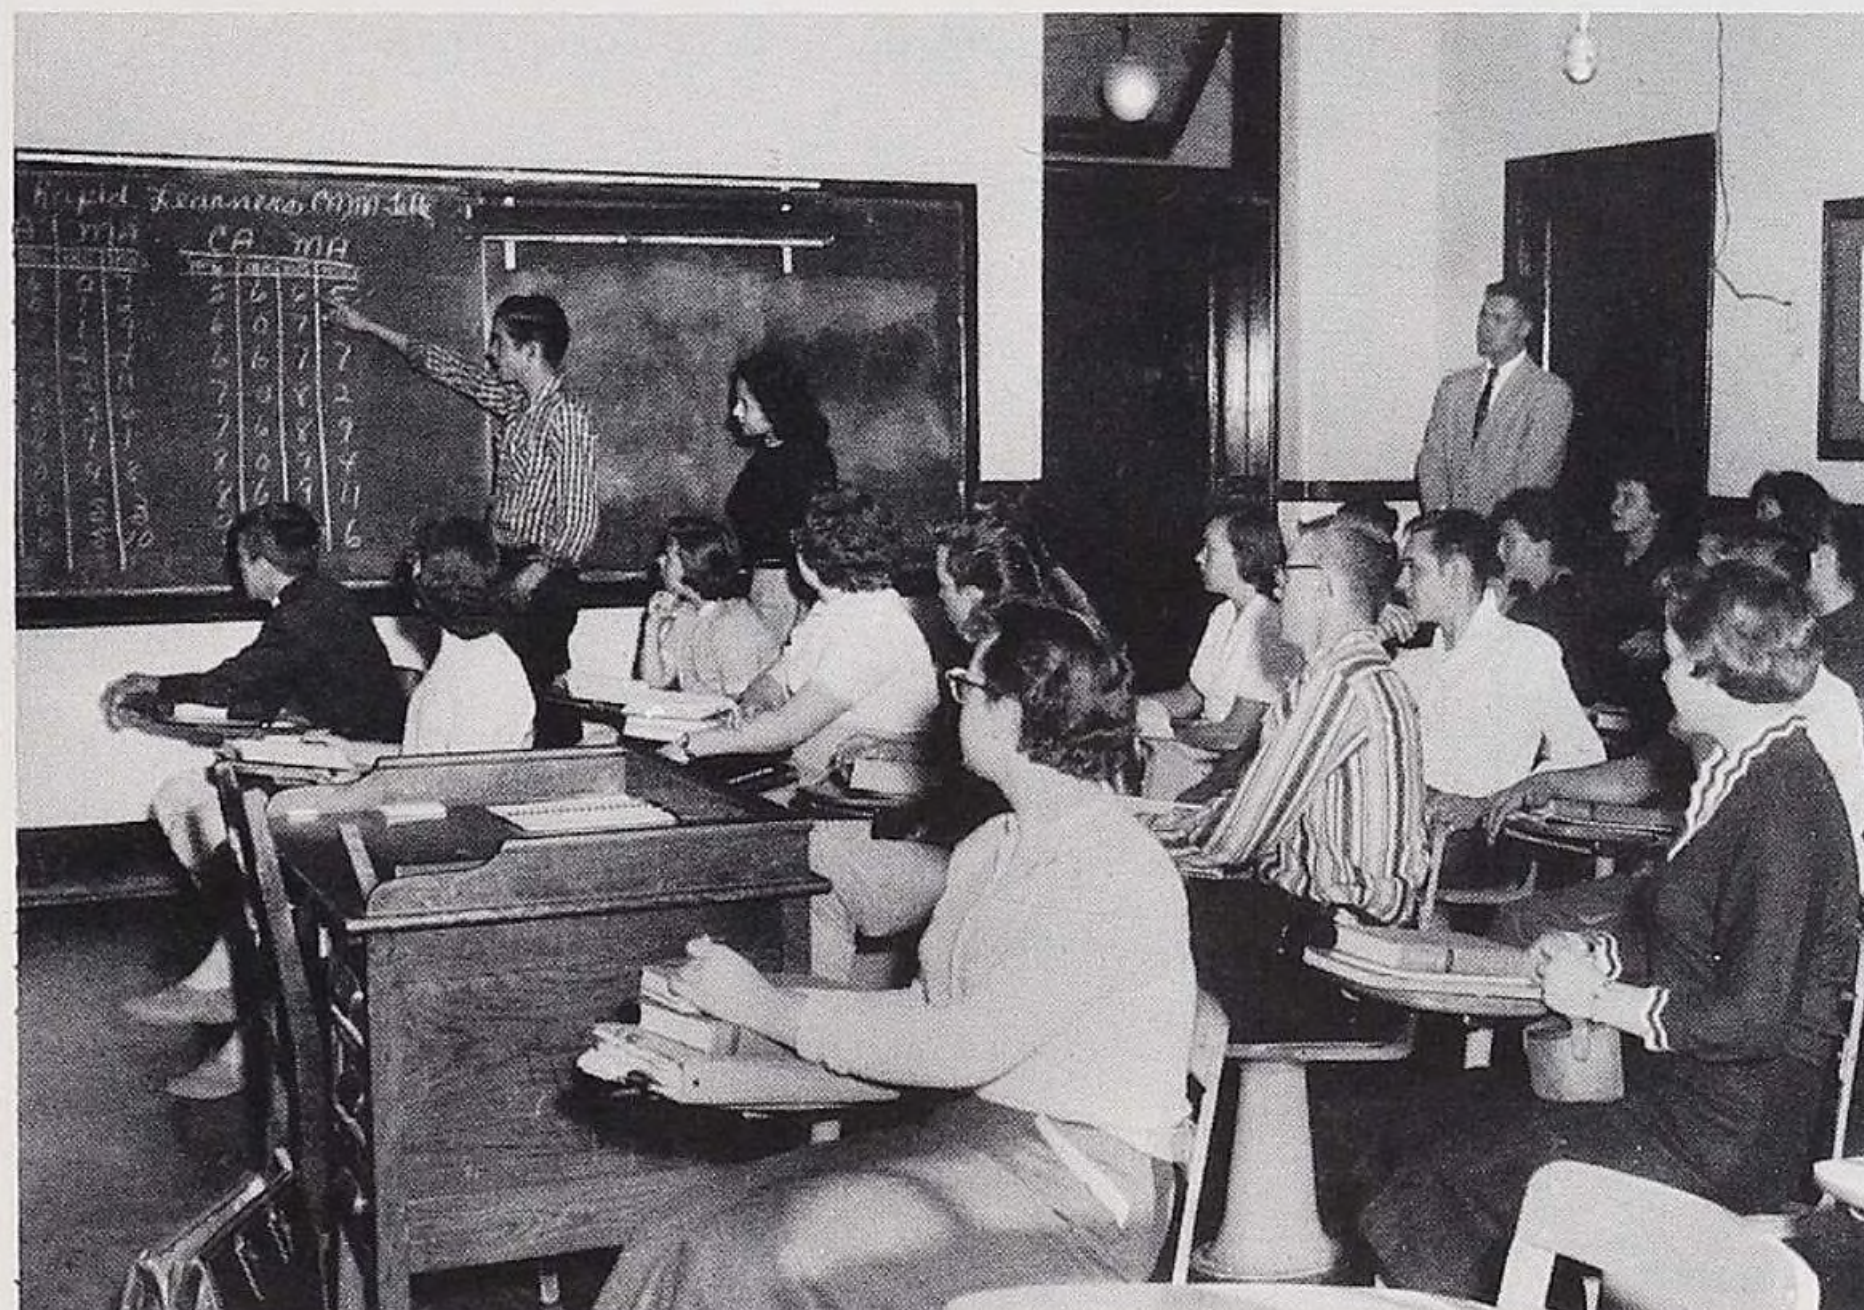

"Do you dig this jazz?"

The main purpose of the general psychology course was to lay a foundation upon which to build. It was primarily for those individuals who were planning to attend college or enter nurses training. Tackling problems, reaching goals, and developing a criterion in a new field of study usually provided an ample supply of intellectual food to the student who was willing to put forth the necessary effort.

Sociology is a science of social relations and institutions. The dynamic forces existing in our society are too numerable to count.

An attempt was made to understand the motivations behind some of these forces. Man, his deeds, and his heritage were the primary considerations in the course of study.

Bob Sowers explains one of the complexities of psychology.

Agriculture

From little kernels come
the big corn stacks.

One of the most progressive departments was vocational agriculture. The purpose of this course was to train boys in farming and work in related fields. This training was done by classroom work, projects, field trips and judging of livestock, grain and produce.

Vocational agriculture was different from other courses because the teacher was hired for twelve months in order to properly supervise the projects that were carried on for a year-round basis.

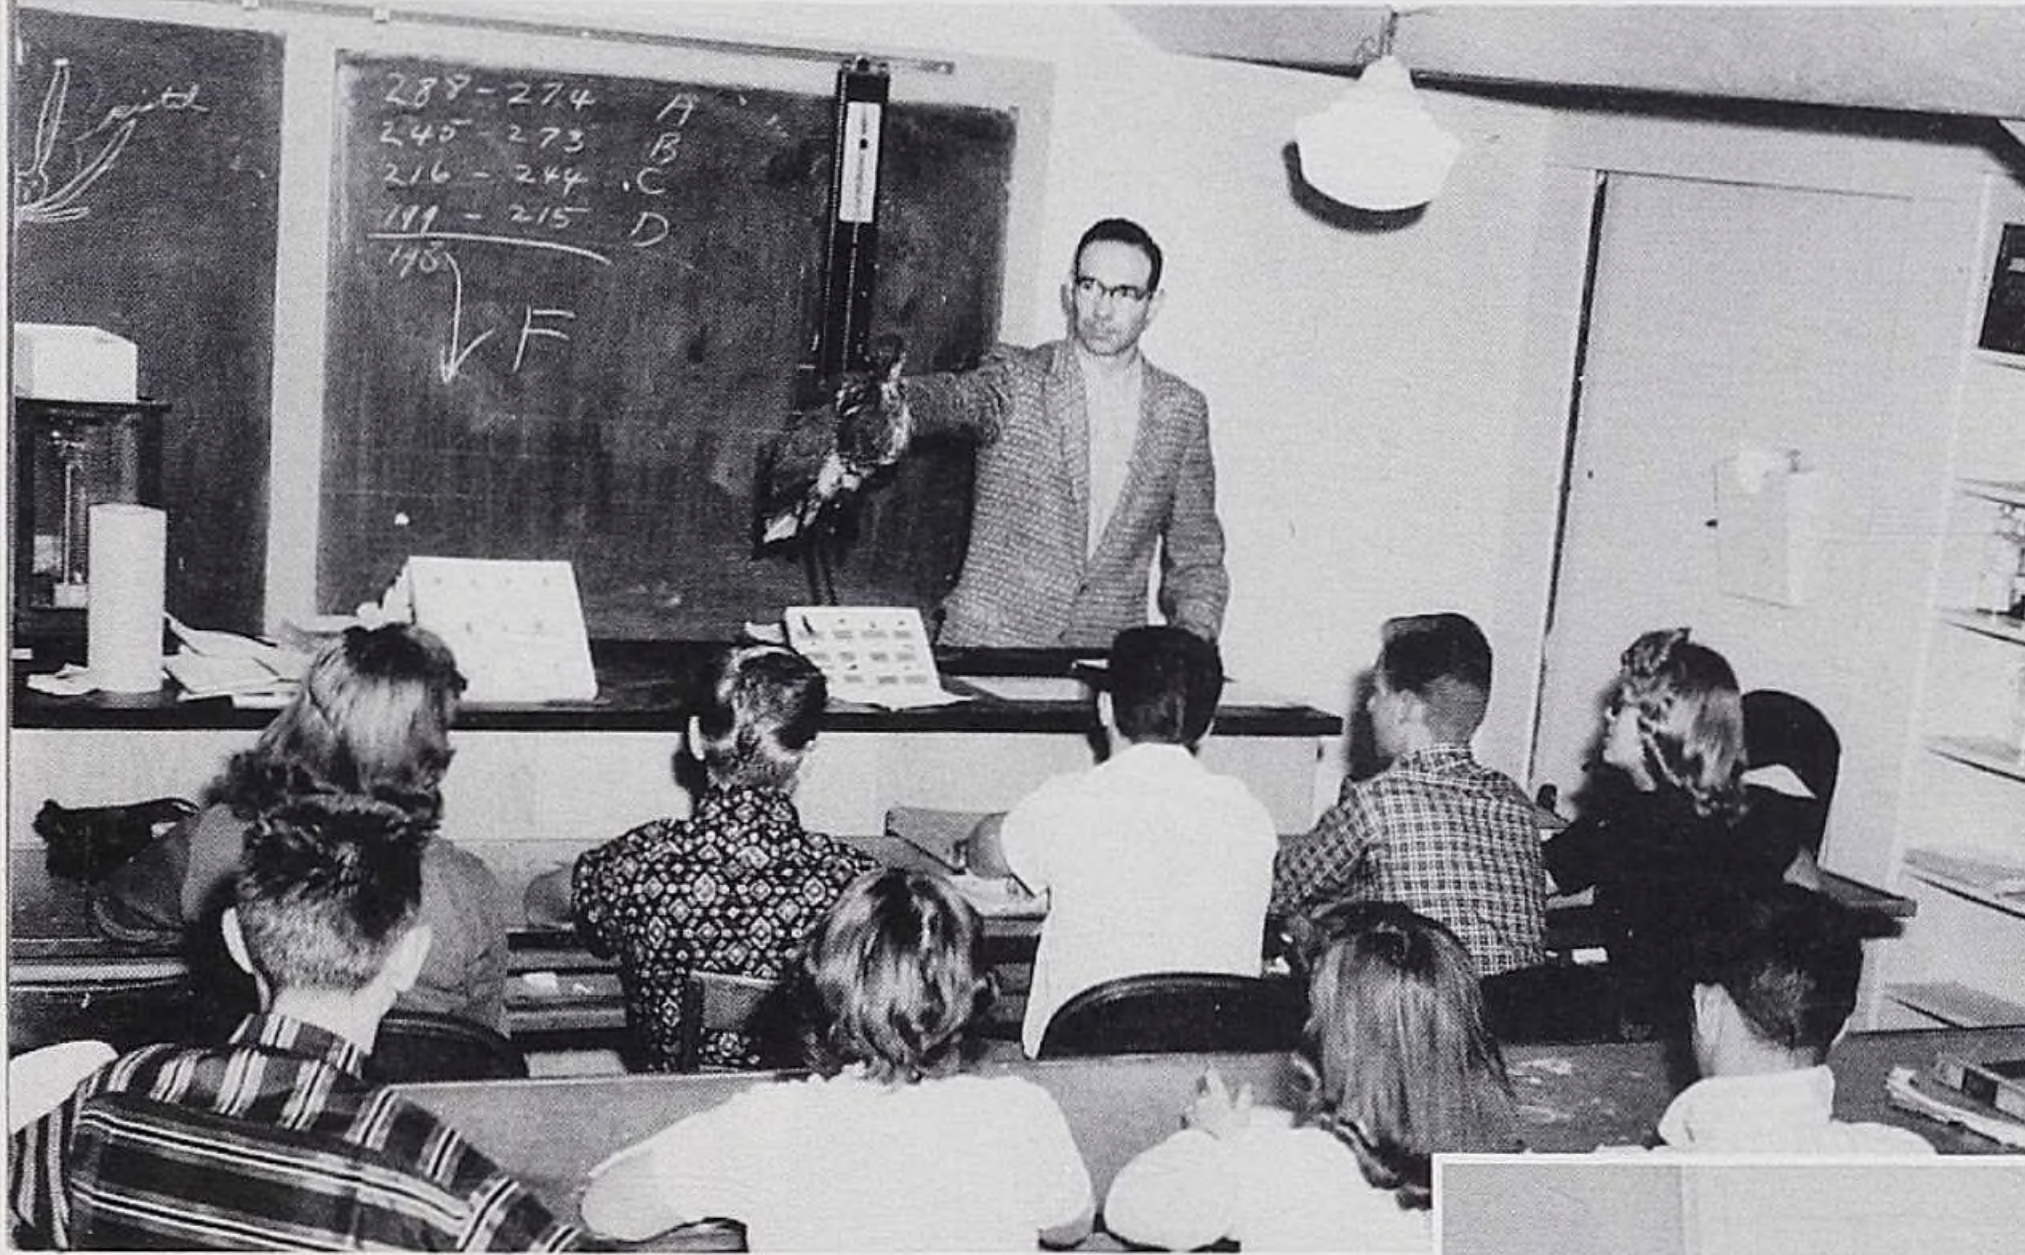

The FFA organization was an important part of the boys agricultural training because it taught him to work with others and encouraged him to complete his project work.

The school farm helped the boys to put into practice what they had learned in the classroom.

Mr. Glen Hartman, teacher and advisor, instructed agricultural courses.

"I wonder how they hatched eggs before incubators."

Science

This could be either a blue heron or an over-stuffed chicken on stilts.

The science department of New Carlisle High School has been the foundation for many careers. The teachers who have done so much to help us further our interest in this department were Darle Pfeiffer, Jack Calhoun, Ned Vargo, and Harry Rodgers. The courses taught were physics, an advanced science preparatory for college, biology, a study of the life processes of plants and animals, and chemistry, which deals with the composition and behavior of matter. All of these subjects have helped us to understand better the natural things which we come in contact with daily and the world in which we live. Science helped us to understand modern day occurrences with more depth and preception. Under this heading came such things as atomic reactors, as well as simple phenomenon. Many of the theories, processes, and functions we have learned may not seem important to us now, however, in the future they may be the basis for many advances for which we shall be responsible.

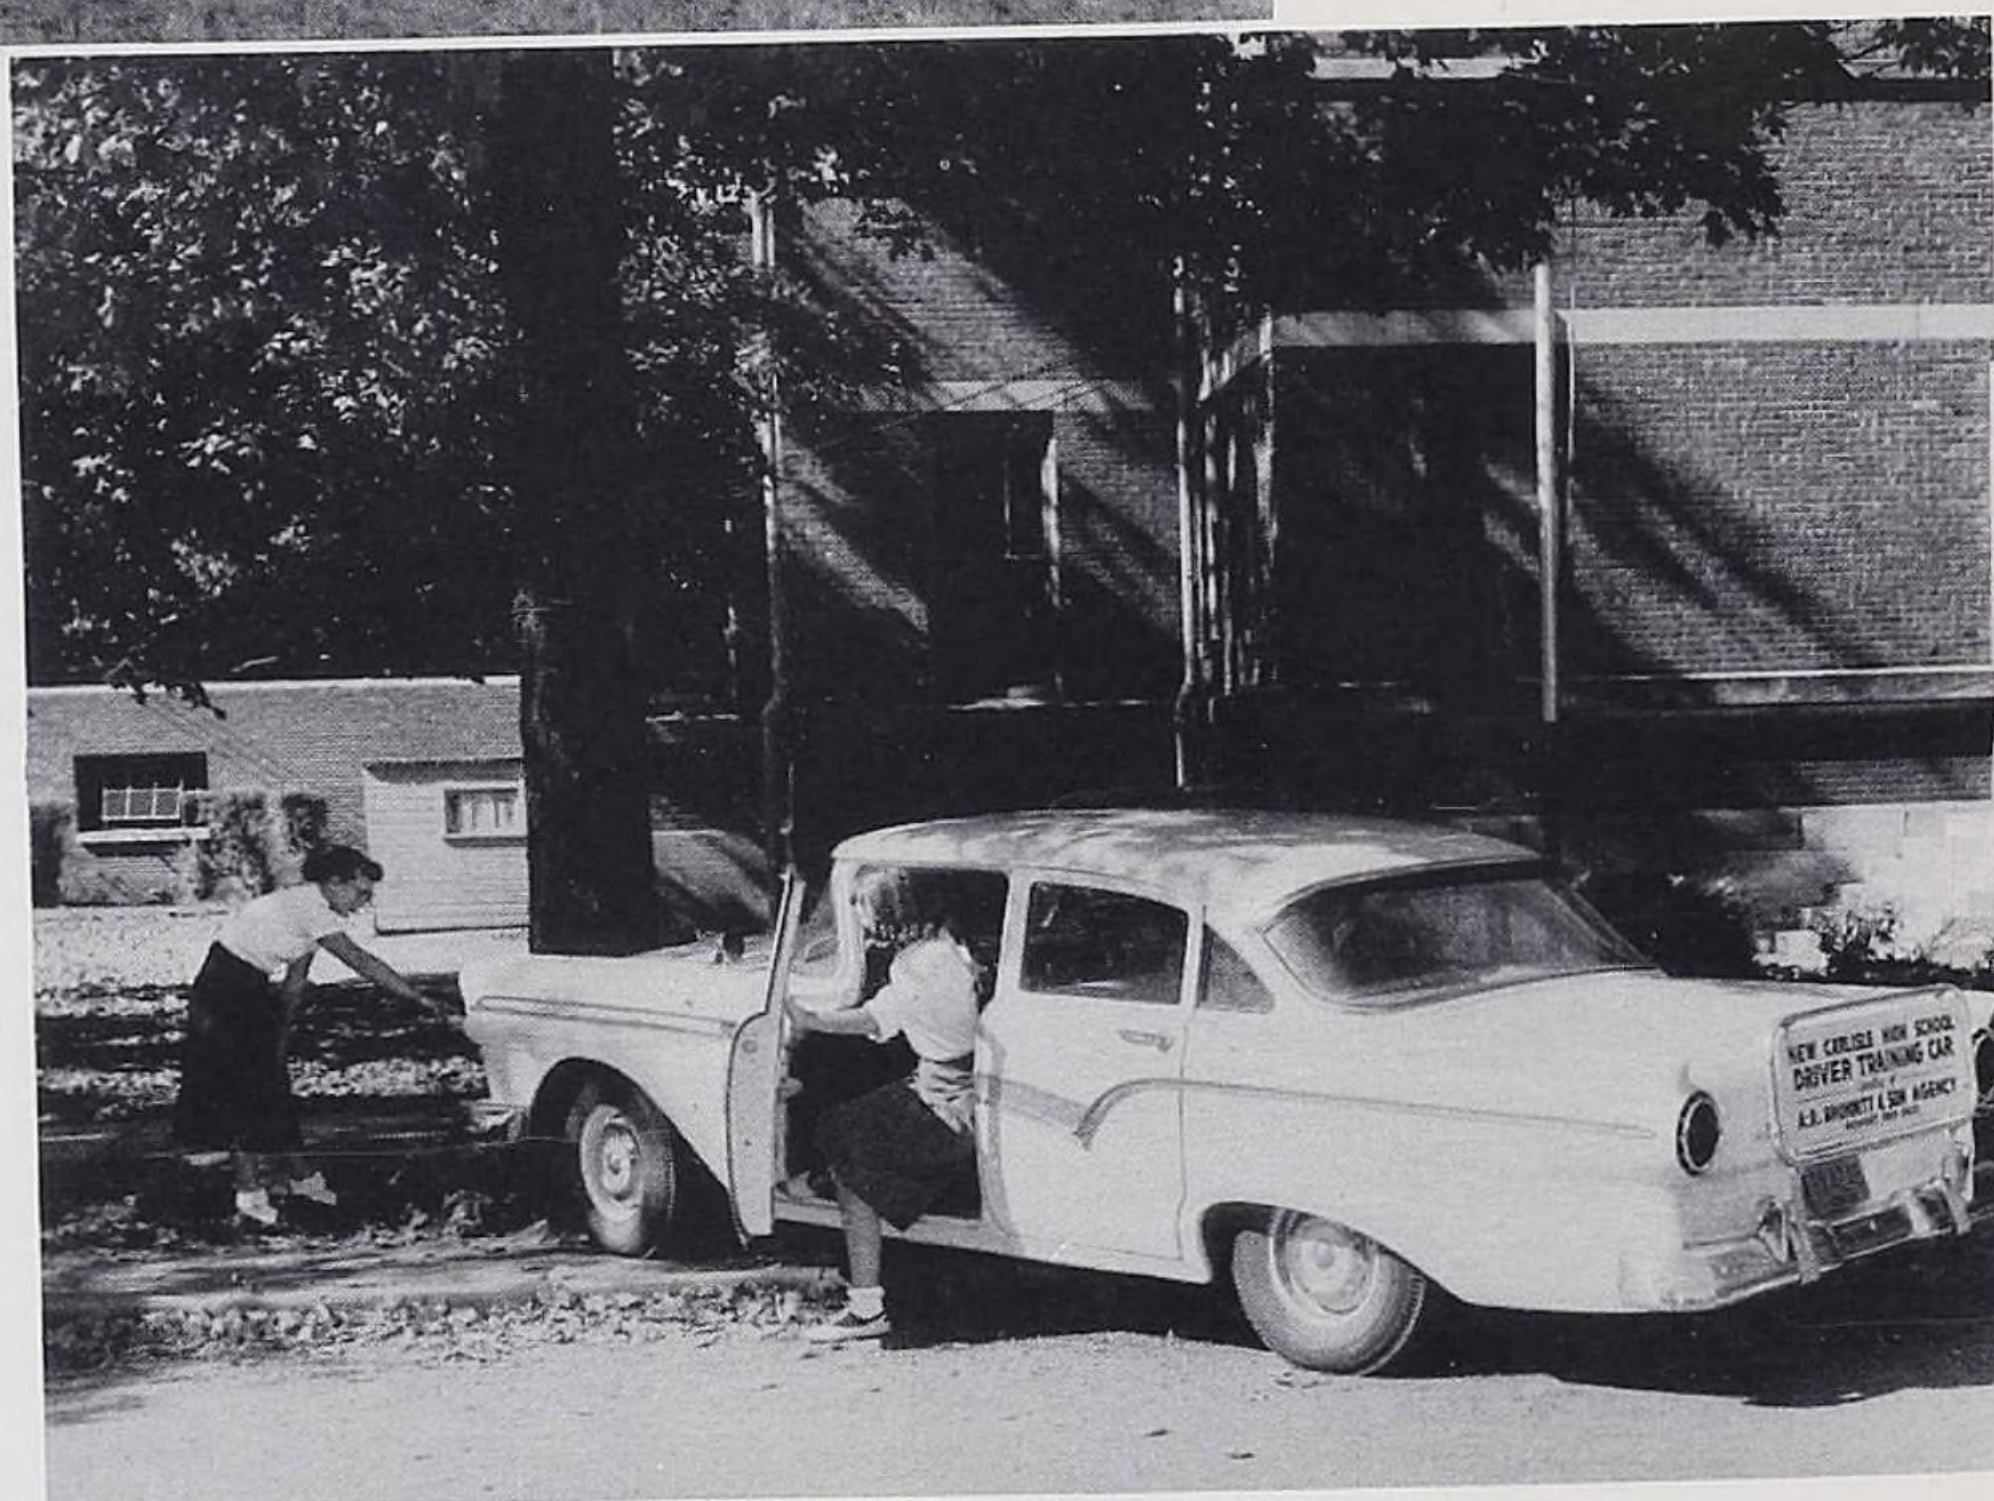

Our experiment went over with a bang!

Physical Education and Drivers' Training

An advanced course in self-preservation.

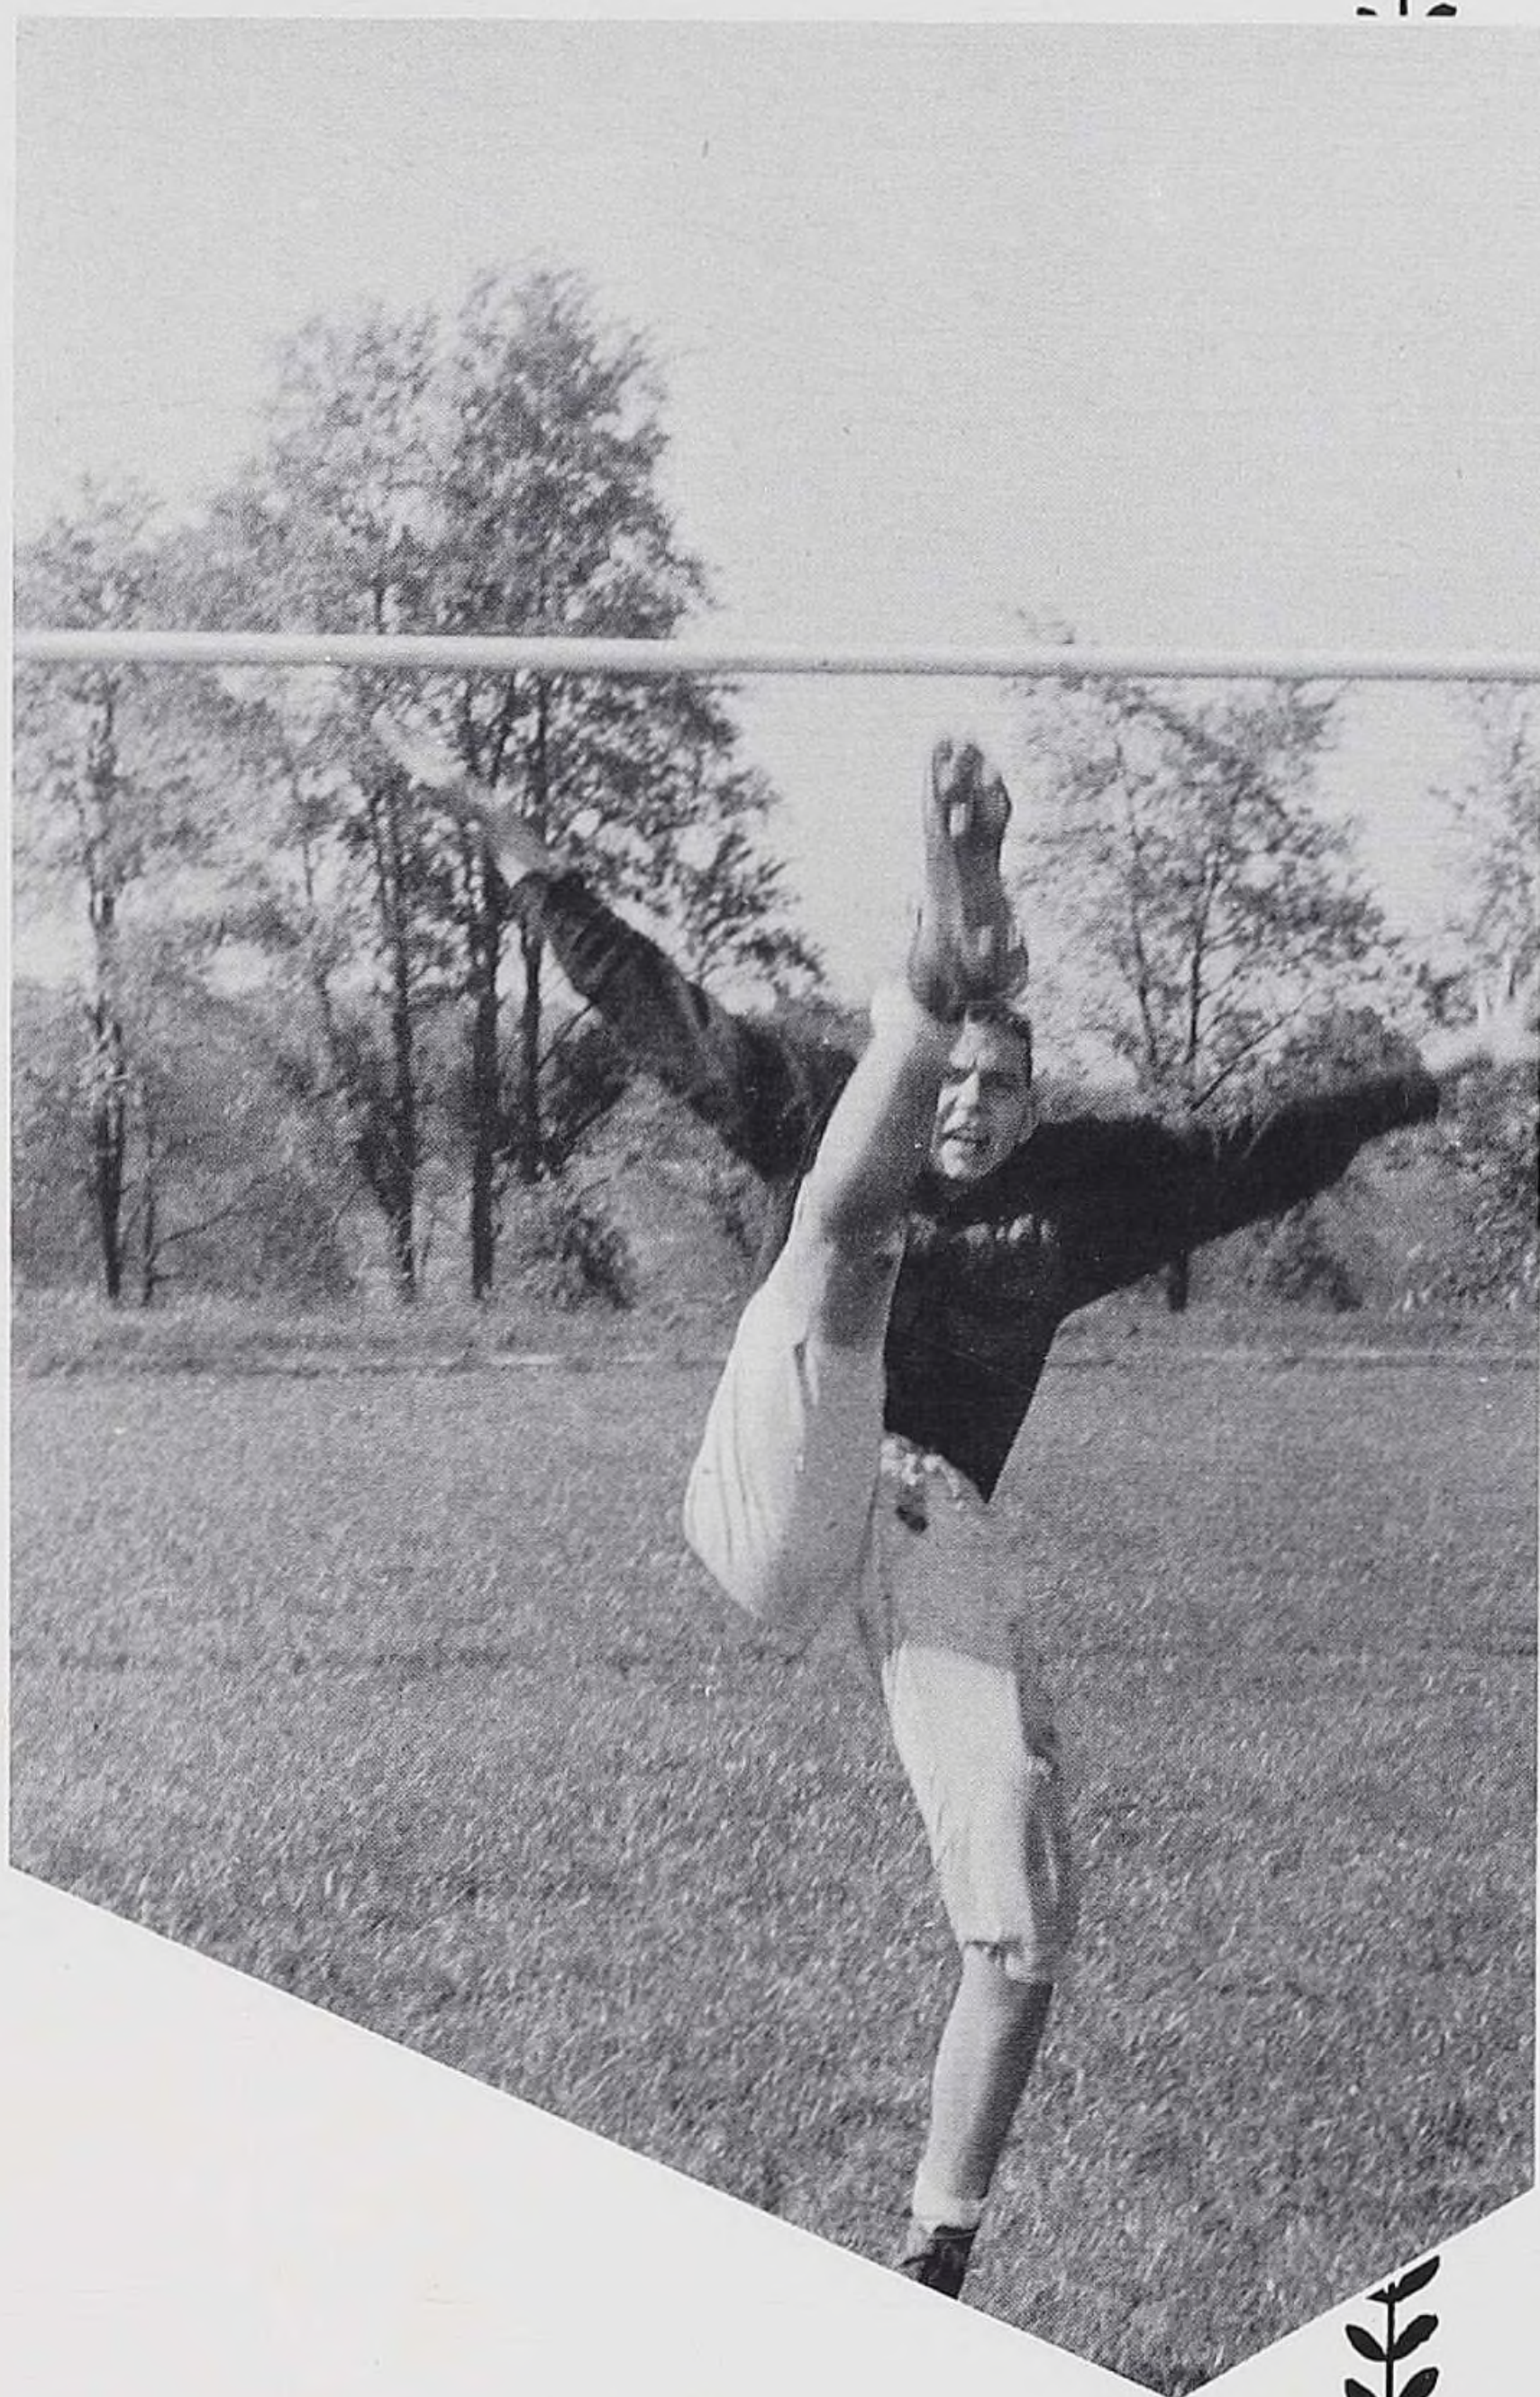

Now who ever heard of a tree growing in the middle of a street!

Physical education was taught by Ned Vargo, Robert Stotts, and Donna Zigler. It endeavored to provide students with physical activity and educate them in health, sportsmanship, and body conditioning through basketball, badminton, football, volleyball, archery, and other sports.

Drivers' training was a required subject for high school pupils. Its goal was to teach safe driving, to acquaint students with state laws, and to gain a good attitude regarding driving and other drivers.

The automobile which was used had been especially equipped for the training of amateur drivers. Teaching drivers' education were William Lynch and Rex Thomas.

We'll Have These Moments . . .

Yellow cards! White cards! Registration cards! New faces and new classes! All of these helped to introduce or re-acquaint us with one of the oldest institutions in existence, education.

There seemed to be a fee for every class and the books looked thicker than ever before. When the confusions began to run on schedule, we realized another school year had begun.

"Kisses spread germs,
And germs are hated.
So kiss me, Honey,

...to Remember

George E. Davis gave us a greater appreciation of the "Hoosier Poet."

The Junior's proudest moment was when they received their class rings.

The extracurricular life of the school was always in motion. The sophomores canvassed the community with magazine sales while the junior class chose their rings, and the senior prepared to take the National Merit Scholarship test.

The Olive Branch

The executive staff planned and was responsible for many new and different ideas.

Long hours of careful planning and effervescent zeal were responsible for undertaking a more colorful and extensive yearbook in 1958.

Throughout the year the Olive Branch staff sponsored dances, films during activity periods, raffles, and assemblies. In addition to this, pictorial advertisements were innovated to provide another source of revenue.

The executive staff attended several seminars at the Oliver Hotel in South Bend and, also, the Indiana High School Press Association Convention at Franklin College.

Layouts, copy sheets, and photographs are the ingredients of a yearbook, but they are only by-products of much planning and hard work.

October 1957 a New Tattler came into being. Its changes were revolutionary in some respects, and evolutionary in others. Even though the Tattler had outgrown its growing pains it was still regularly besieged by alteration and innovation.

Its growth has been guided by a keen desire to give news of and to the students and community, and at the same time be of service to them in anyway it could. These guides enabled the paper, in the opinion of most, to equal the quality and style of the papers of the larger schools.

The staff was constantly mindful of the statement by Emerson as stated in the most heeded, "Thought takes men out of Servitude into Freedom." The paper since its conception had been under the editorship of Judy Rife, and sponsorship of Mr. Horace Isaacs.

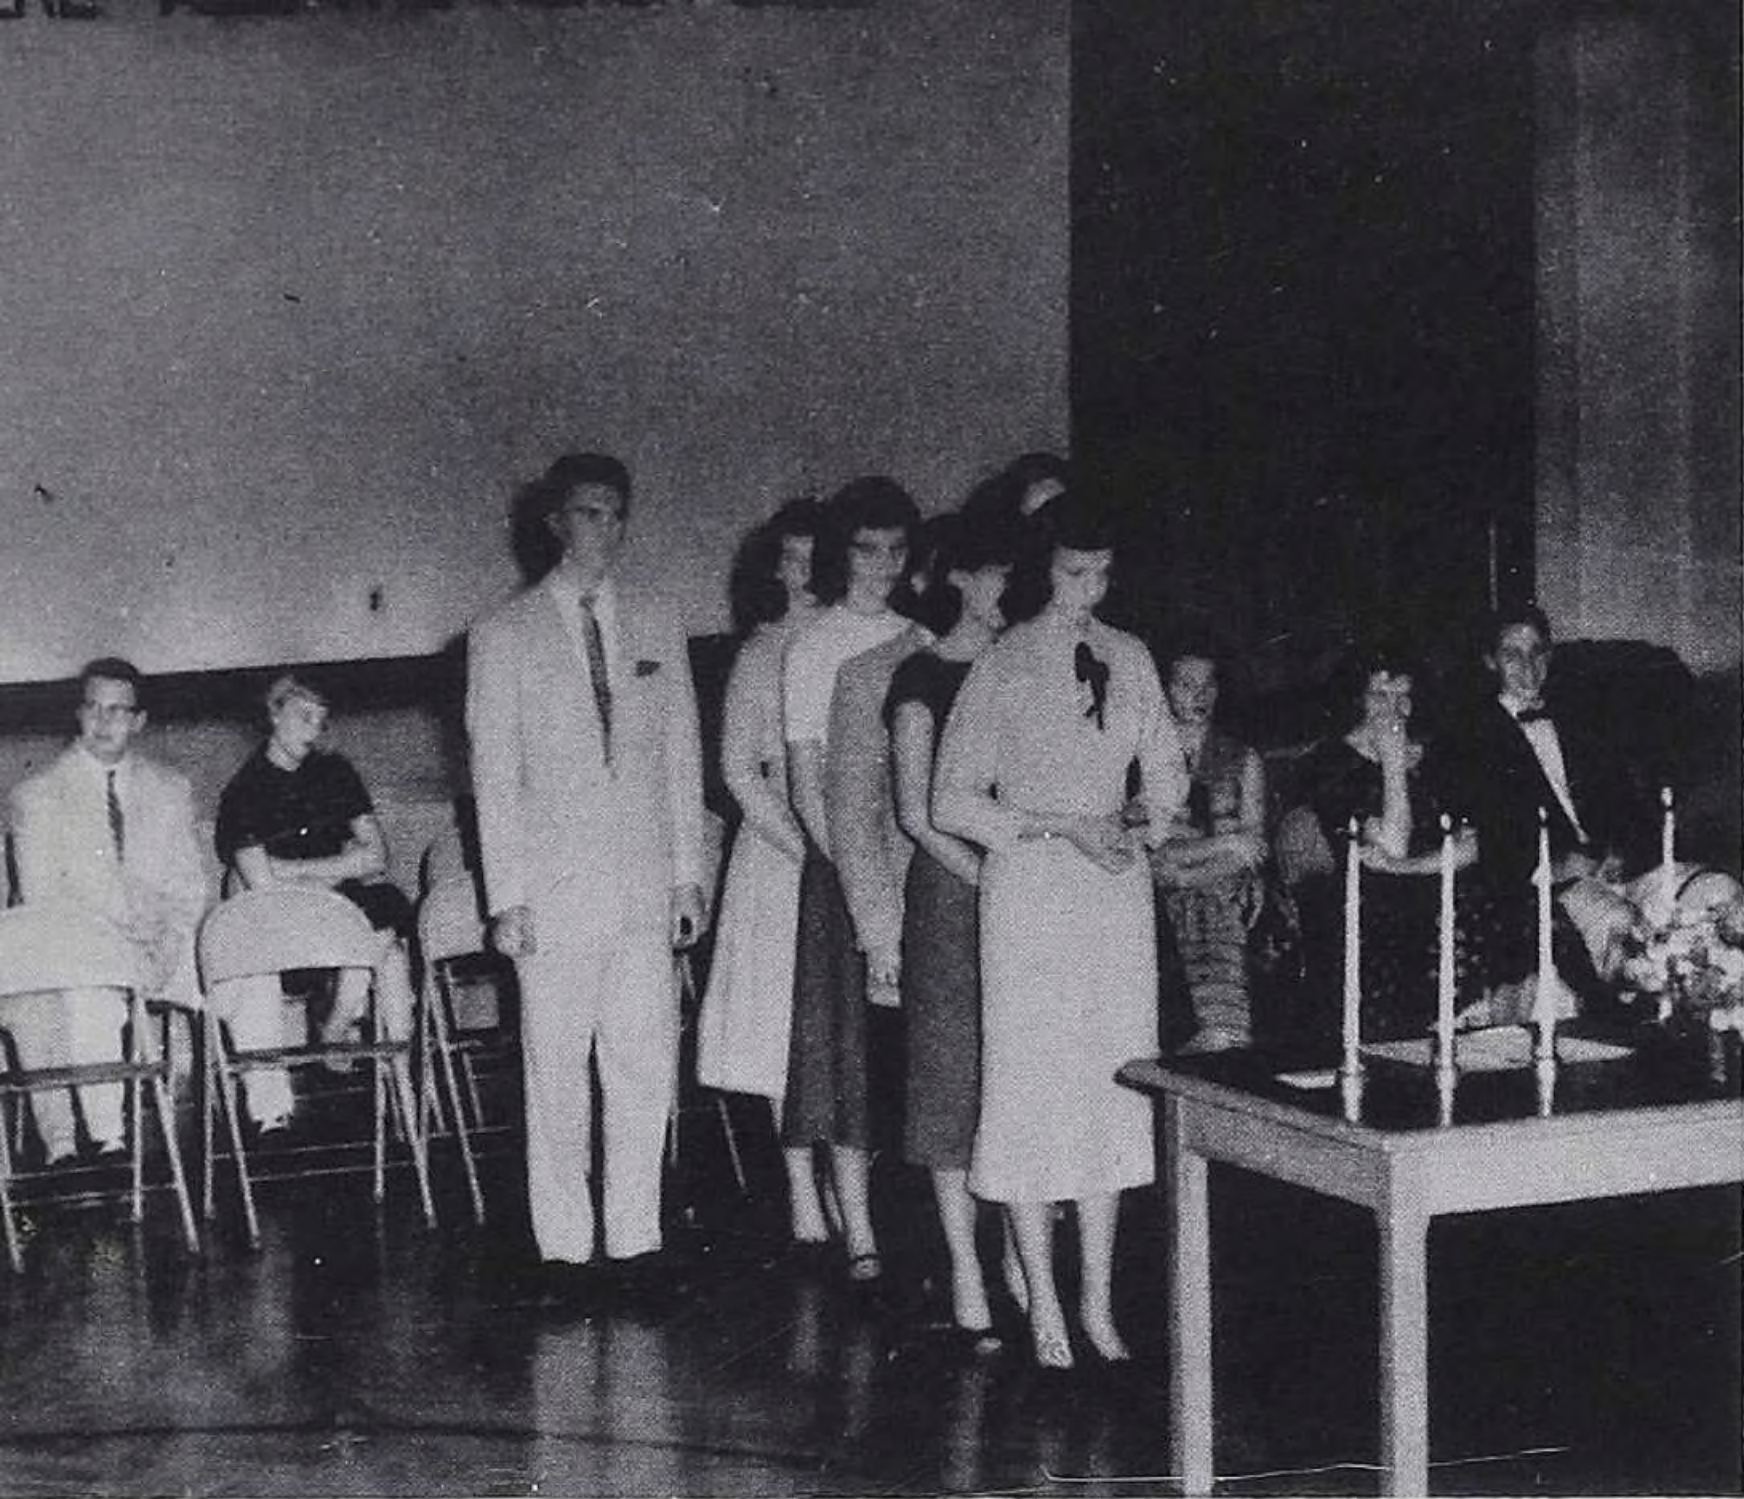

Judy Rife explains to the staff the principles of journalism.

The Thespians were a dramatic group, devoted to the production of fine plays. Points had to be earned in order to be eligible for membership. This was done by appearing in plays or helping with their production. Mrs. Vera Holley and Mrs. Mary Dunn were sponsors. Officers were John Mason, president; Marlene Cooreman, vice-president; Carolyn Brummitt, secretary; Sue Tittle, treasurer.

Future Nurses of America

A practical lesson in nursing arts.

Future Nurses was organized to acquaint students interested in medicine with it's numerous fields and branches. Various speakers presented to the members a better understanding of the medical vocations through explanation and literature.

Officers were Pat McDonnough, president; Jo Ann Yuhouse, vice-president; Christine Klodzinski, secretary; Laurea LaFree, treasurer; and Miss Francis Johnson was the sponsor.

Los Amigos

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Vera Holley, Los Amigos moved into another successful year. Money was earned by selling candy, cookies and having a booth at the Halloween Festival. The proceeds from these projects helped to sponsor a Christmas trip to the Museum of Science and Industry, and a spring trip to see Spanish sections in Chicago, and to celebrate Pan-American Day.

A Christmas party was held, and the piñata, a colorful container filled with gifts, was opened by the president.

Officers for the year were Loretta Niespodziany, president; Mike Eberhart, vice-president; Connie Roloff, treasurer; and Gerri Gromski, secretary.

Future Homemakers of America

Mrs. Lynch installs FHA officers.

The Future Homemakers of America's club was one of the many active organizations at New Carlisle High School. The purposes of the FHA were: 1. To promote a growing appreciation of the joys and satisfactions of homemaking. 2. To emphasize the importance of worthy home membership. 3. To encourage democracy in home and community life. 4. To work for good home and family life for all. 5. To promote international good will. 6. To foster the development of creative leadership in home and community life. 7. To provide wholesome individual and group recreation. 8. To further interest in home economics.

Girls' Athletic Association

GAA was one of the more active organizations at New Carlisle High School.

This organization was composed of girls ranging from freshmen to seniors.

Mrs. Zigler, the sponsor of this organization, kept the girls in shape by interclass tourneys, participating with other schools, and play nights.

The GAA also sponsored the Athletic Dance, which was held once a year, inviting all the athletes.

The initiation was composed of something different each year. This year the girls wore plaid skirts and striped blouses, pigtails, 10 pieces of jewelry, long socks and different shoes. Each new girl participated in the initiation.

This year's president was Mary Ann Golden.

"Another young man!"

Pride and Prejudice

A Blanket of Silent Beauty

"The Christmas Candle"

Carolers warmed our hearts to the Christmas spirit.

"Silent Night"

Food for the Mind and Body

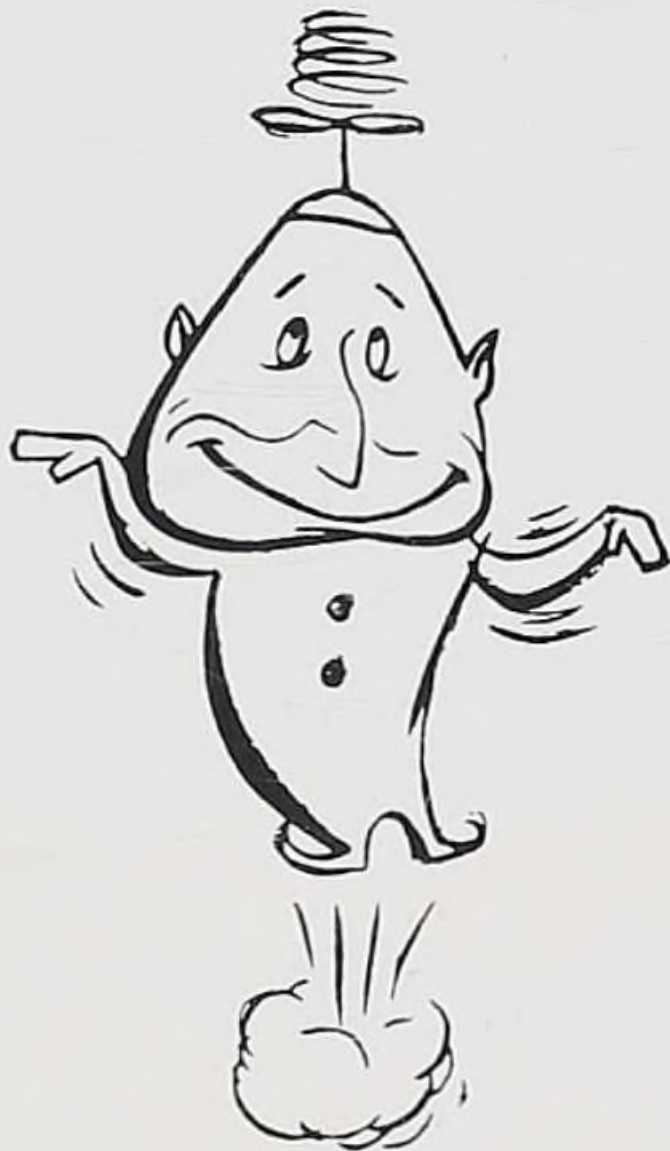

The Coke man-little seen but very essential.

The library-center of knowledge.

The cafeteria-here occurred daily the battle of the "bulge".

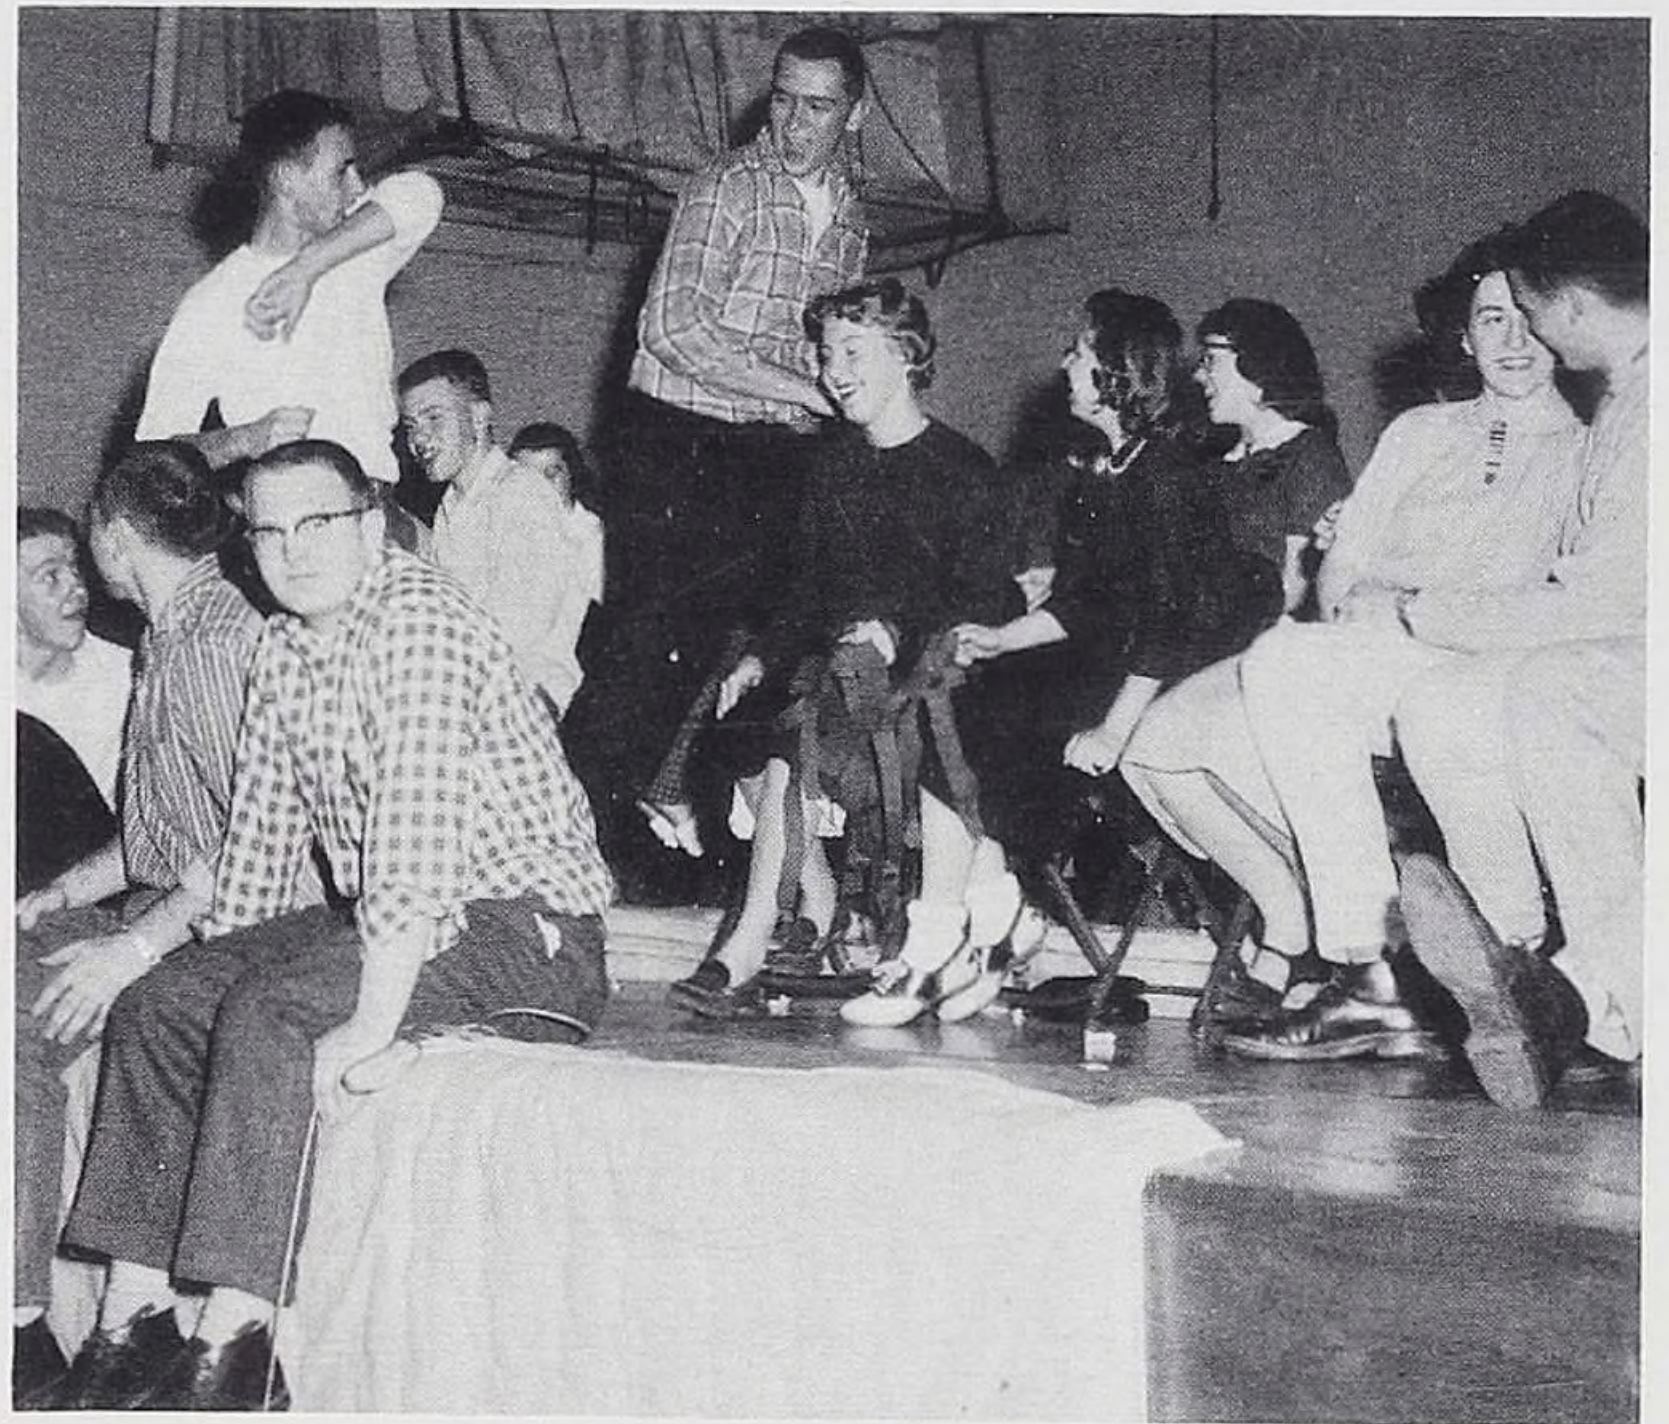

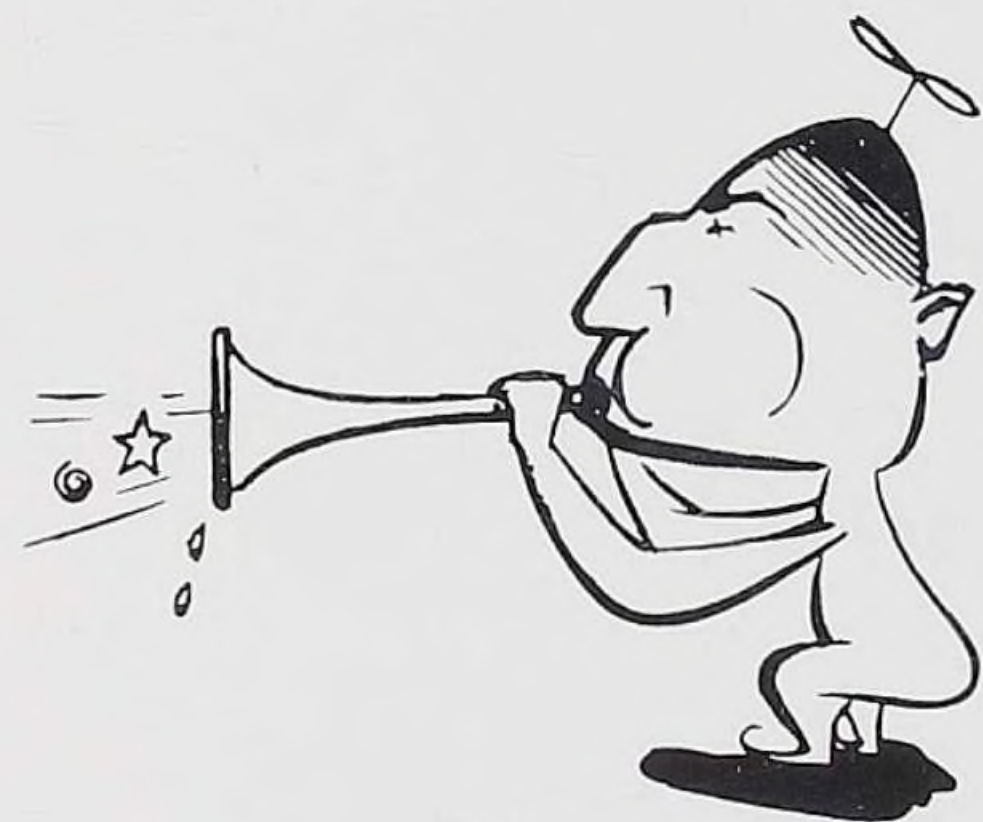

Mr. Stoneburner and Friend.

County Tourney Pep Session

Nothing like a little riot to start things off.

Enthusiasm really reached a high peak!

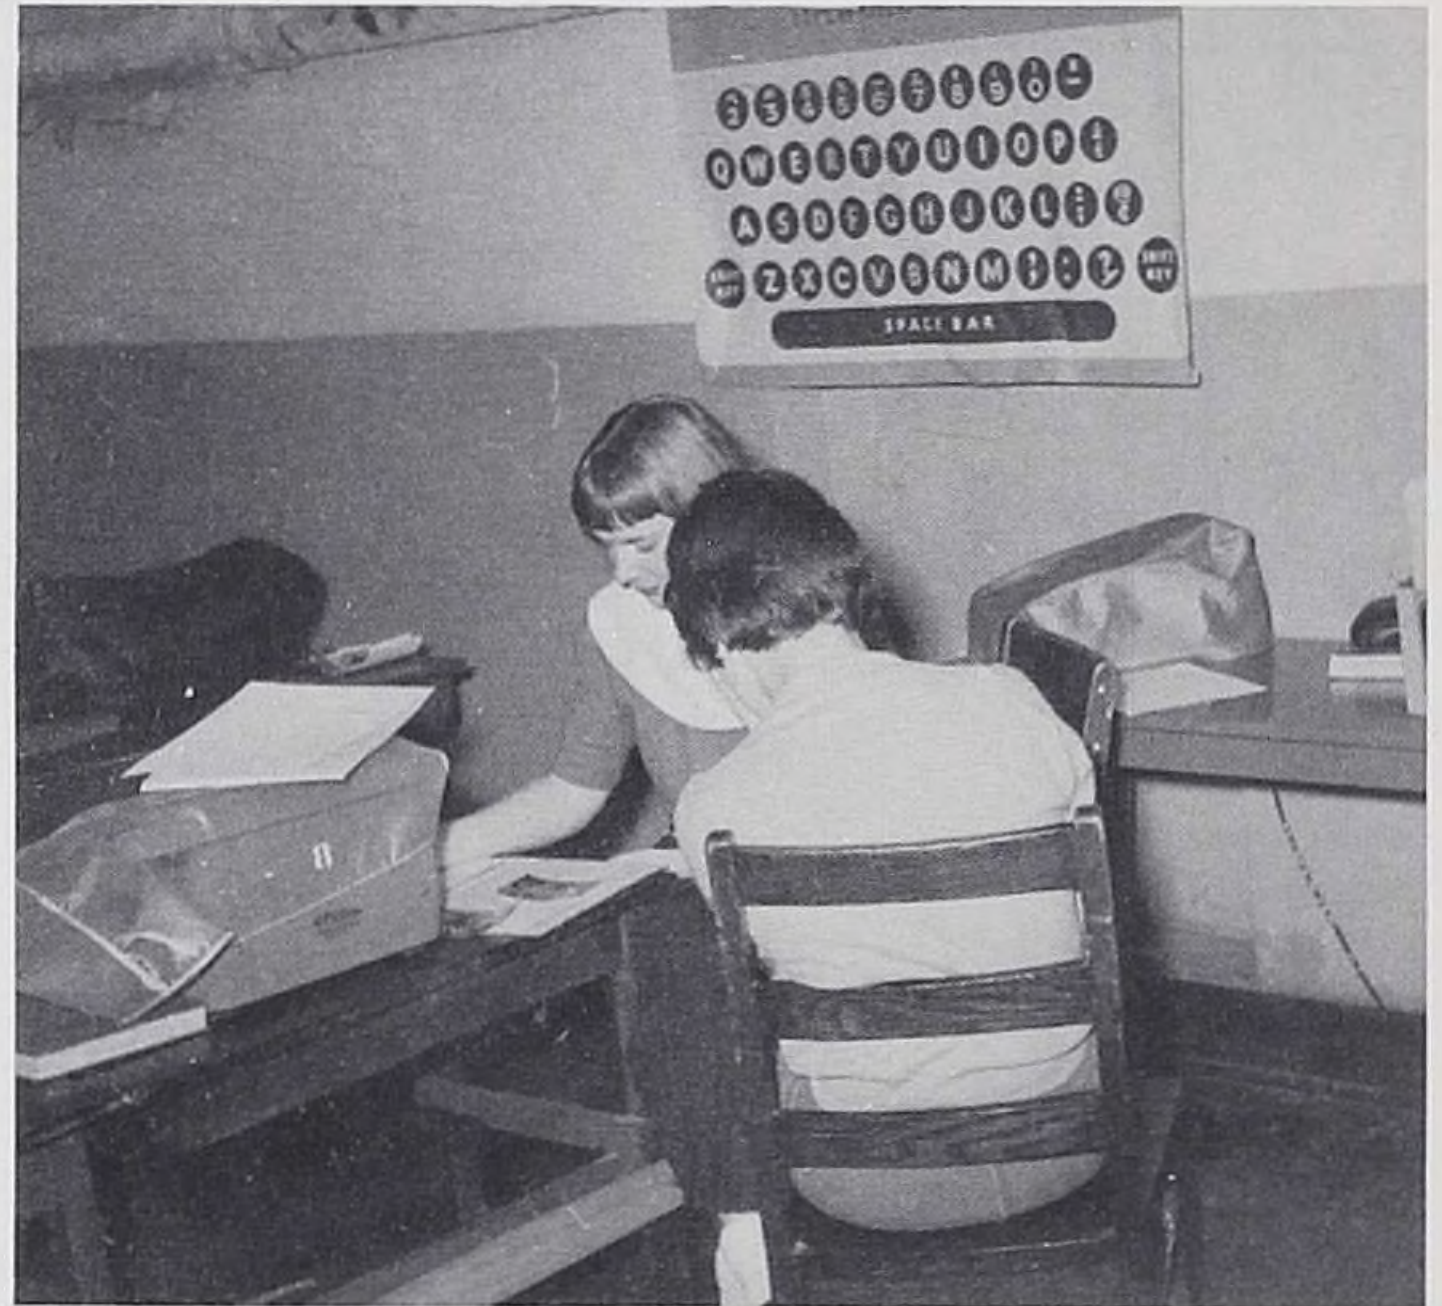

Final exams tell the story.

And So the Year Ended

The yearbook's last deadline brought trying moments.

The Indiana Central Choir helped end the year.

Marilyn McMillan and Don Kulwicki reigned at the Prom.

"One more for the road."

The Prom A Night to Remember

The atmosphere of the Indiana Club plus the music of Eddie Jarrett made a wonderful evening complete.

A Backward

Barbara Eberhart was the recipient of the D.A.R. award.

Caroline Hunn and Barbara Eberhart were salutatorian and valedictorian of the Class of 1958.

Judy Rife represented New Carlisle in the annual TB Speech Contest

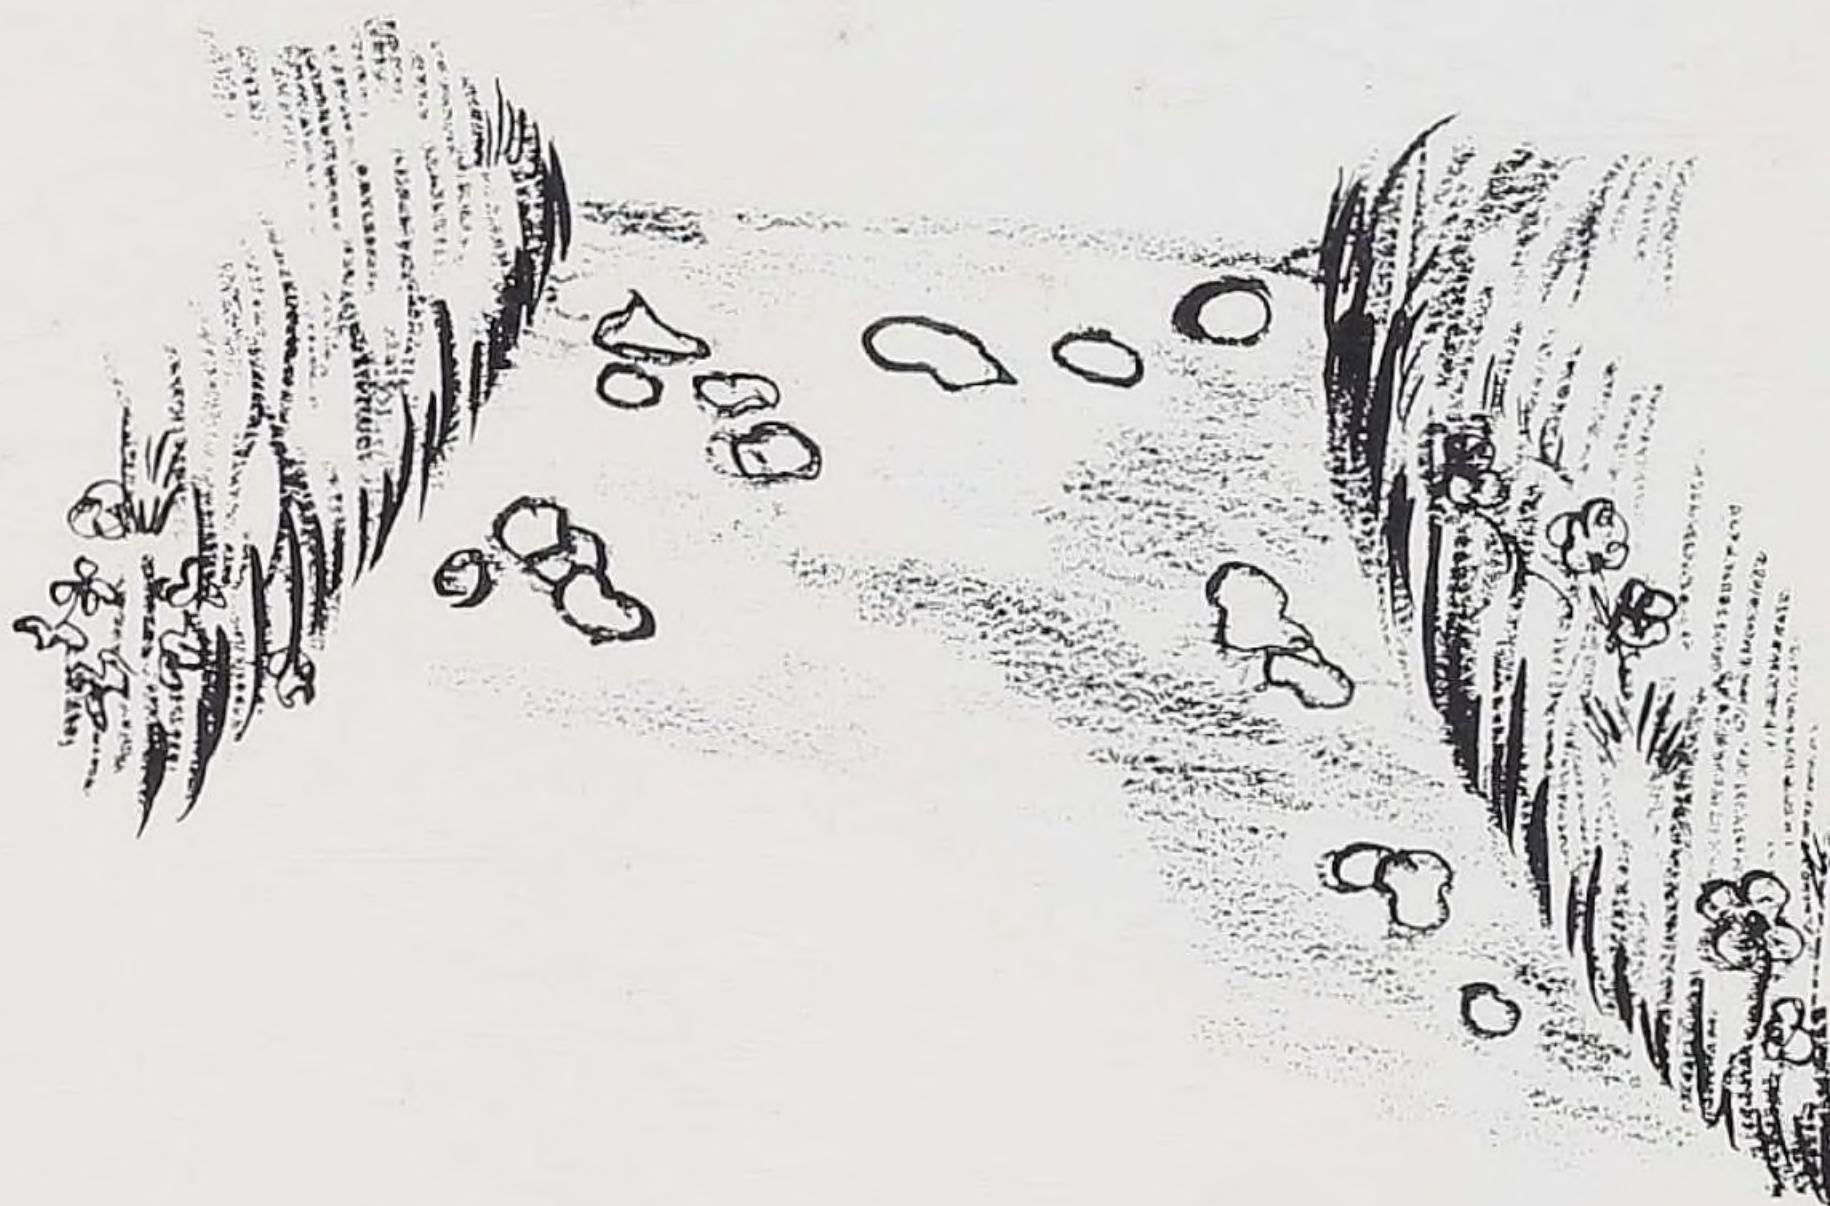

Glance

The Things We Did

As we danced to the stroll and rock n' roll, boys went Ivy League and the chemise was introduced.

We spoke our jargon and wore our ducktails in complete assurance that we were "hep." Well, that's the way the cooky crumbles.

The Events That Occurred

The "Age of Satellites" arrived. On October 4 the U.S.S.R. launched the first satellite, Sputnik I, followed by a second containing a dog, while the U.S.A. sent its first "little moon," the Explorer, into orbit on January 31.

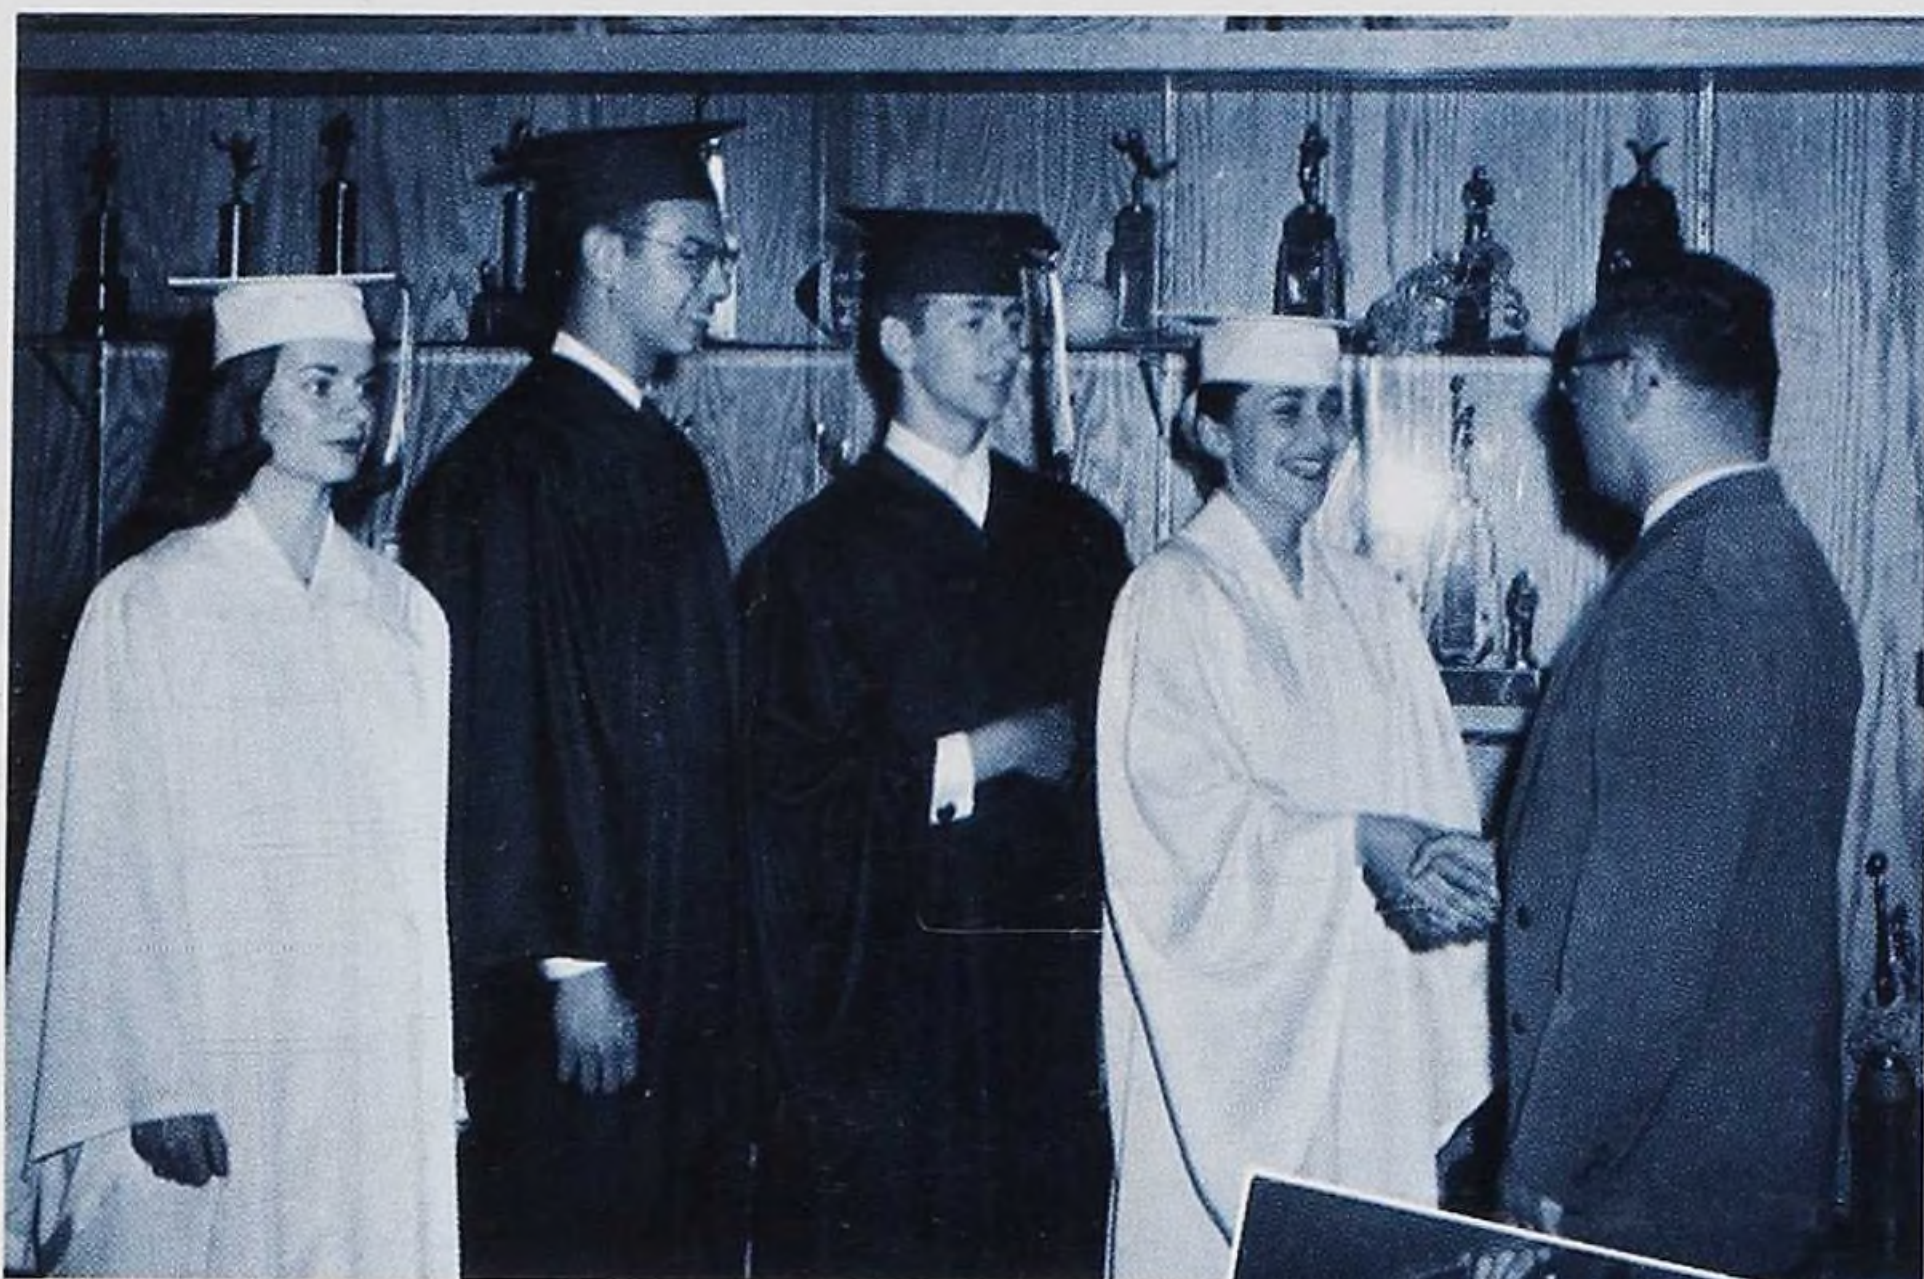

The sports world recorded the ending of Oklahoma's 47 game winning streak by Notre Dame and saw the Dodgers and the Giants move to the West Coast.

While Asian flu plagued the nation, the Edsel was being born and Elizabeth II was received at our shores.

The Songs We Sang

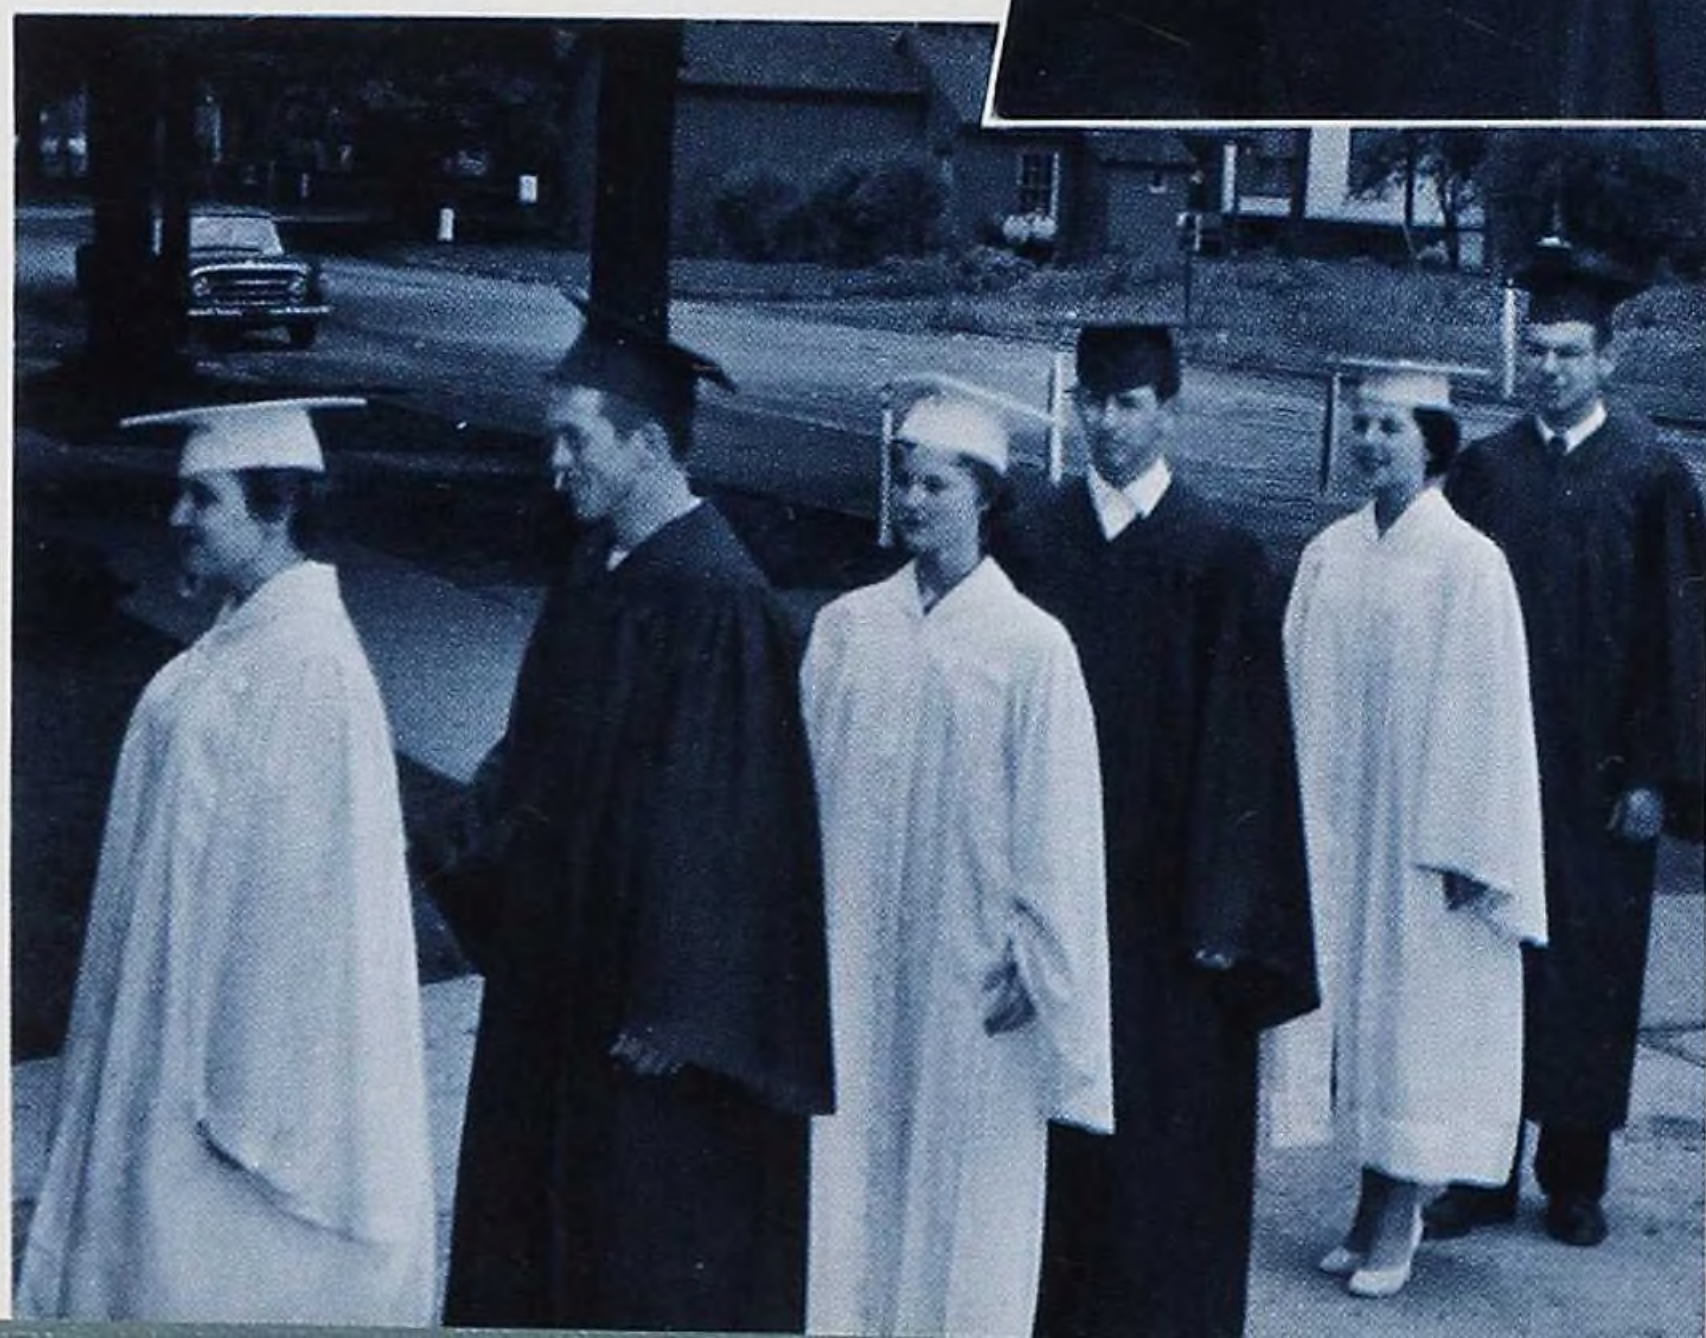

Banana Boat
Tammy
Whole Lot of Shakin' Goin' On
I'm All Shook Up
Are You Sincere?
Bye, Bye, Love
Fascination
Love Letters in the Sand
Little Darlin'
Marianne

And Their Footsteps Slowly Faded Away

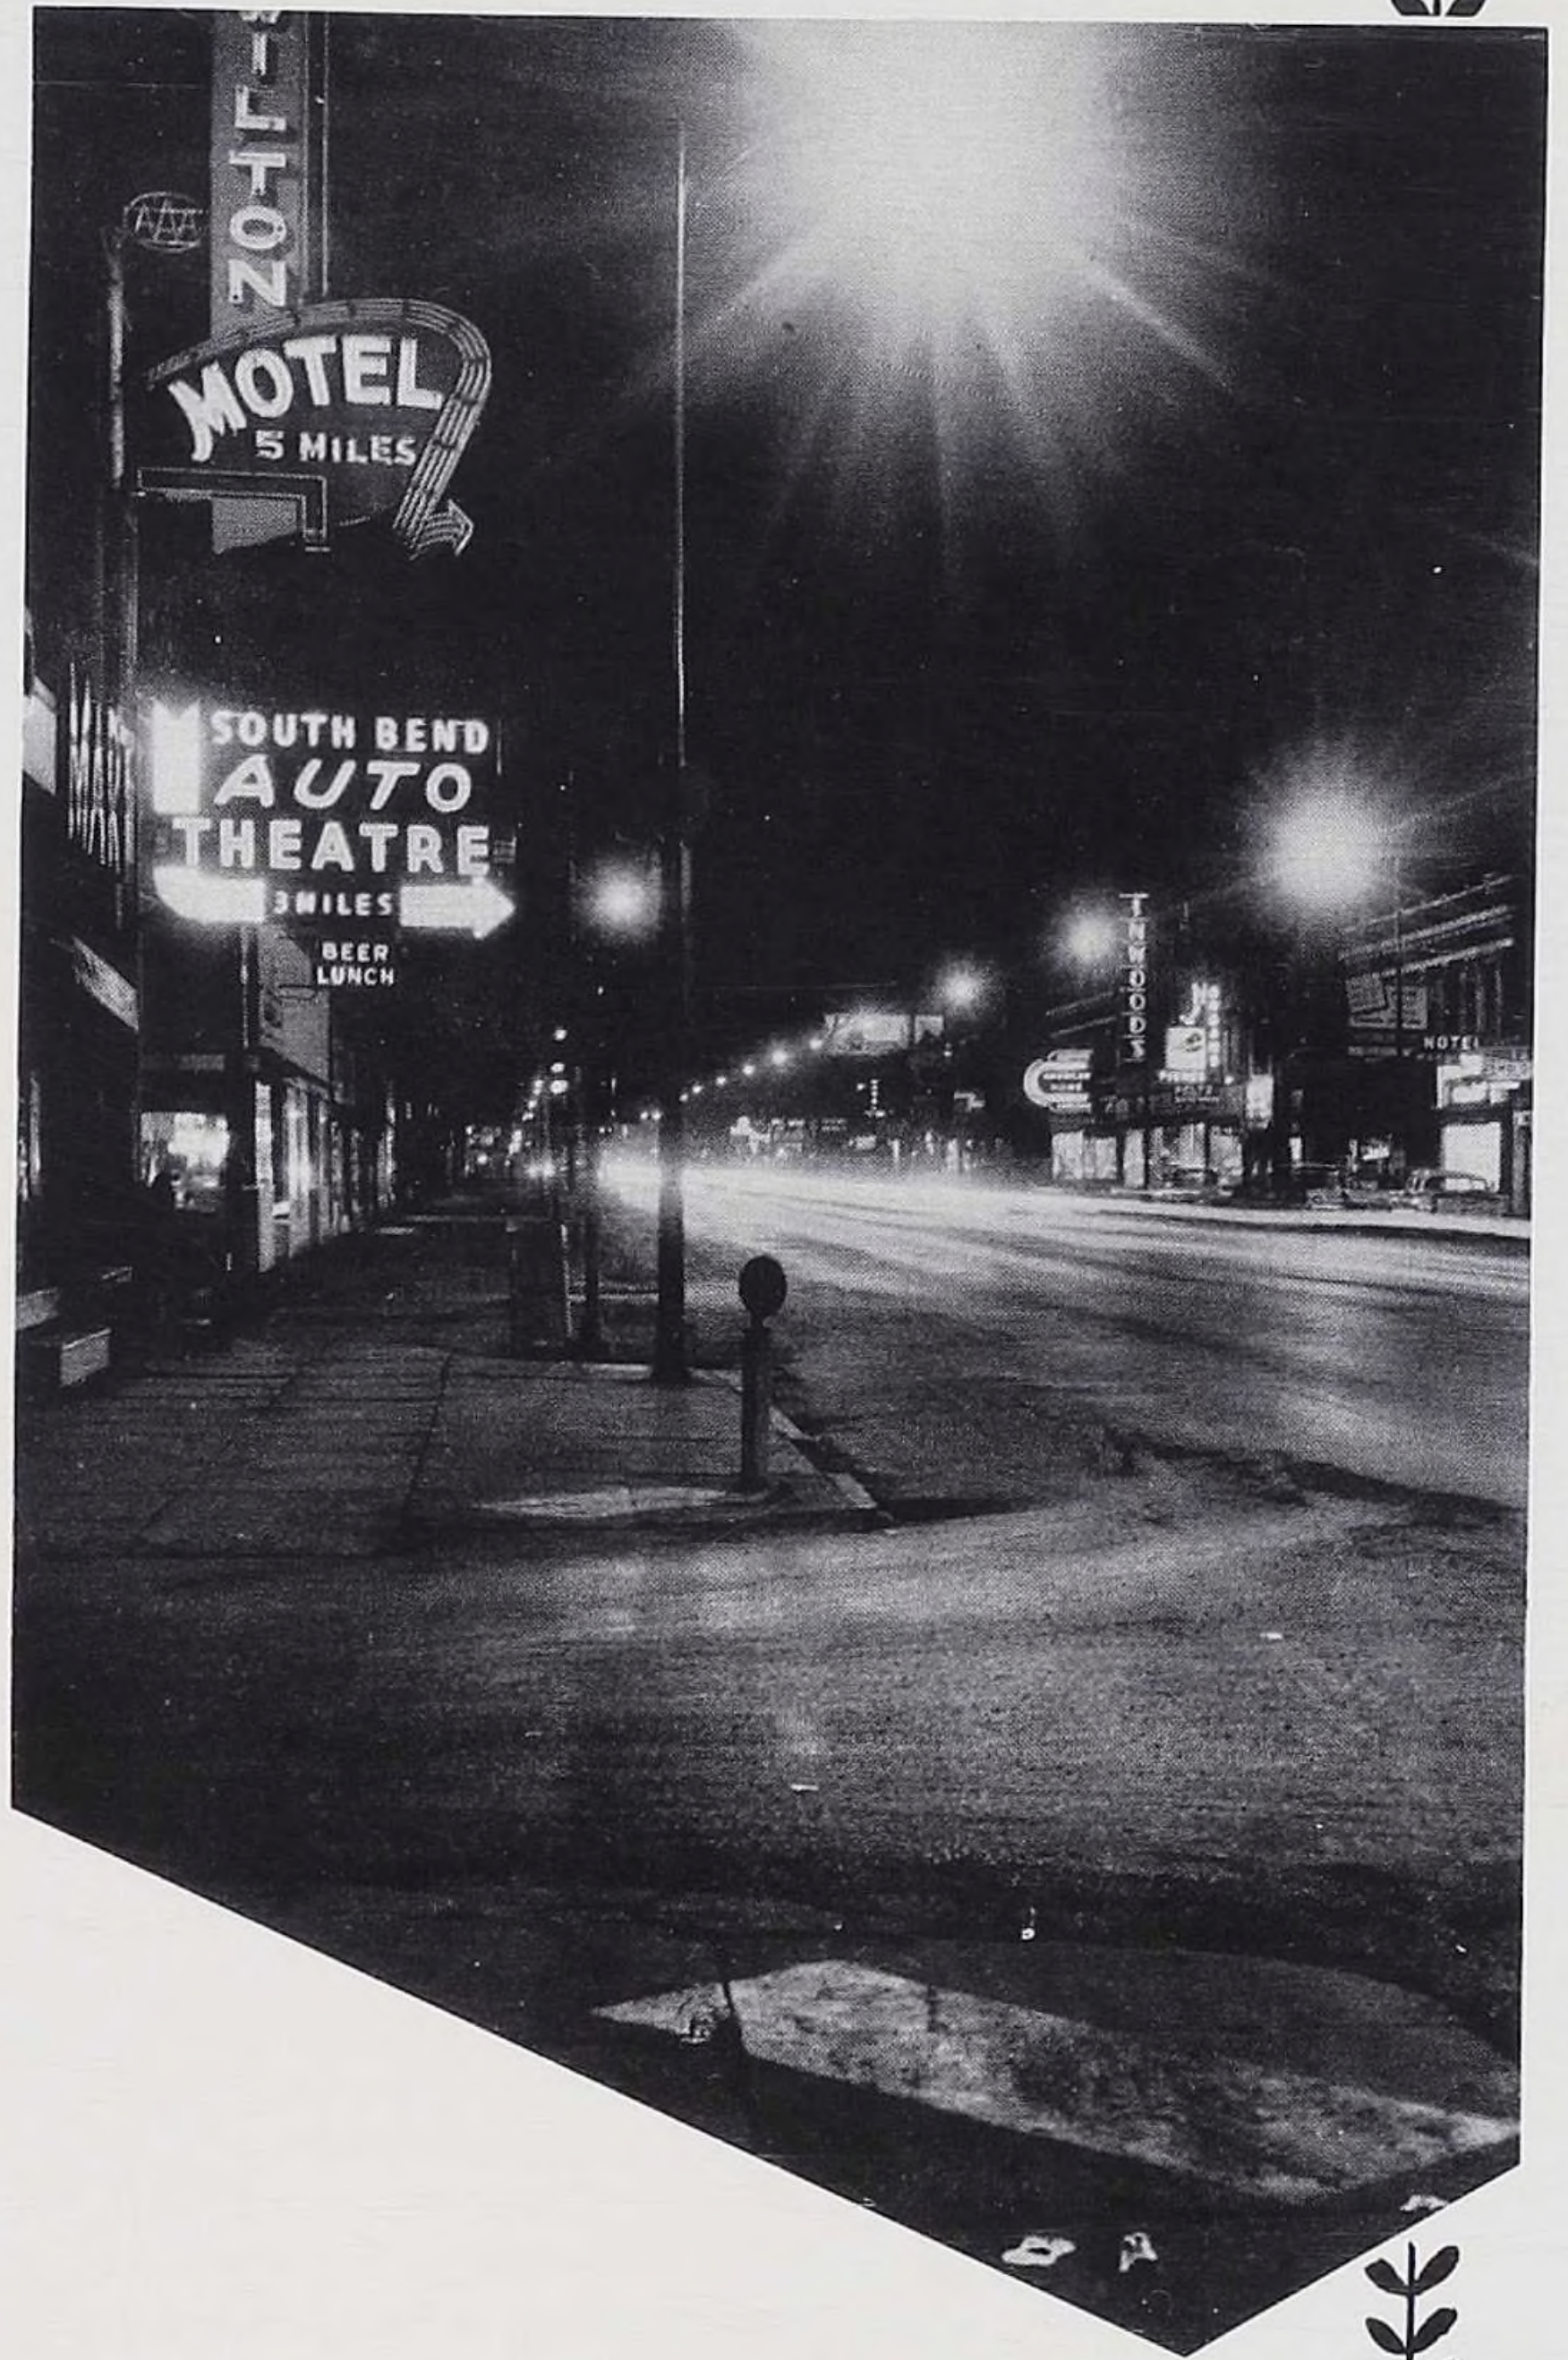

Congratulations: most appropriately in order.

With the sadness of farewell and the joy of completion we stood on the threshold of commencement. As we passed through the open door of the future, we realized we could never again enter into the hallowed halls of the past. Our only link would be memories.

Hurrah for the nightgown brigade!

They entered as students and left as alumni.

DISTINCTIVE PORTRAITS

MAKE IT A DAY OF DAYS with your portrait—be it of a baby, child, adult, family group or formal and informal wedding party.

A portrait is an object of lasting remembrance—always to be cherished. There is no more lasting way to remember those you love than with a portrait. A portrait taken now will become a treasure of the future.

Today's events are tomorrow's memories. Record those memories—the smile on your child's lips when he is two years old, the first formal your daughter wears, the kiss at the altar and the cutting of the bridal cake. Record these future memories with professional portraits today. And of course, grandparents always appreciate a picture of their grandchildren.

We have a reputation for portraits of distinction since 1912. Nothing is too big, nor too small for us. And you will enjoy the future years with pictures to remember the days gone by—from a child, through adolescence and into adult hood.

There is nothing so lasting as portrait. See us at your convenience for those pictures you have always wanted.

Yours truly,

ANTHONY (TONY) WARUSZEWSKI

In Memoriam

Of Mary Ann Williams and Michael Spencer

I did not know
That Death could be so sweet!
I once had dreaded so
His glance to meet:
But now, like balm distilled,
With peace my soul is filled.

I did not think
That He could tender be,
Who came to break the link
That fastened me
To friendships fond and dear,
That bound and held me here.

But now I know
That life was but a breath,
A weak and sluggish foe
Of welcome Death,
Who held too long his prey
From sweeter joys away.

Ah me--can this
Be gentle Death that steals,
And with a tender kiss
My forehead seals?
Farewell, O house of sod!
Farewell, I go to God!
--Father Suarez, S. J.

A black and white photograph of a tree-lined path leading to a building. The path is paved and runs from the foreground towards the background, flanked by large, mature trees on both sides. The trees cast shadows on the path. In the background, a building with several windows is visible through the trees. The overall scene is peaceful and suggests a school campus.

Conclusion

This completes the inside story of New Carlisle High School. We have gone from the first frightening moments of novice freshmen to the final moment of a senior before commencement, in an attempt to present the whole of student life. It was our hope that we might recreate the memorable events of this past school year.

▲ We wish to express our gratitude to all who aided us in the production of the Olive Branch: our photographer, Anthony Waruszewski; the American Yearbook Company's representative, Robert Albertson; all the business concerns and individuals who aided us financially; our administration; our adviser, Max E. Haag; and of course, the Olive Branch staff whose assistance can not be measured.

Thus we conclude with this famous quotation, "Out of the strain of the doing, into the peace of the done."
